

THAW IS LIKELY TO STAY LONG IN JAIL

Attorneys Withdraw Writ of Habeas Corpus and Put Fight Up to Jerome.

PRISONER HOLDS OPTION

Right to Elect to Choose Trial Before King's Bench in October Gives New Aspect to Case—Failure of Speedy Termination Vexes.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 26.—Harry K. Thaw's Canadian attorneys late today withdrew the writ of habeas corpus obtained last week in his behalf and the fugitive from Matteawan will not be arraigned in the Superior Court tomorrow morning as had been expected. The withdrawal of the writ may prolong the proceedings indefinitely.

Rumors had been bandied about all day that the writ might be withdrawn, but it was not until tonight that the notice was filed with the clerk of the court.

At the same time a globemask was sent to Judge Arthur Gloag at Montreal, who granted the writ, that such was counsel's desire. He was due here tomorrow to hear arguments on the application.

Next Move Up to Jerome.

The next move in the Thaw case is now distinctly up to those desiring his deportation. Under the present commitment he might remain in the Sherbrooke jail indefinitely, electing to have a hearing before a district magistrate, or demanding a jury trial before the King's bench, criminal side, which does not sit until October. Briefly Thaw's lawyers have decided to let him pace the cell, meanwhile perfecting plans to defeat attempts to put him across the Canadian border.

"It is beyond me," said William Travers Jerome, the fine points of Canadian law involved are such that I would not feel justified in even guessing at the outcome. We hope to get him in the end, but this angle must be straightened out first."

District Attorney Conger, of Dutchess County, New York, was equally puzzled and reticent. "If Mr. Jerome can't solve the muddle, certainly I can't," he said.

Case Further Complicated. Further to complicate matters counsel representing the State of New York are not sure that the commitment under which Thaw has been held to remain in jail contains a charge of violating any of the Dominion's laws. It is that of being a "fugitive from the Matteawan penitentiary, where he was confined on a criminal charge for life."

Hector Verret, K. C., representing New York State, said tonight that he regarded the withdrawal of the writ on Thaw's behalf as tacit admission by his attorneys that the commitment was legal and did contain one charge on which Thaw could be brought into court.

"We might get out another commitment charging him with other offense," he added. "We could bring him before court on that, surely. There would still remain, however, Thaw's right to choose trial before the King's bench in October."

Hope of Speedy End Goes. Mr. Jerome and District Attorney Conger were at dinner when Thaw's counsel made known their decision. They had been discussing his probable drawn hither by duty, that tomorrow would see a sweeping away of some of the legal cobwebs and the beginning of a fight in the open, prefacing a hearing before the King's bench in October.

The news spread quickly through the hotel corridors. Sheriff Hornebeck, of Dutchess County, who is particularly anxious to get home, expressed his great disgust. The handcuffs and leg irons he brought with him were not only a burden and he has been roaming about town for a week waiting for something to turn up.

Thaw's lawyers, headed by J. N. Greensfelder, K. C. of Montreal, were grimly jubilant. They had conferred all afternoon before reaching a decision and were mightily pleased at the apparent end of the legal wrangle for the opposition. Thaw himself could not be seen, due to a new rule of the Sheriff, barring interviewers except when accompanied by some one of his counsel; but that he was consulted before any action was taken was attested by the fact that his signature, with that of his attorney of record, W. L. Shurtleff, was signed to the application.

Thaw's Efforts Curtailed. It was a mere formality with Thaw, though, for the greater part of his day he spent in working out more details of his publicity campaign. His ambitions may be nipped to some extent by the curtailment of interviews, but he can still send out statements.

Though declining to express an opinion as to what will happen in the Thaw case next, Mr. Jerome took the hint in the proceedings philosophically. He was asked if he had anything of particular interest to say to Americans with reference to the Thaw case, now that he was on the ground and had learned something of the Canadian attitude toward White's slayer.

"No, but I have something I'd like to say to the people of Canada," he exclaimed. "They seem to regard this man as a martyr. No one is persecuting him; no one wants him. New York state is trying to get Thaw back, not because New York wants Thaw, but because of the bad effect his freedom would have upon the people. If Thaw were allowed to remain free, everyone would say 'Ha, Thaw millions freed him.' People are saying 'Thaw millions freed him out of Matteawan and generally we hear the remark: 'A rich man can do anything, but what chance has a poor man got.'"

"Thaw, if allowed to go free would have a demoralizing effect on the whole country. Free he would be a menace. That is why New York state wants Thaw."

