

MURDER WARRANT OUT FOR WILKINS

Search for Alleged Slayer of Lou L. Winters Spreads to Other States.

HAIRS MAY FASTEN CRIME

Detectives Depend Much on Three Fibrous Tubes From Human Head Found in Mask—Brother of Slain Man Seeks Suspect.

Lloyd H. Wilkins, wanted for the murder of Lou L. Winters early Sunday morning, was seen yesterday morning at Vancouver, Wash., where he visited the office of the Northern Express Company and asked to have a check for $71 cashed.

Wilkins entered the express office a little after 5 o'clock and made himself known to E. D. Sanders, an employee of the company, who lives at 305 East Twenty-second street, south. He presented a railroad identification card and told Mr. Sanders that he wanted a money order. Mr. Sanders told him that he would show the check and the card to S. J. Miller, ticket agent, but this Wilkins in anger refused.

Sanders says Wilkins wore a black derby hat and tan shoes and had light sandy hair.

The detectives later learned that Wilkins visited the home of Jeweler Rice and induced Mrs. Rice to go to a nearby grocery store, where his check was cashed.

With a state warrant charging murder sworn out against him by the brother of the murdered man, Lloyd H. Wilkins, the engineer wanted in connection with the killing of Lou L. Winters, is still at large, but he is being sought vigorously.

Telegrams were sent to principal points in the Coast states, to Kootenai Falls, Idaho, where Wilkins' sister lives, and to Superior, Wis., where F. L. Wilkins, father of the wanted man, Wilkins' brother and brother-in-law, lives. The theory that he had fled East is only a surmise on the part of the police, because investigation during the past few days he is alleged to have been in Portland and that he had not much more than a dollar in his possession.

Further investigation by the detectives detailed by Detective Captain Baty have failed to reveal other than corroborative evidence agreeing with the clues gathered Sunday, say the officials.

A. J. Winters, brother of the dead man, and the complainant in the warrant out against Wilkins, placed his automobile at the service of the detectives yesterday morning, and in their company toured through the North End, the out-lying residence sections, railroad and street shops and other places where it was thought Wilkins possibly was in hiding. Mr. Winters has turned his business over to assistants and is devoting all his time to searching for the alleged murderer of his brother.

Use of a newly adopted addition to the Bertillon system, of which the peculiarities of human hair, and the distinctiveness of each sample taken, are features, will be brought into play, according to announcement made yesterday, in case Wilkins is caught. Three hairs, caught in the nap of the felt of the mask used by the murderer, correspond superficially with the description furnished by the detective of Wilkins' scanty growth and these are locked up in a safe at the police station and will be carefully kept.

Mr. Winters, who is a member of the formula to discover erased blood, also have apparatus with which to magnify and classify human hair, to two and three times its natural size. This the police will use in connection with the evidence gathered, which is purely circumstantial.

Funeral arrangements for Mr. Winters have not been definitely set, but either will be Wednesday or Thursday, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity.

WIFE SOUGHT AT CORNELIUS

Merchant's Mate Confused With Spouse of Wilkins.

CORNELIUS, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—Suspecting that Mrs. Ernest Wilkins, wife of a local merchant, was his wife, Lloyd H. Wilkins, Winters' slayer-suspect, was in Cornelius Saturday trying to locate her. He said the person whom he sought was his sister. He gave his name, address, engineering union number, and other information about himself.

Wilkins traced Mrs. Wilkins through the Y. W. C. A. of which both the brother and his wife are members. He said he found his wife's Y. W. C. A. card in the Winters residence. By a strange coincidence Mrs. Wilkins and Mrs. J. A. Lemmon, who also lives here, were in the Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon when Wilkins entered and inquired for Mrs. Wilkins, saying she was his wife. The two local women saw him at that time. Later he was directed to Cornelius. When he told Mrs. Lemmon here that he was in search of his sister he was confronted with the fact that in Portland he had said the woman he sought was his wife. He admitted it, but gave the excuse that he had passed himself off both as his wife and as his sister but was really his sister. He said her father had come out from Superior, Wis., to locate her and that both were using every effort to locate her. Wilkins returned to Portland on an Oregon Electric train in the forenoon.

