Venice cast away the final game of the series with Portland yesterday, 4-2, and, like the Sacramento Wolves in their recent "crucial" series here, slunk away last night in third place. The victory gave Portland four games of the gix and increased the locals' firstplace lead to seven full games.

place lead to seven full games.

The engagement was a freak in that the Tigers garnered but two hits, yet forced McCredle to utilize three of his star boxmen. One of the safeties was a home run over the right wall by Dickle Bayless in the eighth.

As another freaky sidelight Patsy O'Hourke, of Venice, produced 4500 wild guffaws by stealing second base with Bayless already perched on that stuffed station in the fourth inning. The signal slipup ruined Hogan's chances for a nice young rally, for the fourth was our worst inning.

Portland used Hagerman, James and Krause on the twirling mound; Venice

Krause on the twirling mound; Venice Perguson and Hitt.

Hagerman Goes Wild.

Hagerman was unhittable, but Mac thought it best to bench him after Rip had portioned out two walks in the fourth and begun by walking the first two men up in the fifth. James relieved him, and though Bill walked and lieved him, and though Bill walked another and filled the bases, he extricated himself from the tangle without harm. Krause batted for James in the sixth and pitched the last three innings. It was off the crack southpaw that Bayless secured his prize-winning homer. The visitors looked anything but of pennant stripe. Hap's Tabbles booted the ball around like a bevy of collegians, and, while Ferguson was hit freely in his four innings, tight support would have blanketed must of the scoring.

Catcher Elliott had a particularly bad day. "Rowdy" raged and fumed at Litschi when that mortal pegged wide to the plate in the initial inning and let Chadbourne filter across. Yet "Rowdy" virtually handed over the next two runs in the second inning.

Elliott's Heave Costly. Elliott's Heave Costly.

Elliott failed to flag Gus Fisher stealing second base. Ferguson then walked Davis and when these two flashed the double steal sign Elliott threw the ball into left field. Carlisle reciprocated by returning it into the Venice playing dugout and both Fisher and Davis registered.

man with the victory.

Venice chalked up its first tally in the fourth on Litschi's sacrifice fly with the bases full. Davis' poor throw to first got Hagerman in trouble in this frame, but Rip added to his woes by walking Bayless and O'Rourke.

O'Rourke Pulls Boner. Hogan's striped band might have ignited some fireworks at this juncture but for O'Rourke's laugable theft of second with that bag already occupied. Gus Fisher diagnosed the case instanter cornered Bayless off second for the hird out of the inning. Chadbourne started off on another batting rampage by whacking three hits down the third base line, Lober secured two hits and a walk. Derrick was back at first base for the locals, his first appearance since the recent rumpus with Patterson.

Not often is a player applanded after losing a ball game. Chet Chadbourne's popularity was attested by the ovation given him as he tripped to bat in the first inning. The fact that his error Saturday contributed largely to the Portland defeat didn't feaze ttle Dickey Bayless secured two homers

Little Dickey Bayless secured two homes in the series.

Rain in the forencen kept hundreds of fans away from the park, but Business Manager Metrger gave the attendance out as 4500.

"This boy Davis looks better to me every fay," murmured Manager McCredie, after the game. "Kores is supposed to be ready for service Tuesday, but I den't know whether I'll use him or not. Davis is great on gound balls and, take it from me, he will hit as soon as he gots over his nervous.
