DRUM CORPS IS FETED

VANCOUVER GRAND ARMY FOLK ENTERTAIN VETERANS.

Martial Music Stirs Enthusiasm of Younger People—Dinner Is Served in Library Hall.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—The Oregon Drum Corps, all residents of Oregon except Abe Axtel, of this city, were guests here yesterday of the Ellsworth Post No. 2, the Women's Relief Corps and the Lew Wallace Post and Relief Corps, of Orchard. A big dinner was served at noon in the library hall, and then the old drummers and fifers stirred the enthusiasm of the entire juvenile population in that vicinity with martial music.

The oldest musician present was John Kelly, 77, and the youngest E. H. Grant, 46, who enlisted with the 142d New York when he was 14 years old.

The members of the drum corps were: Abe Axtel, of Vancouver; E. H. Grant, of John Kelly, of Oregon City; D. J. Horseman, of St. Johns; John Baldwin, of Forest Grove; Charles T. Bascue, of Independence; T. M. Kellogg and J. T. McFolland, of Portland; C. A. Stockwell, of Marquam, and J. T. Butler, of Forest Grove.

After the meeting the drum corps played stirring tunes and the children marched with martial air on the street. All of the members of the organizations gathered on the front steps of the library building.

CITY GRAVE YARD FULL

VANCOUVER HAS SHORTAGE IN BURIAL PLOTS.

Mayor Awaits Permission to Buy New Cemetery—Bodies Cremated Pending Relief.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—There are so few unused plots in the city cemetery that the City Council has taken steps to find the owners of unoccupied lots and buy them back in an effort to relieve the shortage.

The Supreme Court is reported to have granted permission to Mayor Irwin to sign the warrant for $10,000 to buy the Adams tract of 54 acres, east of the city, but neither the Mayor nor his attorneys have heard a word concerning this decision. The warrant is supposed to be in Olympia with the other evidence in the case and meantime the sum of nearly $11,000 is drawn ing interest and has been for more than two years.

At least half a dozen landscape artists and gardeners have visited Vancouver in the hope that something would be done towards finding a new burying-ground for the city. The bodies of several persons who have died since there was a shortage in graves have been cremated. It is suggested that this is the best solution of the problem.

PROGRESSIVES TO MEET

ORGANIZATION OF COUNTY CLUB WILL BE TOPIC.

Announcement of Committees Selected for Bureaus May Be Made Tuesday Night.

Portland Progressives will hold a meeting at the Hotel Oregon tomorrow night to hear reports on the progress made in organizing the "Progressive service" in Oregon. The organization of a Multnomah County Progressive Club will be discussed, and the names of those who have been chosen to serve on the ten bureaus of the "Progressive Service" organization probably will be announced.

"These bureaus will work separately from the regular political organization of the party," said State Chairman Neuhausen last night. "It will be their business to advance Progressive principles in every possible way. For instance, even if the Progressives were to be outnumbered in the next State Legislature—which we do not believe will be the case—these bureaus will continue to work for the enactment of progressive legislation. The work of each bureau is distinct from that of the others.

"These bureaus will be organized in every state in the Union, so that Progressives will have the satisfaction of knowing that when they are working for a certain thing in their own state Progressives in other states are working for exactly the same thing. In this way everything that the Progressive party advances will be made more than a mere local question. It will be a National issue."

The ten "Progressive Service" bureaus are as follows: Chief of Service, a separate bureau; popular government, corporation control, conservation, social and industrial justice, club organization, publicity, speakers, finance, legislative reference.

Each bureau will be limited to a chairman and four members, and some of them will have only two or three members, according to the character of the work.