FALLS CITY PETITION FILED

Drys Want Special Election, 102 Signatures Being Obtained.

MONMOUTH, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—Falls City, 12 miles west of Monmouth, has petitioned the Polk County Court for a special election for November 4, to decide whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquor shall be prohibited in that city. The petition bears the signatures of 72 citizens, 30 of which are women.

LINE EXTENSION PROMISED

Company Will Build to Eighty-Second Street for $21,000.

The Portland Railway, Light & Power Company has agreed to build the railway extension on East Halsey street and the Barr road from East Thirty-

OFFICERS BAILED FOR SHIP'S WRECK

Licenses of Captain and Second Mate of Glenesslin Temporarily Suspended.

SKIPPER TELLS HIS STORY

Disaster Attributed to Inexperience of Assistants and Charges of Intemperance Are Denied. Court Expresses Regrets.

Findings of the court of inquiry imposed to determine responsibility for the loss of the British ship Glenesslin at Nearney Mountain, October 1, as announced yesterday at the office of British Consul Thomas Erskine, were that the license of Captain Owen Williams as master be suspended for a period of three months and the license of Second Mate John K. Colefield be suspended for six months. British Consul Erskine said the penalties imposed were deemed just, but that himself and other members of the court, Captain Davidson, of the Lord Templeton, and Captain Dalton, of the steamer Border Knight, did not feel compelled to pronounce them.

The result of the investigation was summarized as follows: Captain Owen Williams, who was negligent in his duty and the court orders that his certificate as master be suspended for three months.

That the first mate, L. W. Hawarth, is reprimanded for not acting immediately on the being notified of the danger, but was not notified in time to save the ship.

That the second mate was acting under orders, but showed great negligence in running as close to shore as he did, and also when the master did not answer his second call, in not taking immediate action in ordering the crew to wear ship in the critical position in which he considered the vessel to be.

That the third mate, J. W. H. Jones, orders that his certificate as second mate be suspended for a term of six months.

Captain Williams made the following statement yesterday, this being the first time he has recounted in detail events leading up to the wreck:

"First of all, September 29, was coming inshore and at night time I sent hands aloft to see if we could pick up any lights, as I had not seen anything after leaving Santos. At this time we were steering a course for the Columbia River. Next day the wind came from the northwest and north-northwest, which had a tendency to blow the ship about 8:30 P. M. we sighted Tillamook Bay light, which put the ship in the position where I expected to see her.

"We came inshore until 1:30 A. M. and then we tacked ship to the westward. Then we were about eight miles from Tillamook Bay light. This is also where the inshore tugboat, the Oregon, was working at the time. We stood out to the westward until 3 A. M., sailing about five or six miles an hour. At 8 A. M. we tacked inshore again, heading about 135 degrees. At 8:20 A. M. took observations for longitude. At noon I found my latitude. After working out both, found my position 45:38 north, longitude 124:26 west.

Position Is Determined. "The mate's position, also 45:38 north, 124:26 west, made my position 20 miles offshore. At 10:30 A. M. I was on deck and on for two nights, as I had not seen any lights or any land for 124 days, and I was very anxious to find out whether or not the mate's position was correct. Of course, on sighting Tillamook Bay light, I found that the chronometer was correct. At that time it was 11:30 A. M. I was on deck after being on deck at night. I went to the chartroom and lay down, fully dressed, and told the second mate to call me sharp at 12:00 A. M. He did not say the ship was approaching land, I did not come out immediately, as I had not been warned of any danger. A few minutes later the second mate came to call me and said that the ship was getting pretty close inshore. "I at once jumped out and found the ship was pretty close. The first thing I did was to get the ship's log and to put his helm 'hard up' and called all hands on deck to take in the mainsail and crossjack and square yards and to get the ship around as quickly as possible.

"The only way for some people to save their own necks is by cutting another's neck in this case by killing the master. In my opinion, if I had had experienced officers, I would have never been in this case. Both officers were about 22 years old.

"I have many friends here whom I have known for years who can testify as to my sobriety. I was not intoxicated at the time the ship was nearing shore or after, and further, I have never been under the influence of liquor.

