Auditor Barbur Says Redeeming Issue All at Once Is Not Best Way.

ORDINANCE IS REQUESTED

Official Declares Generators Benefiting Should Pay, and Practice of Refunding Tends to Impair Community's Credit.

Following a detailed investigation of the bonded indebtedness problem in Portland, City Auditor Barbur yesterday prepared a report to the City Commission asking that a measure be put in force...

She declared that she had not assailed the judge in her City Hall Park speech, but on the contrary had praised him as an object of the need of recall of judges. To her amazement the judge discharged her.

The judge suggested that she might wish to explain her outbreak in court yesterday, but she did not respond. The judge said he would reduce her $100 fine to $10. 'Till not pay it,' she shouted.

'Don't get sassy,' said the judge, shaking his head at her. 'The fine is remitted anyhow,' said the judge. 'Waving his hand to the audience the judge said: 'You saw how easy it was for me to let Kate go.'

Court Asks After Women. 'What became of the woman with the two children asked the judge. He was told that Mrs. McNally would be released from jail tonight. The judge then inquired about the woman with the children, the name of Spencer, and remitted the fine against her.

SERVICE DUE SOON

Electric on Fourth by January, Says Strahorn.

RAILWAY RUSHING WORK

Portland, Eugene & Eastern Co-operates With Other Utility Companies to Hurry Task of Putting Street in Shape.

Electric cars will be running over the Fourth-street tracks by the first of the year, said Robert E. Strahorn, president of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern, upon his return yesterday from a visit to Spokane.

'We have completed all our work on Fourth street within the city limits,' said Mr. Strahorn, 'and are eager to have the street paved and restored to traffic. We are making constant efforts to co-operate with the other utility companies that are doing work on the street to have it closed as soon as possible. I understand that we have been subjected to a great deal of criticism because of the disorder in the street, but so far as our company is concerned we have been ready to restore it for weeks. We are as eager as anyone to have the street reopened.'

NEEDLESS NOISE MAY GO

Seattle Names Long List of Sleep Disturbers.

Shouting by Newsboys on Sunday and Crowding of Roosters Are Disapproved.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Those who have insisted that the blithe pastime of rattling a lawnmower under the neighbor's windows or shouting of newsboys on a quiet Sunday morning are unnecessary noises soon will have their opinions branded with the stamp of official approval.

The new committee appointed by the City Council to find out how much of the rattle and bang of Seattle was unnecessary will report in a few days that it considers the following noises more or less unnecessary: Factory whistles, mechanical musical instruments, such as the contraptions that play in front of moving-picture theaters; shouting of automobiles and motorcycles, lawnmowers run too early in the morning hours, firecrackers and other noises on the Fourth of July, on New Year's eve; the crying of newsboys on Sunday morning, Klaxon horns on automobiles, railroad and steam whistles, whistles on trolleys, etc.

In addition to this formal list which the committee will send to the Council as forming at least a part of its opinion on unnecessary noises, a crowd of roosters, the barking of dogs and the chugging of motorboats; but whether the noises can be regulated satisfactorily is questionable, in the opinion of the committee. Its labors completely, and may add a certain number of noises between now and the time when its report goes to the council. The first action probably will be a recommendation to the Council that steps be taken to enforce legislation, and subsequent recommendations will be for additional legislation where required.

SALOON IS THOUGHT BANK

Rev. William H. Selleck, Recently From North Yakima, Wash., Gets In 'Bank' Liquor Dispensary and Lands Church Visitor.

THE DALLES, Or., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—Mistaking a saloon for a banking institution and entering the place where liquor is dispensed with the plan of making a cash deposit, was the other day by the Rev. William H. Selleck, who recently arrived here from North Yakima, Wash., to fill the pulpit of the local Methodist church.

A stranger in The Dalles, the clergyman started out the morning after he arrived here to open an account at a bank. Going into the business district he noticed a large, imposing-looking structure. It was not until he was completely inside the place that he realized that he was in the 'Bank Saloon,' instead of a real bank. However, he was not appalled. Instead of beating a hasty retreat, as many would have, he walked up to the bartender and said: 'My name is Selleck. I am the new pastor of the Methodist church.'
