Outlook Now Is Measure Will Not Become Law Until Regular Session.

LONG DEBATE IS CERTAIN Diggs to the point where Diggs said

Members Will Lose Mileage Unless There Is Recess, and This Is Considerable Item in Case of Western Men.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Aug. 28,-It is common bellef around the Senate that the currency bill will not become a law during the present special session, but will be thrust over into the regular session, to be voted on finally some time in December or January. This does not mean that there is expectation that the present session will adjourn does not mean that there is expectation that the present session will adjourn or recess after the passage and signa-ture of the tariff bill, for that hope has been abandoned. It means merely that the Senste cannot consider and pass the currency bill in two months. There is no definite way of deter-mining just when the tariff bill will pass the Senate but the best judges think it will not reach a final vote inside of two weeks, and three weeks is a more popular guess. However, after the tariff bill is passed by the Senate its troubles are not over, for it must then go back to the House, where the Senate amendments will be disagreed to, and the bill sent to a conference committee for adjustment of differences between the two houses Conference May Take Fortnight. Notwithstanding the prediction of Representative Underwood that an Greement can be reached without dif-ficulty, it is doubtful if the bull can be brought out of the conference committee in less than a week, and it may require two weeks to adjust the points of difference. At any rate it now appears that it will be late if Sectember before the will be late in September before the tariff bill is sent to President Wilson for his approval. Until the tariff bill becomes a law by the signature of the

No member of the Senate believes for a minute that that body can con-clude the debate on the currency bill in two months, for this is a question which Democrats, as well as Republi-cans, propose to discuss at length, whereas many Democrats have re-frained from discussing the tariff bill, at the behast of the marty leaders Two frained from discussing the tariff bill, at the behest of the party leaders. Two months from October 1 would be the opening of the regular session, and if consideration of the currency bill is not completed in the Senate by that time, it must be continued in the reg-ular session. The unfiniahed business of the present special session will go right along in the ensuing regular ses-sion as though there had been one continuous session. If, along about November 15 It be-comes evident that the currency bill

It, along about November 15 it be-comes evident that the currency bill cannot be passed before the time for the convening of the regular session, there likely will grow up a demand for adjournment for a week or two, so much for the rest, but because without such a recess Senators and staring her steadfastly in the face with only the width of the alsle between the two tables separating them. The girl turned her head and looked away. Diggs Appears Nonchalant.

Midway between the two tables stood Diggs, who after adjournment had joined his wife. He looked nonchalant-ly first at one woman and then at the other, talking the meanwhile with Caminetti. Beside the defendant stood

A. Caminetti, Jr., his brother. For an instant his eyes met those of Marsha Warrington. She turned up her nose saucily, tossed her head and turned away.

Her story today was a somewhat curtailed repetition of her previous testimony and carried her through the earlier stages of her acquaintance with scandal had surrounded them and began to urge the necessity of flight. Her examination will be resumed tomorrow morning. Other witnesses covered familiar ground-the brief stay at a Reno hotel, the renting of a bungalow, the purchase of supplies and the arrests. It was brought out that Caminetti had resigned his position as a clerk to the State Board of Control in a note writfrom the Lotos saloon, Sucramento, the night of the elopement.

Testimony Indicates Long Trip. The purpose of this testimony was to show that he intended to leave his wife and children for more than a brief stay. Mrs. Caminetti was not in court today nor was the defendant's mother.

mother. Among Diggs' friends it became known today that he is planning to open an architect's office here pending a decision on his petition for a writ of error to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. His counsel have an-nounced that if the Court of Appeals finds against them, they will carry their fight to the Supreme Court. Sentence on Diggs will be pronounced next Tuesday.

Tuesday. Tomorrow will be the last day of the Caminetti trial this week. Lola Norris will follow Marsha Warrington on the stand.

-Every day sees new arrivals in this interesting section-suits that represent the most authentic fashions for the Fall and Winter season. At no time in years have the suits been so beautiful-each garment is a work of true art-in every way they are decidedly different from the suits of last season. -There is the blouse model and the cutaway model-two new styles that promise to be very popular. While we have had suits in the cutaway style, they were not like the coats of this seasonsome taper gracefully back from the front, and others are draped back and held in place with buttons or straps, or perhaps a bit of trimming. The skirts are all draped and many are held in small pleats at the waist line-in fact very few perfectly plain skirts are to be seen.

-The materials are very soft and rich in coloring. There is the wool matelasse, beautiful wool poplins—a new eponge—soft fine serges and cheviots and many novelty materials that are decidedly original. Copper and mahogany shades are noticeable—numerous shades of plum—rich browns taupe, raisin and the always popular navy blue and black.

-The beauty and smartness of these new suits are unequaled anywhere-there are not one or two designs, but literally dozens of styles that retail from $25.00 up to $45.00. Third Floor.

without such a recess Senators and Representatives probably would loss their mileage for the coming regular, session. Mileage is allowed at the rate of 20 cents for each mile traveled by Senators between their homes and Washington, and in the case of Pacific Coast members this amounts to $1200 or more. If there is no recess between the two sessions there can be no legiti-mate demand for mileage, for the law-makers will not have been to their homes between sessiona, and will not be entitled to mileage. $5,750,000.
