THE HAGUE, Aug. 29 .- Andrew Carnegle was the chief speaker today at the unveiling in the Palace of Peace of the bust of Sir William Randol Creamer, originator of the inter-parllamentary peace conferences and for 27 years secretary of the International Arbitration League.

Creamer, a carpenter, rose through his efforts toward international peace to be a member of Parliament. was knighted by King Edward VII and feccived the Nobel peace prize, Mr. Carnegie spoke of Creamer as

"The pioneer in the greatest of all causes—the abolition of war." He then referred to the interdependence of nations, remarking that their annual exchanges in the normal course of trade now amounted to $33,500,000,000 and were rapidly increasing. Leaders Can Demand Peace

Leaders Can Demand Peace.

Giving statistics of Anglo-German trade, Mr. Carnegie said:

"Why should these two Teutonic nations, mother and daughter, quarrei? Why should they not agree to demand peace on the seas, which is essential for this neighborly and enriching exchange? Why not invite our American republic, the granddaughter of Germany, as a Teutonic Nation, to cooperate?

"The only thing required for a world peace agreement is the co-operation of three or four of the leading civilized powers against disturbers."

After paying a tribute to the Russian Emperor for calling the first peace conference, Mr. Carnegie said: "Surveying the world today, the most striking figure to be seen is that of an-other Emperor—the German Emperor— who recently celebrated his 25th year of a peaceful reign.

Germany Urged to Act.

"If the German Emperor were to invite the chief nations to confer on the best methods for securing and insuring the world's peace, success would certainly follow."

Mr. Carnegie then related how Dr. Andrew White, ex-United States Ambassador at St. Petersburg and Berlin, had left the first conference at The Hague when the German delegation was about to withdraw and by an appeal to the German Emperor had obtained its continued attendance. He suggested a repetition of the pilgrimage and an appeal to the German Emperor to call another conference, addperor to call another conference, add-

"Men killing each other like wild beasts in civilized landa would no longer disgrace humanity. Civilization would have supplanted barbarism, and God speed that day, which I am certain will come and come soon. Man was created to ascend, and by the law of his being he must march upward and onward to perfection. Be of good cheer, soldlers of peace. All goes well in this most holy of all crusades, There can be no such word as fail."

Barbarism Arouses World.

Right Hon. Thomas Burt, dean of the British House of Commons, replied to Mr. Carnegie. He said that all things pointed favorably to the realiz-ation of Cremer's dream of universal peace, despite the Balkan war. barbaric horror of this war, Mr. Burt added, would arouse a world-wide feel-ing of revulsion and bring the peace advocates nearer their objective.

The visitors were to play the part of Nero, who tore off some music while Rome was burning, but Chicago declined to carry out its part of the plan and burn.

The same rule applied tonight but was greatly modified because the Portland visitors have been so extensively entertained, and have lost so much sleep, that it would have taken an extraordinary fire to have aroused them. Today they were taken for long rides through the parks in the cool, bracing air that begets an appetite and a desire for much sleep. They were guests of honor at a nearby theater tonight and wound up the day with an impromptu banquet in the College Inn. SAN FRANCISCO. Aug. 29.—The trial of F. Drew Caminetti rolled swiftly today in the groove worn for it by the trial immediately preceding of Maury I. Diggs, convicted of the same charge. Marsha Warrington had the stand for the greater part of the day, and her testimony on direct examination went to show that Caminetti was guilty of assisting in transporting her and Loia Norris from Sacramento to Reno in violation of the Mann white slave traffic act, and that he persuaded, induced and enticed them to go.

The effort of the defense was to show that Caminetti had played a passive part in the whole affair. One sive part in the whole affair. One phase of the cross-examination represents the whole trend.

Court Interrupts Defense. "At the meeting of Diggs, Caminetti,

"At the meeting of Diggs, Caminetti, Miss Norris and yourself on the Saturday before you left for Reno—the meeting at which you two girls agreed to go—Mr. Diggs did all the talking and Mr. Caminetti stood by and agreed to everything—is that the way you wish it understood?"

"Mr. Caminetti agreed to everything," was the answer.

"But he agreed passively, did he?"
Here the court interrupted.

"Is it your theory, Mr. Howe," asked Judge Van Fleet, "that Mr. Caminetti was taken along also?"

"Our theory is, your honor, that Mr. Caminetti had nothing to do with taking these girls to Reno. The party went and he went along with it. We don't contend that he was abducted, but we hold that because of certain conditions that party of four found it necessary to leave Sacramento without delay, and they took the first train leaving the city without regard to its destination."

Witness Not Shaken. Against this contention was the tes-timony of Miss Warrington today that Caminetti had got the money for the trip and that he had given $20 of it to Lola Norris, out of which she should buy her passage. In this statement and in her repeated affirmations that Caminetti had agreed to everything Diggs had proposed, the witness was not shaken.

Mrs. Caminetti will also testify in his behalf, as she did for Diggs. Mrs. Diggs will not testify, nor will her husband. In court today with Caminetti, were only his brother, A. Caminetti, ir., and his mother. With Marsha Warrington were her sister and cousin.

The trouble between the unions made it impossible to reach an agreement for the engagement of a band to hold the big parade, and, not deeming it advisable to hold a celebration without music, the leaders agreed to abandon the entire programme.
