Protests from all sections of the state have been received by members of the Board of Pardons against consideration of the application. Orchard was sentenced to be hanged, but his life was saved through commutation.

Orchard is a model prisoner and leads the religious services among the convicts. His occupation is making and mending shoes for his fellow convicts.

"The association has purchased the copyright of my book," said Orchard. "Bome time ago the association wrote to me asking what I thought about a pardon for myself. Yesterday was Manning's day off and he was on his way to the cattle show at Vancouver, but after he had show at Vancouver, but after he had seen Turner revived, wrung out his trousers and recovered his coat, he had his suit pressed. By that time it was too late to go to Vancouver. When he reported on duty at 7 o'clock last night he had to be positively ordered by his captain before he would even consent to have his picture taken.

I were crossing it again tonight and someone was drowning I'd do the same thing all over again. Why not? That's what a fireman's for, isn't it—to save people? I don't see why I should get any medal for that."

Manning's deed may win him a David Campbell hero medal, if not a Carnegie medal besides. When City Commissioner Bigelow learned what Manning had done he began an investigation to see if the award of a David Campbell medal, the first since the establishment of the reward system for bravery by firemen, could not be made. The peculiar technical point that Manning was not on duty at the time he saved Turner, it is said, may stand in the way. But there are no such restrictions to Carnegie hero medals.

On the night of December 39, 1996, ex-Governor Steunenberg was murdered as he entered the gate at his home in Caldwell. The explosion of a planted bomb blew him to pieces. Orchard, who had been seen about Caldwell several days before, was arrested and confessed. He implicated Charles H. Moyer, president; William D. Haywood secretary, and George A. Haywood and Pettibone were tried in this city and acquitted. Moyer was dismissed after the second trial.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COL-LEGE, Corvallis, Sept. 10.—(Special.)—
An increase of 30 per cent in the num-ber of students attending the Oregon Agricultural College during the year 1913-14, is the estimate of Registrar H.
M. Tennant, based on the number of credentials and applications received to date, as compared with the number received at a corresponding date last year. Should these estimates prove correct the increase will number 410 and the total attendance will reach 1754. Most of the countles of Oregon, most states of the Nation, and most countles of Europe, Asia and our foreign possessions, will be represented in the student body. Japan and China will, as usual, send large delegations, while Sweden and Greece will be represented. esented.

The problem of providing homes for so large a number of students has been solved by the people of Corvallis, who more liberally than ever before have offered living accommodations in their homes. Cauthorn Hall, hitherto used as a young men's dormitory, has been remodeled into a hall for women. After a house-to-house canvass of the town for homes for students lists of those available were printed by Mr. Howell, general secretary of the stu-dent Y. M. C.
