Failure of the junior counsel to make a speech, which was the principal reason given by M. J. MacMahon for a new trial in the damage action brought by John Perius against the Portland Lumber Company, was held by Judge Gatens yesterday to be insufficient cause for a retrial. Mr. MacMahon said thatshis associate, a young man just out of an Eastern law school, had a severe attack of stage fright and was unable to address more than a dozen words to the jury. Had he himself presented the argument, he declared his