Thaw Said to Be Menace. "I have with me documents which show that he is one of two things—either an insane man, and if so, undesirable, or a sane man of a type even more undesirable."

What does New York State want with such a man? Canada might keep him and welcome, were it for the fact that it is New York's duty to get him back. The doors of Matteawan would have been thrown open to Thaw long since, had New York the ethical right to do that. There would have been no pursuit of him. But he must be taken back."

Questions of treaty violations and future contingencies suggested should Thaw be deported, faded into the background when the news went abroad that tomorrow's court hearing was off.

RUSH FOR SEATS ON

Baker Patrons Send Out for Lunches While Waiting.

Shifts Worked by Brothers, Sisters and Friends in Order to Protect Chances for Opening Sale

Two Girls First in Line

This Morning

Two bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked girls who said they wouldn't give their names until they reached the box office at 9 o'clock this morning, where they would register for their season tickets, headed the lengthy list of Baker Theater patrons who lined up for seats last night at 6 o'clock. Fully 100 waiting people stood in line, or sat on the benches provided by Manager Baker.

When dusk arrived Mr. Baker threw open the doors of the cozy theater and the waiting patrons took seats according to their places in the line.

"The first time was to see Ralph Stuart open in 'By Right of Sword,' way back in the early days when the stock company was at the old Baker on Third street. And by a coincidence I see that Ralph Stuart's youngest son, Kenneth Stuart, is to be stage manager for Mr. Baker this season."

Which information soon started a discussion of events, players and prices of early days in the Baker organization, and naturally led up to a suggestion from one of the old faithfuls in waiting that a society of veteran show-shoppers be organized. By one accord they united in praising Manager Baker's policy in securing all new stars.

"Only I'm glad he didn't leave Mary Edgett-Baker out," said one woman. "Miss Edgett has this season added the Baker name to her cognomen, the Edgett being retained as her middle name. It was the family name of her paternal grandmother and she is especially proud of it."

Opening Offering Awaited. The opening bill, "The Fortune Hunter," which is one of George M. Cohan's best hits, has caused pleasurable discussion, and Baker patrons await anxiously the debut of the big new family on Sunday afternoon.

Dorothy Shoemaker, the lovely titan-haired new leading woman, will appear as Betty Graham, the old druggist's daughter. James A. Bliss, who is stage director for the players, is also an actor of repute, appearing here last season as Jimmie in "Baby Mine." He will appear with the players in "The Fortune Hunter," and in other plays when his work behind the scenes will permit.

Seattle Refuses Worm-Eaten Spuds from California.

Courts to Be Asked to Force Dealers to Stop Shipping Mould-Infected Tubers to Northern Market.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 26.—(Special.)—F. N. Rhodes, district horticultural inspector, after condemning a number of carloads of potatoes shipped from California to this market, has determined to invoke the aid of the criminal courts in punishing those responsible for attempting to force wormy spuds on Seattle consumers.

A carload of potatoes shipped from Sacramento to a Seattle commission firm on August 18 was destroyed. Inspector Rhodes says he found the potatoes badly infected with potato tuber moths, and that he took 105 infected potatoes from the car.

Mr. Rhodes, backed by J. H. Perkins, Commissioner of Agriculture at Olympia, some time ago sent a circular to California shippers, warning them that hereafter all potatoes shipped into the state and found to be infected would be burned.

"This moth," said Mr. Rhodes, "is the most dangerous pest known. A few years ago it destroyed nearly the entire crop of Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, India, China, South Africa and Jamaica, and is now a grave menace to California."

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE KILLING OF C. A. BRODDIE.

Wife of Murdered Man Tells Pathetic Story of Effort to Shield Husband From Danger.

How husband and wife competed to protect each other from a drink-maddened gun wielder, was the pathetic story told in Municipal Court yesterday by Mrs. Charles A. Broddie, whose husband was shot and killed last week in Seaside, by Peter Mueller.

"I saw him draw the weapon," she said, with a breaking voice, and I rushed forward to get between him and my husband. My husband saw the danger and tried to get in front of me, but I managed to hold him off. Then this man shot around my shoulder and my husband said, 'I'm hit.'"

SIX OF DANIEL J. JORDON SELECTED

Four Who Will Decide Fate of Accused White Slaver Are Wealthy Men.

