

CITY COMMISSION WORKS WITH SPEED

In Hour and 17 Minutes Body Disposes of 263 Business Transactions.

RESPONSIBILITY NOW FIXED

Ordinances and Proposed Improvements, Long Dormant, Given New Start in Life—Greater Portland Plans Placed.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

Permission given Baker Theater management to construct steel and glass entrance to theater building. Committee appointed to draft new plumbing code. Arrangements made to take over public property in Lents because of recent annexation of that district to Portland. Legal form of bond for public improvement contracts adopted. Municipal free employment bureau and all matters pertaining to Greater Portland plans turned over to Commissioner Brewster. Oaths of office and bonds of all new city employees and Commissioners approved. Many important ordinances held over from the old administration referred to Commissioners for consideration.

In the record time of 1 hour and 17 minutes, the new City Commission, in its first regular legislative session, yesterday disposed of 263 separate business transactions, one of the largest calendars of business to be faced by the legislative body of Portland in many months. The session was free from speech-making, lengthy arguments, lobbying and the other things of the sort which always marked the sessions of the late City Council. The calendar disposed of by the Commission would have required an all-day session of the old City Council, it is said, because of the fact that many transactions were put through which ordinarily would have caused discussion among Councilmen, and would have delayed action. The calendar included, in addition to the usual routine transactions, a number of ordinances of more or less importance. Placing of direct responsibility on one Commissioner for ordinances of particular nature apparently was the real cause of the speed of the session.

Theater Improvements Approved. On recommendation of Commissioner Dick and the building inspection department, the Baker Theater management was granted a special permit to construct elaborate entrances to the theater from Broadway and Sixth streets. Permission was necessary because the Sixth street entrance has to be built at a grade of 10 per cent, which is contrary to the provisions of the building code. Inasmuch as this entrance is to be used under the new management merely as an emergency exit, the non-compliance with the ordinance was not considered important, and permission was granted by unanimous consent of the Commission. A committee comprising H. E. Plummer, J. Andre Poulhous and William Finnegan was appointed to prepare a new plumbing code for the city. The present code is considered defective, because plumbers can fail to report work, making imperfect plumbing contracts possible. The appointment of the committee was recommended by Commissioner Dick.

Various important ordinances and proposed public improvements which have been before the city for many months were given a fresh start in life at the meeting by being referred to the various Commissioners for consideration and recommendation.

Lents Property to Be Taken.

A committee, comprising Mayor Albion, Commissioner Brewster and City Attorney LaRoche, was appointed to formally take over, in behalf of the city, public parks and lands and improvements of the Lents district, which was annexed to Portland July 1.

Oaths of office and bonds of all the Commissioners and the various new appointees were approved. The oaths included that of A. E. Clark, who was appointed by the Mayor Monday to the Civil Service Commission, to succeed A. P. Armstrong, resigned. The legal bond to be given the city by contractors for public improvements was also approved. The Municipal Free Employment Bureau and all matters pertaining to the Greater Portland Plans were placed by the Mayor under the department of public affairs, of which Mr. Brewster is Commissioner. The proposed payment to Johanna Costello of $7000 damages for the accidental killing last year of her son by the police patrol was referred to City Attorney LaRoche for an opinion. The claim will be considered at the next Commission meeting. Bids were opened for a sand sprinkler to be used on the streets for the protection of horses. The lowest bid for a machine was $350. It was referred to Commissioner Daly. Bids also were opened for a number of street-paving contracts.

RULES MAY BE CHANGED

EX-CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYEES MAY GO AT END OF LIST.

New Commissioners Oppose Plan of Reinstatement Over Heads of New Eligibles.

Abolition of the Municipal Civil Service rule placing reinstated city employees at the end of the eligible lists may be one of the first official acts of A. E. Clark and George Adams, newly appointed members of the Civil Service Commission. At a meeting yesterday the question was considered and it was the opinion of the new members that some change in the ruling should be made. Changes will be announced at the next regular meeting.

Under the present system an employee who has resigned from a department may apply for reinstatement, and if the application is acceptable his name is placed at the end of the list of applicants for positions. In many cases in the past there has been an eligible list of men who have never been in the city service, but have passed the Civil Service tests and might have been entitled to the appointment to be made. If an ex-employee had applied for reinstatement, he was given a place at the top of the waiting list and received his appointment over the heads of those who had been on the eligible list, waiting for positions sometimes for months.

The plan did not seem to the Commissioners yesterday to be fair. Both Mr. Clark and Mr. Caldwell spoke in favor of its abolition and the placing of the list of employees at the foot of the list of names on the eligible lists.

Ex-Police Sergeant E. W. Cole, who was discharged on charges of various kinds and was out of the service almost a year, appealed to the Commission yesterday for a rehearing of his case. He was appointed by the city to a position under fire, applied for reinstatement of his case. The Commission arranged to hold a public hearing on the case of Simmons, former police matron, who was discharged about two weeks ago, on Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, at which time a special meeting of the Commission will be held at the City Hall.

SUCCESS IS MYTH, SAYS ACTOR, WHO WON OUT

Paul Dullzell, Belasco Star at Empress, Says Viewpoint Changes as Ambition is Reached—Shakespeare His Only School Books.

WHEN first you see Paul Dullzell as the old trainer in the race track sketch, "The Trainer," you think to yourself, "there's an actor," whether you know anything of his career or not. When, later, you see him in street clothes and talk with him, you say to yourself and to everybody else, "there's a man." Consequently, this has to do with Paul Dullzell, the man as much as with Paul Dullzell, the actor.

