

PATHS OF SIN ARE GIVEN SHORT SHRIFF

"Billy" Sunday, Coatless and Collarless, Sways Large Audience at White Temple.

TEARS AND LAUGHTER MIX

Evangelist Works as Was His wont When Professional Ball Player and Smites Ways of Wicked in Picturesque Slang.

"Billy" Sunday, in shirt sleeves and collarless, paced up and down before an audience of men that filled the White Temple to "standing room only" yesterday, and told them of the 57 ways more or less that "chickens come home to roost."

His picturesque presence and whirlwind oratory captivated the crowd, and they acknowledged his crackling epigrams with thunders of applause, while the ex-member of "Pop" Anson's famous old Chicago White Sox grinned down upon them in a way that showed what Trinie Frigama would call "a mighty fine set of dining-room furniture."

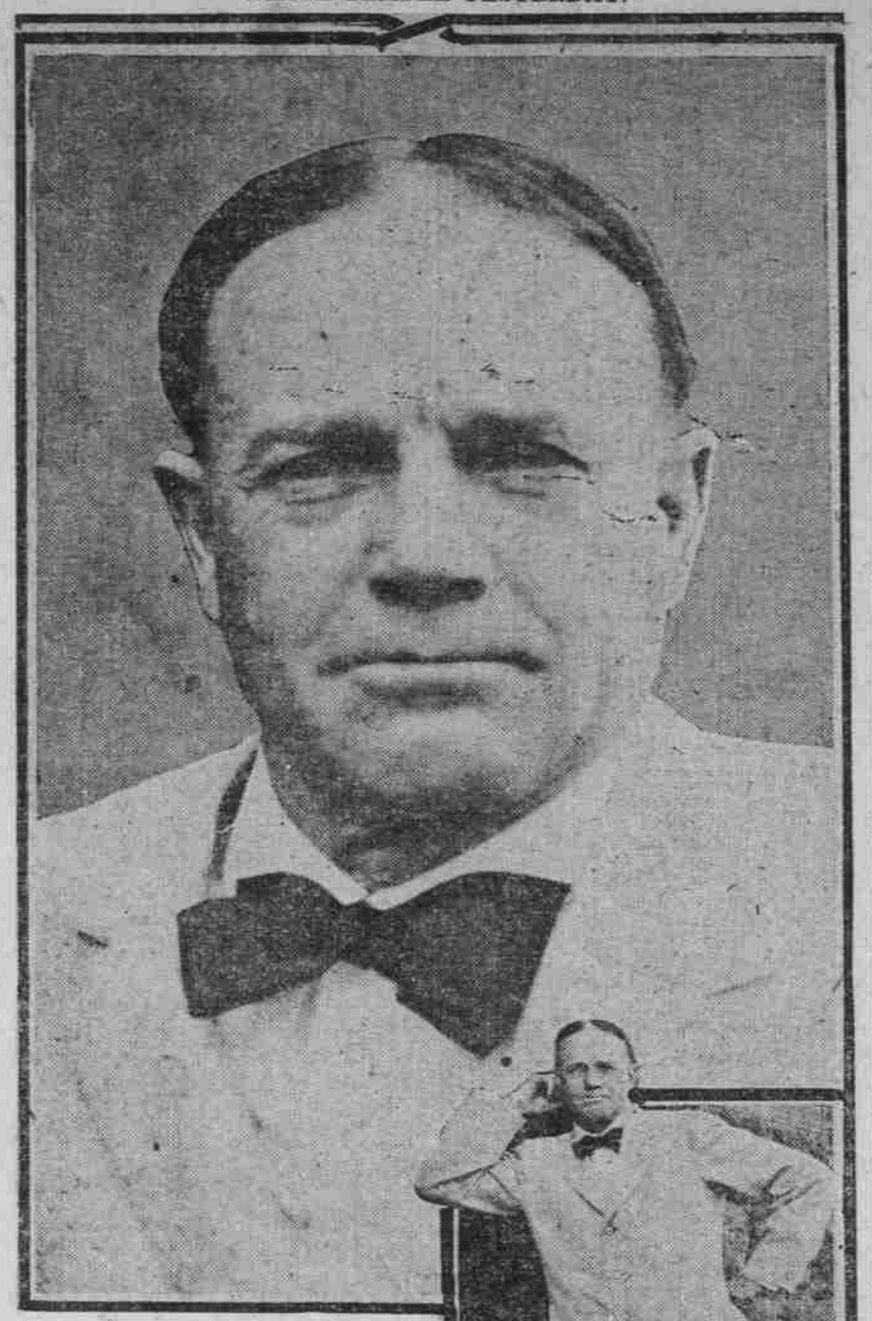

He chuckled at his own jokes, he bragged of his old-time ability to run bases—said he used to circle the diamond, a distance of straight-away of 120 yards, in 14 seconds—he plunged down on the platform to show how he used to slide into second, he rested his tennis shoe out on the grand piano in front of the pulpit while "driving home" a point, he macerated the rules of Lindley Murray, he translated the gospels into slang—along—and the crowd liked it all of it.

Vocabulary is Large. He denounced profanity in language that could not have been rendered more forcefully by a past master of that gentle art. He was eloquent and sentimental and savage and appealing—and funny. He brought his hearers from the verge of tears to sudden laughter, apparently at will, and then stood, transfixed in whatever position his perspiration had left him, and grinned at his own work like a woodchuck.

The famous evangelist spoke from notes, but he left them at "home base," the pulpit, and charged up and down the platform like a base runner, trying to "put a man in from third."

Once in a while he returned to refer to his notes and his handkerchief. When he referred to his notes, while he polished his dripping brow, he was eloquent, speaking of "the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome," and how the chickens came home to roost to those nations and others that defied God's law. With his eye on his notes he read statistics that staggered with the weight of their significance.

BIG LOG BUILDING FAIRLY NEAR EAR

Oregon Panama-Pacific Exposition Commission Announces Exhibition Plans.

DESIGNS AND HELP ASKED

Unique Structure Is Deemed Necessary Because of More Costly Arrangements to Be Made by Many Other States.

A building built of massive Oregon logs on the order of the Forestry building at the Lewis and Clark Exposition grounds, with space inside for large exhibits of agricultural, horticultural, lumber, mining, educational and other interests of Oregon, is suggested as the official building of this state at the Panama-Pacific Exposition by the Commission appointed to arrange and instruct the Oregon exhibit.