Captain Williams will remain in the city a few days to adjust all affairs of the ship and then proceed to England. Four of the sailors have gone by the steamer to Seattle, the rest will sail on the German bark Thielbek. The six apprentices are to be sent home on the British ship Westgate.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. C. Keeney, of Eugene, is at the Oregon.

W. E. Meacham, of Baker, is at the Imperial.

Mrs. E. H. Taylor, of Corvallis, is at the Annex.

Otis Patterson, of Canyon City, is at the Imperial.

Henry Tohl is registered at the Carlton from Nehalem.

Arthur E. McDevitt, of San Francisco, is at the Multnomah.

O. G. Shellberg is registered at the Imperial from Salem.

Miss Alice G. Kennard, of San Francisco, is at the Annex.

W. E. Dixon, of La Grande, is registered at the Imperial.

Dr. A. J. McIntyre, of Hoquiam, is registered at the Oregon.

A. W. Rider is registered at the Cornelius from Oakland, Cal.

Dr. M. H. Mullan, of Centerville, Wash., is at the Cornelius.

Edwin N. Patton, of Hillsdale, Or., is registered at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nelson, of Spokane, are at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gleason, of Vancouver, B. C., are at the Annex.

OFFICERS BAILED FOR SHIP'S WRECK

Licenses of Captain and Second Mate of Glenesslin Temporarily Suspended.

SKIPPER TELLS HIS STORY

Disaster Attributed to Inexperience of Assistants and Charges of Intemperance Are Denied. Court Expresses Regrets.

Findings of the court of inquiry imposed to determine responsibility for the loss of the British ship Glenesslin at Nearney Mountain, October 1, as announced yesterday at the office of British Consul Thomas Erskine, were that the license of Captain Owen Williams as master be suspended for a period of three months and the license of Second Mate John K. Colefield be suspended for six months. British Consul Erskine said the penalties imposed were deemed just, but that himself and other members of the court, Captain Davidson, of the Lord Templeton, and Captain Dalton, of the steamer Border Knight, did not feel compelled to pronounce them.

The result of the investigation was summarized as follows: Captain Owen Williams, who was negligent in his duty and the court orders that his certificate as master be suspended for three months.

That the first mate, L. W. Hawarth, is reprimanded for not acting immediately on the being notified of the danger, but was not notified in time to save the ship.

That the second mate was acting under orders, but showed great negligence in running as close to shore as he did, and also when the master did not answer his second call, in not taking immediate action in ordering the crew to wear ship in the critical position in which he considered the vessel to be.

That the third mate, J. W. H. Jones, orders that his certificate as second mate be suspended for a term of six months.

Captain Williams made the following statement yesterday, this being the first time he has recounted in detail events leading up to the wreck:

"First of all, September 29, was coming inshore and at night time I sent hands aloft to see if we could pick up any lights, as I had not seen anything after leaving Santos. At this time we were steering a course for the Columbia River. Next day the wind came from the northwest and north-northwest, which had a tendency to blow the ship about 8:30 P. M. we sighted Tillamook Bay light, which put the ship in the position where I expected to see her.

"We came inshore until 1:30 A. M. and then we tacked ship to the westward. Then we were about eight miles from Tillamook Bay light. This is also where the inshore tugboat, the Oregon, was working at the time. We stood out to the westward until 3 A. M., sailing about five or six miles an hour. At 8 A. M. we tacked inshore again, heading about 135 degrees. At 8:20 A. M. took observations for longitude. At noon I found my latitude. After working out both, found my position 45:38 north, longitude 124:26 west.

Position Is Determined. "The mate's position, also 45:38 north, 124:26 west, made my position 20 miles offshore. At 10:30 A. M. I was on deck and on for two nights, as I had not seen any lights or any land for 124 days, and I was very anxious to find out whether or not the mate's position was correct. Of course, on sighting Tillamook Bay light, I found that the chronometer was correct. At that time it was 11:30 A. M. I was on deck after being on deck at night. I went to the chartroom and lay down, fully dressed, and told the second mate to call me sharp at 12:00 A. M. He did not say the ship was approaching land, I did not come out immediately, as I had not been warned of any danger. A few minutes later the second mate came to call me and said that the ship was getting pretty close inshore. "I at once jumped out and found the ship was pretty close. The first thing I did was to get the ship's log and to put his helm 'hard up' and called all hands on deck to take in the mainsail and crossjack and square yards and to get the ship around as quickly as possible.