COURTROOM KEPT CLEAR

Defendant Faces Four Charges but Is Not Accused of Buying Tickets to Take Sacramento Girls to Reno, Nev.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Six men have been chosen to sit on the jury that will try F. Drew Caminetti on the indictment charging him with violating the Mann white-slave act. When the first day of the trial was over, this was the sum of the work done. Counsel believes that the jury that will hear the case will be empaneled by tomorrow.

Three of these jurors are men who were selected from the box office unqualified to sit for various reasons when the talesmen were being examined during the trial of Maury I. Diggs, friend and companion of Caminetti, who was convicted last Wednesday in the same court on a similar charge. Four of them are men of wealth, one being Francis J. Carolan, society leader of Burlingame and Newport, charging him with a million-dollar fine.

Of the six, five are older than the defendant, who is 28, and one, Charles O. Clausen, younger. All but Clausen are men of family.

Under the regular rule of the court, temporarily suspended in the trial of Diggs, but put into effect again today, peremptory challenges must be exercised following the examination of each juror. The defense has already used five of its ten peremptories and the Government attorneys have used four of the six allowed.

Caminetti is being tried under four counts of an indictment which charges that he transported Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, Sacramento girls, to Reno, Nev., on March 19, for immoral purposes, after having persuaded and induced them to go. No accusation is made in the case of Diggs, his companion, in declaring they will insist on proper protection of foreigners and their interests, though they will urge foreigners to leave the trouble zone.

The crowds of spectators that were in attendance during the trial of Diggs were absent from the courtroom today. Only prospective jurors filled the courtroom.

Notes Still Being Exchanged Between Lind and Gamboa.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—President Wilson's personal representative, Lord Lind, and Frederico Gamboa, the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, are again exchanging notes on the subject of relations between the respective governments, notwithstanding that Mr. Lind already has left the capital and that President Wilson's other agent, William Bayard Hale, has planned to leave tomorrow.

Senator Gamboa's note, which he says is in reply to one he received from the American envoy, was sent to Mr. Lind as yet. Mr. Gamboa's note, which the Foreign Minister is reticent as to the character of the exchanges, but unofficially it is said they will not alter the situation.

The government understands that Mr. Lind will leave Vera Cruz for the United States Thursday. Mr. Hale's instructions are to leave here tomorrow and sail on Friday.

That Mr. Lind left the capital perhaps a day or two before Washington expected him to is indicated by the arrival here of W. W. Canada, Consul at Vera Cruz, on orders from the State Department to meet and accompany Mr. Lind to Vera Cruz. The envoy had already been offered by President Huerta. Senator Gamboa was told that the officials at Washington appeared to believe that Mr. Lind's return to the Mexican capital was not improbable.

"Mr. Lind will be entirely welcome in Mexico should he wish to return," replied the minister.

Though somewhat reassured by the press dispatches from Washington indicating that the Administration is still strongly opposed to intervention, there still is intense anxiety on the part of the foreign residents as well as Mexicans. Trains for Vera Cruz today carried away many Americans and many more have planned to go tomorrow.

The following statement was issued at the Foreign Office tonight: "In order to calm the natural anxiety of the public, the entire series of negotiations which have been carried on with Mr. Lind, the confidential agent of President Wilson, Senator Gamboa declares that up to the present there is no reason for alarm."

"Since the beginning he has tried to maintain a conciliatory attitude, although at the same time a dignified one, and if the President of the United States considers it opportune to submit to Congress the status of the negotiations, then Mexico is relieved from the tacit assumption that the customs observed in negotiations of this class not to give premature publicity and will hasten then, and only then, to make public the entire series of documents which have been received or which may be received at that date."

ONE SUSPECT STILL HELD

Police Release Men Arrested in Connection With Train Robbery.

With the freeing of Leo Furlong, the suspect arrested by Sheriff Word last week ago in connection with the investigation of the holdup and robbery of an O.-W. R. & N. train in Sullivan's Gulch last Tuesday, and the release of Angelo Rossi, one of two arrested by Detectives Hyde and Vaughn under orders from Chief of Police Clark, those investigating the affair have but one suspect now in jail. This is Vallin, an ex-convict. Nothing connecting Rossi, Furlong or Vallin with the crime has been found.

Swimming Feet Is Fatal.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 26.—(Special.)—Because he overestimated his swimming prowess, Carroll Jaskowski, 17 years of age, son of Frank Jaskowski, a prominent Mason and mechanical superintendent of the Statesman Publishing Company, was drowned late this afternoon. Kenneth Pennabaker, a companion of Jaskowski, made a desperate effort to save the boy and almost lost his life in doing so.