Members of the Commission yesterday completed a report of their work, following their return from inspection of the grounds at San Francisco. The Commission asks for designs from Oregon architects for the proposed building and asks for suggestions and aid from the various interests which are to be represented at the fair. The Commission will open a temporary office today at the county clerk's office in charge of O. M. Clark, president of the Commission. Later a permanent office will be opened at some other place in the city.

"Oregon First" to Be Slogan. "Oregon First" is to be the slogan of the Commission. It is proposed to have a large sign in the city, with the slogan and finish first and to carry out the "first" idea in as many other ways as possible.

The first work before the Commission, reads the report, "is the planning for the Oregon building. This is important and must be done at once. We must be the first to start construction. We must do this for the prominence it will give the state by being first. The site selected is 200 feet by 200 feet in size and faces on the waterfront, in plain view of the Golden Gate, and is the best site for the California building—an immense structure, in which the counties join with the state. Across the avenue to the south is the county clerk's office, upon which is to be erected a five-story structure at a cost of $375,000. It is intended to be extremely attractive, with splendid illumination. The New Jersey site is also near by.

Unique Building Deemed Need. With these surroundings we cannot hope to attract attention unless it is unique, for at the most we cannot spend over $50,000 for the building. The total appropriation is $375,000 and the necessary cost, such as expense of the Commission, payroll of employees, fixed charges for utilities, transportation and many such items that will go to make up an overhead charge, will come out of the appropriation for the building and other purposes.

The log building idea so splendidly shown in the Forestry building at the Lewis and Clark Exposition is favored by the Commission and is urged by the general officers at the meeting. Such unique ideas must be carried out in our State building, or it will appear insignificant surrounded by the great buildings planned for San Pedro and New York and the exposition buildings which are also near the Oregon site. The Commission intends to ask the general state architects to submit designs.

Help is Solicited. "The Commission most earnestly desires and solicits the aid of all citizens in carrying forward the work. A conference with representatives of the industries of the state and other persons acting in a representative capacity probably will be called at once for the purpose of discussion that may lead to adoption of a plan. The location of the building and close proximity to the exposition location, it is the best possible situation as to exhibit space, and it is the best and most abundant. It will be readily seen and, we hope, appreciated by all that the expense of the building is a small price to me. I didn't think they would stand the gaff. But Joe Birmingham has them going now like a six-cylinder auto. They'll give Connie Mack's team a hard run for their money before the season is over."