"The only way for some people to save their own necks is by cutting another's neck in this case by killing the master. In my opinion, if I had had experienced officers, I would have never been in this case. Both officers were about 22 years old.

"I have many friends here whom I have known for years who can testify as to my sobriety. I was not intoxicated at the time the ship was nearing shore or after, and further, I have never been under the influence of liquor.

Captain Williams will remain in the city a few days to adjust all affairs of the ship and then proceed to England. Four of the sailors have gone by the steamer to Seattle, the rest will sail on the German bark Thielbek. The six apprentices are to be sent home on the British ship Westgate.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. C. Keeney, of Eugene, is at the Oregon.

W. E. Meacham, of Baker, is at the Imperial.

Mrs. E. H. Taylor, of Corvallis, is at the Annex.

Otis Patterson, of Canyon City, is at the Imperial.

Henry Tohl is registered at the Carlton from Nehalem.

Arthur E. McDevitt, of San Francisco, is at the Multnomah.

O. G. Shellberg is registered at the Imperial from Salem.

Miss Alice G. Kennard, of San Francisco, is at the Annex.

W. E. Dixon, of La Grande, is registered at the Imperial.

Dr. A. J. McIntyre, of Hoquiam, is registered at the Oregon.

A. W. Rider is registered at the Cornelius from Oakland, Cal.

Dr. M. H. Mullan, of Centerville, Wash., is at the Cornelius.

Edwin N. Patton, of Hillsdale, Or., is registered at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nelson, of Spokane, are at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gleason, of Vancouver, B. C., are at the Annex.

OFFICERS BAILED FOR SHIP'S WRECK

Licenses of Captain and Second Mate of Glenesslin Temporarily Suspended.

SKIPPER TELLS HIS STORY

Disaster Attributed to Inexperience of Assistants and Charges of Intemperance Are Denied. Court Expresses Regrets.

Findings of the court of inquiry imposed to determine responsibility for the loss of the British ship Glenesslin at Nearney Mountain, October 1, as announced yesterday at the office of British Consul Thomas Erskine, were that the license of Captain Owen Williams as master be suspended for a period of three months and the license of Second Mate John K. Colefield be suspended for six months. British Consul Erskine said the penalties imposed were deemed just, but that himself and other members of the court, Captain Davidson, of the Lord Templeton, and Captain Dalton, of the steamer Border Knight, did not feel compelled to pronounce them.

The result of the investigation was summarized as follows: Captain Owen Williams, who was negligent in his duty and the court orders that his certificate as master be suspended for three months.

That the first mate, L. W. Hawarth, is reprimanded for not acting immediately on the being notified of the danger, but was not notified in time to save the ship.

That the second mate was acting under orders, but showed great negligence in running as close to shore as he did, and also when the master did not answer his second call, in not taking immediate action in ordering the crew to wear ship in the critical position in which he considered the vessel to be.

That the third mate, J. W. H. Jones, orders that his certificate as second mate be suspended for a term of six months.

Captain Williams made the following statement yesterday, this being the first time he has recounted in detail events leading up to the wreck:

"First of all, September 29, was coming inshore and at night time I sent hands aloft to see if we could pick up any lights, as I had not seen anything after leaving Santos. At this time we were steering a course for the Columbia River. Next day the wind came from the northwest and north-northwest, which had a tendency to blow the ship about 8:30 P. M. we sighted Tillamook Bay light, which put the ship in the position where I expected to see her.

"We came inshore until 1:30 A. M. and then we tacked ship to the westward. Then we were about eight miles from Tillamook Bay light. This is also where the inshore tugboat, the Oregon, was working at the time. We stood out to the westward until 3 A. M., sailing about five or six miles an hour. At 8 A. M. we tacked inshore again, heading about 135 degrees. At 8:20 A. M. took observations for longitude. At noon I found my latitude. After working out both, found my position 45:38 north, longitude 124:26 west.

