Mother's Plea Wine.—Because of his mother, who tearfully declared of court that it was her boy's first offense and begged that he be given another chance. Circuit Judge Gatens yester-day paroled Orin J. Woods, aged 20, who pleaded guilty to a charge of passing bad checks. Woods' sentence is two years in the penitentiary. The mother explained that her boy became discouraged and started drinking because he was thrown out of employcause he was thrown out of employment suddenly. Both she and the boy declared that he was under the influence of intoxicants when he passed the check.

Eight more widows' pensions were granted yesterday by Juvenile Judge Gatens, making a total to date of 52. The total expense to the county is close to $1300 a month. Thirteen were refused, making 35 which have been disallowed to date. The number of applications on file is 211.

There seems to be a misunderstanding of the provisions of the law. Not all widows are eligible, but only women with one or more children under 15 dead or inmates of some Oregon state institution, or by reason of physical to work, and whose support and the support of whose children is dependent wholly or partly upon her labor.
