Concentrated Newspaper Publicity

During a recent National convention of advertising men in Baltimore, one advertising manager of wide experience dwelt with much emphasis upon the value of concentrated newspaper publicity.

He made a vivid impression.

He said that the newspapers constituted the only real medium through which a manufacturer could create a demand for his products in a particular locality.

Only the newspapers can build up business locally, because advertising in local newspapers creates demand. There is a vast difference between creating a desire for a product and creating actual demand. Demand means sales over the counter.