Position Is Determined. "The mate's position, also 45:38 north, 124:26 west, made my position 20 miles offshore. At 10:30 A. M. I was on deck and on for two nights, as I had not seen any lights or any land for 124 days, and I was very anxious to find out whether or not the mate's position was correct. Of course, on sighting Tillamook Bay light, I found that the chronometer was correct. At that time it was 11:30 A. M. I was on deck after being on deck at night. I went to the chartroom and lay down, fully dressed, and told the second mate to call me sharp at 12:00 A. M. He did not say the ship was approaching land, I did not come out immediately, as I had not been warned of any danger. A few minutes later the second mate came to call me and said that the ship was getting pretty close inshore. "I at once jumped out and found the ship was pretty close. The first thing I did was to get the ship's log and to put his helm 'hard up' and called all hands on deck to take in the mainsail and crossjack and square yards and to get the ship around as quickly as possible.

"The only way for some people to save their own necks is by cutting another's neck in this case by killing the master. In my opinion, if I had had experienced officers, I would have never been in this case. Both officers were about 22 years old.

"I have many friends here whom I have known for years who can testify as to my sobriety. I was not intoxicated at the time the ship was nearing shore or after, and further, I have never been under the influence of liquor.

Captain Williams will remain in the city a few days to adjust all affairs of the ship and then proceed to England. Four of the sailors have gone by the steamer to Seattle, the rest will sail on the German bark Thielbek. The six apprentices are to be sent home on the British ship Westgate.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. C. Keeney, of Eugene, is at the Oregon.

W. E. Meacham, of Baker, is at the Imperial.

Mrs. E. H. Taylor, of Corvallis, is at the Annex.

Otis Patterson, of Canyon City, is at the Imperial.

Henry Tohl is registered at the Carlton from Nehalem.

Arthur E. McDevitt, of San Francisco, is at the Multnomah.

O. G. Shellberg is registered at the Imperial from Salem.

Miss Alice G. Kennard, of San Francisco, is at the Annex.

W. E. Dixon, of La Grande, is registered at the Imperial.

Dr. A. J. McIntyre, of Hoquiam, is registered at the Oregon.

A. W. Rider is registered at the Cornelius from Oakland, Cal.

Dr. M. H. Mullan, of Centerville, Wash., is at the Cornelius.

Edwin N. Patton, of Hillsdale, Or., is registered at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nelson, of Spokane, are at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gleason, of Vancouver, B. C., are at the Annex.

OFFICERS BAILED FOR SHIP'S WRECK

Licenses of Captain and Second Mate of Glenesslin Temporarily Suspended.

SKIPPER TELLS HIS STORY

Disaster Attributed to Inexperience of Assistants and Charges of Intemperance Are Denied. Court Expresses Regrets.

Findings of the court of inquiry imposed to determine responsibility for the loss of the British ship Glenesslin at Nearney Mountain, October 1, as announced yesterday at the office of British Consul Thomas Erskine, were that the license of Captain Owen Williams as master be suspended for a period of three months and the license of Second Mate John K. Colefield be suspended for six months. British Consul Erskine said the penalties imposed were deemed just, but that himself and other members of the court, Captain Davidson, of the Lord Templeton, and Captain Dalton, of the steamer Border Knight, did not feel compelled to pronounce them.

The result of the investigation was summarized as follows: Captain Owen Williams, who was negligent in his duty and the court orders that his certificate as master be suspended for three months.

That the first mate, L. W. Hawarth, is reprimanded for not acting immediately on the being notified of the danger, but was not notified in time to save the ship.

That the second mate was acting under orders, but showed great negligence in running as close to shore as he did, and also when the master did not answer his second call, in not taking immediate action in ordering the crew to wear ship in the critical position in which he considered the vessel to be.

That the third mate, J. W. H. Jones, orders that his certificate as second mate be suspended for a term of six months.

Captain Williams made the following statement yesterday, this being the first time he has recounted in detail events leading up to the wreck:

"First of all, September 29, was coming inshore and at night time I sent hands aloft to see if we could pick up any lights, as I had not seen anything after leaving Santos. At this time we were steering a course for the Columbia River. Next day the wind came from the northwest and north-northwest, which had a tendency to blow the ship about 8:30 P. M. we sighted Tillamook Bay light, which put the ship in the position where I expected to see her.

