"To protect the lady," according to J. R. McNab, bartender, and Dr. O. C. Hiatt, a dentist, submitted to arrest yesterday on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday. Rain yesterday caused a postponement of the opening of the band concert season in Portland, which was to have taken place last night at 8 o'clock. In spite of the rain, several hundred persons were on hand at Washington Park yesterday to hear the music.

HERBERT IS DRAWING CARD

Strong Religious Vein Said to Permeate "The Son of Solomon," Which Is Extolled for Its Uplift Tendency.

Rabbi in charge of the Jewish congregations of Portland will be theater-party hosts today, the incentive being "The Son of Solomon," the week's headline playlet at the Empress presented by Hugh Herbert, who has won renown on the legitimate stage, and his little vaudeville company. Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of Congregation Beth Israel Synagogue; Rabbi R. Abrahamson, of the Clay-street Synagogue, and J. Bloch, a retired minister of the Jewish faith, will occupy boxes at the Empress matinee. Among the guests of the clergymen will be prominent officers of the city's synagogues.

"The Son of Solomon" is based on the temptation of a son of a Jewish family to rob his aged father. A religious vein courses through the playlet, which has been extolled as being remarkable for its spirit of uplift. The sketch is the longest little drama in vaudeville, its presentation requiring 15 minutes. Despite its length, the playlet is so framed that the interest of the audience is held throughout, and the final Hugh Herbert, as the aged father, is so realistic in his little sermon that the audience is hushed and a half minute of impressive stillness invariably precedes the audience's outburst of applause.

The opening scenes shows the father and daughter discussing the absence of the son and brother, who has been away from home for months. The young man at this moment returns and all are joyful over the reunion. Unwittingly the sister discloses to her brother where the old man keeps his money, and when the family has retired the youth cries to rob his father. He is discovered by his sister, who pleads with him in vain to desist. Her brother and the young fellow falls in a faint. As he lies a panorama of his future passes before him, this effect

JUNE RAIN SHOWS EXCESS

Continuation of Summer Showers May Establish Record.

With the total rainfall so far for June at three inches, an excess of 1.50 inches above normal, and Acting Forecaster Drake predicting more and more rain, the month of June, 1913, has surpassed the month of June, 1912, already, and gives promise of breaking a record. Heavy as the rainfall has been, however, it is still 2.33 inches less than it was in the month of June, 1888, when it reached a total of 5.23. The largest daily rainfall in the present month was measured yesterday at 1.09 inches at 5 P. M. In the preceding year only one day was over 1.00 inches, or 1.83 inches above normal, and up to and including June 22, 1912, only 2.13 inches had fallen, of which 1.23 fell in one day, June 20. In the matter of moisture, .37 inch of rain fell and it all occurred in the last week of the month.

The June rainfall has exceeded three inches only three times during the period of observation, 1871-1912, which places the present month already well to the fore in the matter of moisture, as compared with the plain average June.

NEW BRIDGE TO BE USED

Cars Expected to Operate Along Broadway by July 23.

With nearly all the material on hand and work progressing as rapidly as possible, officials of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company expect to complete the streetcar tracks on Broadway and the bridge ready for the operation of cars over the route within the next 30 days.

The tracks on the East Side from Grand avenue to the east approach of the bridge have been practically completed excepting for the making of connections at Grand avenue. On the West Side the work has not progressed as rapidly. The street is torn up as far as the bridge, and the weather moderates are being laid as rapidly as possible. It is thought that by July 25 cars will be using the new bridge.

RAIN HALTS OAKS FEATS

Daring Auto Somersault Will Be Given This Afternoon.

Although 25 workmen toiled all night Saturday and until an early hour last night to complete the paraphernalia for the sensational "Autos That Pass in the Air" at the Oaks Amusement Park, the steady downpour of rain forced the postponement of the sensation until today.

The triple auto somersault and the other risky features attempted on the act by the Fearless Greggs will be given every fine day at 4:30 and 9:30, and the first performance will be given as soon as the weather moderates.

The weather caused a postponement of the band concert and the vaudeville entertainment at the Oaks. The full programme will be given every afternoon and evening this week.
