BEAR OWNERS TO FOOT BILL

Log Shows Speeding Charge Unfounded and It Is Withdrawn.

Repairs to the schooner Resamond, cading at the North Pacific Mill for he West Coast, alleged to have been aused by swells from the "Big Three" steamer Bear when she reached the harbor Friday from California ports, will be made at the expense of the San Francisco & Portland Steamship Company, through an understanding with the schooners' owners.

Captain Matiesen, her master, accompanied Harbormaster Speier to the Bear yesterday and discussed the mat-Bear yesterday and discussed the matter with Captain Nopander, commanding the latter. Captain Mailesen had alleged that the Bear was making 15 miles an hour. Her log showed that a slow bell was given before she reached the plant of the Portland Flouring Mill Company and that opposite the flouring mill a stopping bell was sounded. The Rosamond's master recited that the damage would reach $250, while the steamashy interests ex-

At sun times there is such animated movement of the sea that the bell's action would be strong.

FISHERMAN THANKS SKIPPER

Consideration for Night Workers Effeits Appreciation.

Captain Carlson, master of the O.-W. R. & N. steamer Hassalo, met with a new experience on the river Sunday night off Cathlamet, when the steamer was slowed down while passing the net of two fishermen, for us the Has-salo sild by the last floats of the gill-net one of the fishermen sang out:

met one of the fishermen sang out:
"Much obliged, Cap."

Skippers have complained that when they have consideration for nets and use their best endeavors to prevent damage with sternwheelers or propell-er vessels, some fishermen show no appreciation and at times when an appreciation and at times when an injury results from steaming over nets regardless of whether they are in the channel, a stream of profanity usually salutes them. Mariners usually exercise care in running over nets, but a few entering the river on coasters complain that at times so many nets are set in the fairway that it is almost impossible for them to proceed without harming tham. without harming them.

Season's High Price Paid in Chicago Grain Pit.

DRY WEATHER BIG FACTOR

World's Visible Supply Shrinks 1,638,000 Bushels - Wheat Is Weaker but Recovers With Heavy Export Movement.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—New high records for the season were made in the corn pit today after a weak opening. The close showed a net advance of a to Mc. Wheat closed a shade to Mc Mc net lower; oats finished is to Mc Mc up, at new high prices for the year, and provisions made a net gain of 7% to 32%c.

Bull leaders took command soon after the corn market opened and thereafter dominated the pit. Rains in the drought-stricken Southwest and easier cabigs caused a weak opening of which influential purchers promptly took advantage. A decrease of Le3s,000 bushels in the world's visible supply and predictions of dry weather in the near future seemed to be among the chief factors animating the bull sentiment.

Enormous expert clearances of wheat for the day, 2,000,000 bushels, gave some strength to that market after early weakness, the opening being depressed by easierables and large world's shipments. The EXCEPTIONAL SECOND CLASS