The Mr. Dullzell who is at the Empress this week is the same who was at the Orpheum several seasons ago in "The Little Stranger," which was only a different name for the same impelling playlet in Portland this week. Mr. Dullzell is serious, and he does heavy, serious dramatic work, usually. Yet, listen to this:

"Success is a myth. As you gain success your ambition soars on and on and your appraisal of success continues to change. In your own mind you never attain it. If you think you have it, the work of getting it stands out to you. I merely say what I think are the facts."

Big Money Brings Laughs. "Do you know when I first received my pay as a Belasco player, I took the money to my room, locked the door and hid it. No, sir, I laughed. I laughed. It was too funny. I laughed, laughed, not for joy exactly, but I couldn't forget the time I once sat in Madison Square Park and looked out at the crowd and thought, 'I can't forget the time I was chucked—yes, chucked in the tray of a dressing-room trunk and the trunk was closed. They did that to me. I cried during a performance. After a few minutes, of course, I couldn't cry. I couldn't forget a lot of things that impeded me, but I was merely as a boy in ordinary stage life, and, second, as a man with something to do, and, third, lastly, the hard knocks that came as I was trying to learn to be an actor."

ARRESTS AND RAIN DON'T STOP PICKETS

Industrial Workers Continue Vigil at Plant Where Strike Is On.

WOMAN TWICE GIVES BAIL

Manager of Company Is Firm in Decision to Carry Work to Salem Unless Trouble Abates Before Next Saturday.

Four arrests yesterday, one of which was for a second offense, did not curb the activities of the Industrial Workers of the World and the strikers at the plant of the Oregon Packing Company, at East Eighth and Belmont streets.

Mary R. Schwab, a Socialist orator who has been addressing crowds on the street corners during the last few weeks, was the one arrested twice yesterday. Mrs. Schwab has been picked up, and was arrested the first time with her husband, Rudolph Schwab, and Henry Schoen on a disorderly conduct charge. The trio furnished bail apiece, and were released to appear before Judge Stevenson today. Later in the day Mrs. M. E. Daniels, employed at the Oregon Packing Company plant, had a warrant issued for Mrs. Schwab, charging her with using violent and abusive language. Mrs. Schwab was picked up by the police the first time she returned to East Eighth and Belmont streets, where she was again picked up by the police. This time she furnished $20 bail. Upon leaving the police station she asked the officers not to arrest her again in the evening.

Rain did not drive away the pickets of the Industrial Workers of the World, who kept up their street oratory in front of the plant and continued to accost persons entering or leaving the plant. Their actions were somewhat more restrained, but they manifested a disposition to go as far as possible in their efforts to intimidate the employees of the plant.

"I can see no material improvement of the situation as a result of what arrests have been made," said Superintendent McPherson last night. "The intention of the manager of the plant to close down almost entirely Saturday night and transfer its work to Salem is, so far as I know, unchanged and will remain unchanged so long as there is no abatement of the interference."

A comparatively small proportion of the fruit on hand spoiled and had to be sent to the incinerators. The number of women remaining at work was not materially less than on the preceding day.

OFFICER HAS BROKEN RIB

Captain Baty, After Week of Pain, Discovers Injury.

After suffering extreme pain for nearly a week, Captain of Detectives Baty discovered yesterday that during that time he has been carrying around a broken and one cracked rib. The injury having been sustained in trying to prevent a prisoner from leaping out of a second-story window. With his damaged torso in heavy bandages, the captain is continuing at his desk and no complications are expected.

Harry Davidson, whose attempt to escape brought about the injury, is in a hospital with a broken leg. He had been picked up on a charge of stealing a suit of clothes, and leaped out of a window when he saw the owner enter. Captain Baty caught his coat tails and was thrown heavily against the window sill. Davidson stripped off the coat and fell 20 feet to the pavement, but the combination of Captain Baty's effort and his lighting on the shoulder of a pedestrian probably saved him from death.

About Mr. Dullzell, this must be said: If Shakespeare was his only textbook, they were most adequate. He said he knew all the bard's works by heart between 12 and 18 years of age. You believe it after you have heard him talk. He speaks brilliantly, and you can't forget them. He has a past history. And as for dramatic literature or reasonable science and philosophy, he is always "at home" in a discussion. You understand why he uses brilliant English and a good

Unmoral Plays Lamented.

Mr. Dullzell knows the stage and its people. "I am sorry the stage today features so many suggestive, unmoral and immoral plays," he said. "Yet those are the plays the people want. 'What's in it for me?' is the motto. 'Why am I gratified when 'The Trainer' goes over, so to speak. It is clean, through and through. But for several years the stage has been a picture of wickedness has triumphed."

Mr. Dullzell is the actor who created a sensation not long since when he said in an interview: "I hate New York; I despise its vastness; I loathe its artificialities."

New York, which takes the honor for making and breaking actors, gasped at his boldness. But that is Paul Dullzell. He's honest with himself. But did New York make him? When you learn of his rise up the ladder you believe that he made New York "make" him. He had that feeling and knowledge of criticism that makes artists in whatever line they follow. David Belasco saw it—behind the makeup. You can't mistake Paul Dullzell's determination of purpose.

Clean Life Attracts.

Mr. Dullzell scatters sunshine and good feeling wherever he is, and while he doesn't boast of it, he gives you to understand he likes and adheres to the clean life. He regrets the loose life of the stage—because, he says, the stage folk are in the public eye. They should be examples and he knows the right of an actor emerging from a great moral lesson-teaching role at 11 o'clock to be seen at midnight in wild dissipation in a Broadway cafe.