MANY SHIPS MOVE

Twelve Steamers Either Arrive or Depart in Day.

SEVERAL OTHERS DUE SOON

Numerous Types of Vessels Represented Sundry in Local Harbor; Total Capacity of Those Moving Is 50,000 Tons.

Twelve steamships of more than 20,000 tons net register and with a carrying capacity of nearly 40,000 tons, were reported by the Merchants' Exchange yesterday crossing in or out of the Columbia River between daylight and dark. Nearly every type of steamer in the merchant marine service was represented in the big fleet.

The Harriman flagship Beaver was one of the early arrivals, crossing in at 6 o'clock. The North Pacific liner, Ronako, arrived about noon; the Union Oil tank steamer, Roma, arrived; the Associated tanker W. F. Herrin, sailed; the Hamburg-American liner, C. P. Lee, sailed; the early departure for San Pedro and San Francisco with lumber cargoes; the O. M. Clark, San Ramon and Daisy Saturday night and left up at midnight.

HARBOR PATROL IS ALERT

River Spotted With Small Craft All Day Long and During Evening.

The harbor patrol force was alert all day yesterday and last evening in anticipation of accidents to the patrol craft and rowboat parties, so thickly was the river sprinkled with small craft, and it was remarked that even in case a boat did upset the patrol craft might have difficulty in making quick time to the scene on account of the great number of vessels.

LOGANBERRY CROP HEAVY

Tons of Fruit Will Be Evaporated in Polk County.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 10.—(Special.)—Polk County growers declare that the loganberry crop this year is the largest ever grown in this section. The big crop, they say, is the result of rains at the right time and a large increase of acreage.

PLAYING BASEBALL AND PREACHING MUCH ALIKE

Keen Eye and Clear Brain Required to Make Hit in Either Game, Declares Billy Sunday, Evangelist, in Interview.

Playing baseball and preaching the gospel are much the same, declares Billy Sunday, ballplayer-evangelist, who arrived in Portland Saturday and preached a series of sermons yesterday.

"It takes a keen eye and a clear brain to make a hit in either game," he said at the Oregon Hotel, where he and Mrs. Sunday are staying.

"It's a poor preacher that can't hit over 300 in the Gospel league. The devil is a poor pitcher. He tries to strike out the weak batters—the poor wretches who are victims of booze—and the Lord knows that they fan only too often."

"But the devil is afraid of the hard-hitting preachers and the men and women who are trying to lead upright lives. He's a trick pitcher, the devil, and tries to give the good folks the bases on balls."

RESORTS DO WELL

Sun's Rays Drive Thousands to Shady Nooks.

LURE OF RIVER IS FELT

With Temperature of 65 Degrees at 3 A. M., Mercury Climbs to 93 at 5 P. M., but Soon Recedes and Pleasant Breeze Blows.

Pushing the mercury up into the nineties, Old Sol yesterday stirred up a lively business for the various summer resorts, parks and recreation places in and near Portland.

No heat records were broken, nor was it even close, but it was hot enough to cause a sprinkled and general exodus to the shade. Hundreds sat under the trees in the parks, hundreds of others went to the shady resting places along the Willamette, the Oaks and other places in the country were crowded, thousands took to the woods surrounding the city, large crowds were in the Plaza blocks, the cars leading into the country were crowded all day, scores went fishing and scores of others went boating.

The sun came out strong in the early morning, indicating a hot day, which fact contributed largely to the number of people who went to the more distant recreation places. The temperature at 3 A. M. was 65 degrees, at 12 o'clock it was 84, at 1 o'clock 87, at 2 o'clock 90, and at 5 o'clock 93. From then on the mercury gradually subsided, permitting those who had fled to the country to proceed home in the coolness of pleasant breezes—the sort that have made Portland famous.

The river was dotted with boats of various kinds from early morning until late at night. Canoes darted back and forth, motorboats sped along at lively pace and sailboats tacked up and down the river, all carrying happy pleasure seekers. In almost every direction swimmers could be seen.

One of the liveliest places was the Oaks, where thousands of people packed the day in the shade. The band concert and vaudeville there attracted crowds at both performances. Large numbers of people went to Council Crest and to various small resorts along the Willamette and Columbia Rivers.