"We came inshore until 1:30 A. M. and then we tacked ship to the westward. Then we were about eight miles from Tillamook Bay light. This is also where the inshore tugboat, the Oregon, was working at the time. We stood out to the westward until 3 A. M., sailing about five or six miles an hour. At 8 A. M. we tacked inshore again, heading about 135 degrees. At 8:20 A. M. took observations for longitude. At noon I found my latitude. After working out both, found my position 45:38 north, longitude 124:26 west.

Position Is Determined. "The mate's position, also 45:38 north, 124:26 west, made my position 20 miles offshore. At 10:30 A. M. I was on deck and on for two nights, as I had not seen any lights or any land for 124 days, and I was very anxious to find out whether or not the mate's position was correct. Of course, on sighting Tillamook Bay light, I found that the chronometer was correct. At that time it was 11:30 A. M. I was on deck after being on deck at night. I went to the chartroom and lay down, fully dressed, and told the second mate to call me sharp at 12:00 A. M. He did not say the ship was approaching land, I did not come out immediately, as I had not been warned of any danger. A few minutes later the second mate came to call me and said that the ship was getting pretty close inshore. "I at once jumped out and found the ship was pretty close. The first thing I did was to get the ship's log and to put his helm 'hard up' and called all hands on deck to take in the mainsail and crossjack and square yards and to get the ship around as quickly as possible.

"The only way for some people to save their own necks is by cutting another's neck in this case by killing the master. In my opinion, if I had had experienced officers, I would have never been in this case. Both officers were about 22 years old.

"I have many friends here whom I have known for years who can testify as to my sobriety. I was not intoxicated at the time the ship was nearing shore or after, and further, I have never been under the influence of liquor.

Captain Williams will remain in the city a few days to adjust all affairs of the ship and then proceed to England. Four of the sailors have gone by the steamer to Seattle, the rest will sail on the German bark Thielbek. The six apprentices are to be sent home on the British ship Westgate.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. C. Keeney, of Eugene, is at the Oregon.

W. E. Meacham, of Baker, is at the Imperial.

Mrs. E. H. Taylor, of Corvallis, is at the Annex.

Otis Patterson, of Canyon City, is at the Imperial.

Henry Tohl is registered at the Carlton from Nehalem.

Arthur E. McDevitt, of San Francisco, is at the Multnomah.

O. G. Shellberg is registered at the Imperial from Salem.

Miss Alice G. Kennard, of San Francisco, is at the Annex.

W. E. Dixon, of La Grande, is registered at the Imperial.

Dr. A. J. McIntyre, of Hoquiam, is registered at the Oregon.

A. W. Rider is registered at the Cornelius from Oakland, Cal.

Dr. M. H. Mullan, of Centerville, Wash., is at the Cornelius.

Edwin N. Patton, of Hillsdale, Or., is registered at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nelson, of Spokane, are at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gleason, of Vancouver, B. C., are at the Annex.

Women of Middle Age

From 40 to 50 Woman's Critical Period.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, severe headaches, melancholia, dread of impending evil, palpitation of the heart, irregularity, constipation and dizziness are promptly treated by intelligent women who are approaching the period of life.

This is the most critical period of woman's life and she who neglects the care of her health at this time invites incurable disease and pain. Why not be guided by the experience of others and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is an indisputable fact that this grand old remedy has helped thousands of women to pass through this trying period with comfort and safety. Thousands of genuine and honest testimonials support this fact.

From Mrs. HENRY HEAVILIN, Cadiz, Ohio.

Fort Worth, Texas.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and derived great benefit from its use. It carried me safely through the Change of Life when I was in bad health. I had that all gone feeling most of the time, and headache constantly. I was very nervous and the hot flashes were very bad. I had tried other remedies and doctors, but did not improve until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has now been some time since I took the Compound and I have had no return of my complaints. I always praise your remedies to weak women."—Mrs. HENRY HEAVILIN, R. F