1375 CHILDREN ARE GIVEN HAPPY DAY

Little Inmates of Charitable Institutions Enjoy Fairyland at Oaks Park.

Perhaps it is hardly right, though to say "once upon a time" now, for the children who took part in the story, the "kiddles" who lived the story, are all alive and happy.

Over 1300 little ones lived a lifetime in Happyland. They experienced every joy that could be crammed into half a dozen hours. Some were halt, some blind, some lame.

some blind, some lame.

Happyland, for yesterday, was the Oaks Amusement Park. The inhabitants came from all the charitable institutions of Portland. The doorkeepers were Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, who had them transported from every part of Portland, and John F. Cordray, who ushered them into the Oaks. Leading business firms of Portland contributed a stock of food, which was served and which completely filled little "tummies."

This is what he was carrying: Two big ham sandwiches, a salmon sandwich, a chunk of cake, haif a dozen cookles, a cone of ice cream, candy and a bottle of "pop."

All the food disappeared down little red lanes—every scrap of it, and by the time Mayor Albee climbed up on the platform to speak to the 1375 youngsters they were tired enough, rested enough and fed enough to give him a reception that made his ears burn.

"I didn't knew children could applaud like that," said the Mayor.

The Mayor told them some Aesop fables and incidentally, when for a moment he forgot the name of one of the characters, a bright youth up front prompted him.

"I want to know your name," called out the Mayor, when he had asked the lad to stand up. "You're a bright boy."

The Mayor showed he was still "young enough to talk slangily and you should have heard the volume of appliause when he remarked that the fox was "a

After all, it was the concessions and the amusement places that tickled the delight of the visitors. "I have had $1,000,000 worth of fun,"

"I have had $1,000,000 worth of fun," remarked Ita Shelienberger, after over 5000 children had passed over the Blue Streak, which makes it obvious that "repeating" was in order.

From 12 o'clock until late in the day the park resounded with childish screams and peals of laughter. They did everything to be done—not once, but many times.

"Oh, can't we come again"" wailed one girl. "We all hope so," they said.

WORD EMPLOYS COUNSEL Motion Filed in $20,000 Damage Suit Against Sheriff.

Sheriff Word has employed the law firm of Doiph, Mallory, Simon & Gearin to represent him in the suit brought by Rudolph Schwab, I. W. W. agitator, by Rudolph Schwab, I. W. W. agitator, to collect $20,000 for being imprisoned in the County Jall and for the breaking up of his meetings by the Sheriff.
Yesterday this firm filed on behalf of the Sheriff a motion demanding that Jeffrey & Lenon, attorneys for Schwab, make their complaint more definite and certain, quoting the Oregon statute which requires that "the complaint shall contain a plain and concise statement of the facts constituting the cause of action, without unnecessary repetition."

The Telephone Always on Guard

THERE is never a moment, day or night, when your Bell Telephone is not a protection.

In the busy hours of the day and the silent watches of the night, the switchboard operator is always ready to answer a call.

The telephone is as much a part of the protective system of each community as the police and fire departments.

There's always a feeling of security in the knowledge that close at hand is the means of calling aid quickly when you most need it.

More than 70,000 cities and towns are protected day and night by the Bell Telephone system. 7,500,000 Bell Telephones are on guard. In thousands of rural communities it is the chief reliance in emergencies and times of danger.

"The old mountain brought out a spirit of royal comradeship as well as fine heroism. For over and over did these seasoned climbers mike the ascent that they might help others less seasoned. And then the view from the summit! It is worth the effort—ten times the effort. I can't picture it; it thrilled me with the feeling that I was looking upon the world at its dawn; the immensity of it, the inability to compare it with anything known or usual, makes talk of it futile. There, lifting through oceans of clouds like a giant ship's masts, the snowy peaks of the other mountains, St. Helens, Rainier, hood, Jefferson, and below the clouds that break and part like curtains, revealing vast vistas, the rugged purple ranges. It is the world before man.
