Actual commencement of construction work on this road had been hanging fire for several months. In the tax levy for road purposes $150,000 was figured to be available for the road this year. It was only recently, however, that a final agreement relative to right of way was signed up with the O.-W. R. & N. Company, along the main line of which the highway will run. The company made many concessions to the county at points where the roadway and tracks would conflict. In return the county said nothing about parts of the original survey for the road, made about 20 years ago or more, having been encroached on by the railway company.

S. Benson, the wealthy timberman and owner of the Oregon Hotel, has been a great advocate of this road. He donated $10,000 to Hood River County to assist in construction of a difficult part of that county's portion of the project around Shell Rock. Sam Hill, good roads enthusiast, also had been active in urging the County Commissioners to take action.

It will be the only water-grade highway crossing the Cascade Mountains and will provide connections with San Francisco via the road from The Dalles south through Bend, Klaimath Falls, Pitt River Canyon and Redding.

For his second alleged theft of an automobile within a few months, Fred Colip, a young chauffeur, was held to answer to the grand jury yesterday. The youth is the one for whose apprehension John B. Yeon offered a reward of $100 because an automobile driven by an unknown driver passed him on the Columbia boulevard at a terrific rate of speed. He was arrested by Detectives Goltz and Royle.

Colip recently served a sentence of 30 days for a similar escapade, and had been at the office of his attorney discussing the affair and vowing that he never would offend again when he walked out and drove off with an automobile belonging to Dr. Andrew C. Smith. He picked up a girl on the street and went for a joy-ride.

Friends of the youth assert that he is a kleptomaniac with an uncontrollable impulse to steal automobiles merely for the purpose of driving them for a short time.
