

REVEALS DEVELOPS PULLMAN TEAM'S STYLE IS BEST SEEN IN PORTLAND DURING 1913 SEASON.

COACH PRACTICAL TEACHER

Washington State College Under Guidance of Instructor Experienced in Professional and Interscholastic Sports.

When Oliver Goldsmith described his schoolmaster: 'And still they gazed and still the wonder grew That that small head could carry all he knew.'

He struck a theme that fits Johnny Bender, coach of the Washington State College football team.

Although the Pullman boys were defeated 7 to 6 Saturday by Multnomah Club, the style of play of the Bender team was the best seen in Portland this season.

Bender played baseball with the Portland Beavers under the name of Burdette.

He had previously been in the Southern, Western and Northwestern League. He was a catcher and batted .268.

Pearl Casey was a teammate of Bender's every time these two meet their conversation starts thus:

'Do you remember the time we gave you some raw beef for a black eye and you ate it and said you did not see that it benefited you any?'

'Yes, that was the night after we had you stay up all night to look for the subway under the Los Angeles River.'

Bender Lauds McCredie. Bender is wont to reflect on his baseball days and says that his season with the Beavers was the most enjoyable he ever had with a baseball team.

'McCredie is the best manager I ever played with and I thought then and still believe that McCredie is the greatest man on the Coast to develop young players.'

Bender was born in 1882 at Sutton, Neb. He played little football then, but was a star on the track and was captain of a baseball team at high school.

Under his direction the team won the interscholastic championship of Nebraska. He pitched then and was considered a marvel.

In 1900 he entered the University of Nebraska and took up football. He played at the quarter end and in some of the big games.

The following spring he broke out as a sensational pitcher. In that year and four following the University of Nebraska held the baseball championship of the Missouri Valley.

In 1901 Bender was injured in a football game and he had to quit pitching. He then went behind the bat and made good.

Bender was a creditable performer in the 100 and 200-yard dashes and the relay. In 1902 he was a halfback on the Nebraska team that beat the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Bender carried the ball over the line for the lone touchdown. As captain of the Nebraska football team in 1902 Bender carried the ball over the line for the lone touchdown.

As captain of the Nebraska football team in 1902 Bender carried the ball over the line for the lone touchdown. He was the star catcher for the Illinois.

Stahl was the greatest college baseball player I ever met. He was the greatest Illinois ever had. He batted almost .400 against the best pitchers the colleges could put against him and to steal from him was almost an impossibility.

This team won Nebraska twice, but the other Middle Western teams fell down decisively before Nebraska. In 1905 Bender was captain of the baseball team and graduated from college with honors.

He went to Omaha in the middle of the season to attend a school of physical culture in New York. He finished the season with Omaha.

That Fall he did his first football coaching and made a success of the South Dakota Normal School team. In Summer he went back to baseball and was transferred from Little Rock to Omaha in the Western League.

SPORT POT POURRI

THE tour just started by the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first world-circling tour of American baseball players.

It was October 20, 1888, the Chicago National League club and a team known as the All-Americans composed of the stars of the National League and the American Association.

The Chicago Nationals were then known as the White Stockings. The name Cubs was acquired in 1890.

The first tour was started from San Francisco and the first stop was Honolulu. From Hawaii the trouper went to Auckland, New Zealand, Sydney, Melbourne and Melbourne in Australia.

They did not visit Japan, China or the Philippines, which will be the first stop on the present tour. Then they went to Ceylon and the next stop after that was Egypt, where they played in the shadows of the pyramids.

The route throughout Europe included Naples, Rome, Florence, Paris, London, Bristol, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Glasgow, Belfast, Dublin and Queenstown. They left for home and arrived in Chicago April 20, 1889, six months from the day of the start.

Fifty-three games were played, and the tour had the effect of introducing baseball to a point where some lands have been playing it ever since.

On the coming tour more games will be played in Germany and Ireland, countries from which many of the stars come. Ireland has furnished more than any individual country.

The tour will mean the fulfillment of Charles Conroy's dream of a world tour. It has been the ambition of his life to take the White Sox around the world in emulation of the trip made by Pop Anson.

They don't play any better ball in the Class A Western League than they do in the National League. This is the opinion recently expressed by Phil Cooney, formerly shortstop of the Spokane club. He played second with the Spokane city club during the season just closed.

Packey McFarland has expressed a desire to meet Mike Gibbons. The stocky champion makes but the one condition that Gibbons must make 145 pounds. Gibbons claims the water-weight title, and the mixing of the two would certainly make a clever battle.

The National League tied the American in the inter-league clash at St. Louis, but the American League won in every other city. What the National League needs is not a new president but some ball clubs.

Washington State College wants the Oregon Aggies to switch their football game from November 15 to November 14, so the Northwest League witnesses the Oregon-Washington battle on Multnomah Field November 15. The Aggies have taken the matter under consideration, but do not favor it.

Tom Hughes, of the Washington Americans, will likely be seen in the Pacific Coast League next year. The tall pitcher will be one of Hen Berry's recruits per the recent agreement made between Los Angeles and Washington.

The East Portland football team yesterday the Columbia Park aggregation. N. Steiner and Mory scored the touchdowns, while Edwards kicked one goal.

The Brookline football team had an easy time downing the South Portland eleven yesterday afternoon on the winners' grounds. Score, 22 to 0. Perry, King, Shinn and Smdow scored the touchdowns for the winners. The tagging of Abrams, of the losers, was a big feature of the game.

Playing superb ball, the F. E. Watkins football team had little difficulty in showing its superiority over the North Portland eleven of the Archer-systematic records of the Pacific Northwest Amateur Association. T. Morris Dunne, secretary of the association, and George Berts were recently appointed as the record committee of the association.

The appointment of these two men is expected to end the discussion which comes up each time a star makes any kind of good mark.

Griffin and Strachan Beaten. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—Clarence J. Griffin and John R. Strachan, runners up in this year's National lawn tennis championship doubles, went down to defeat today before Elna Pottrell and Byron Batkin, in the final match of the bay counties tournament, the last big tennis fixture of the season on the Pacific Coast. The scores were 6-5, 3-6, 6-1 and 6-4.

Record Committee Named. In keeping with its decision to keep ing in the clubhouse until his teammates were out on the field. Then he sauntered out all alone.

Jack and Jill dashed up the hill, With mounting-climbing ascendency; Jack fell down and broke his crown, But he had nothing on the Giants.

HOQUIAM, Wash., Oct. 26.—No information could be gathered today regarding the leakage of the British tramp steamer Arrino, which struck on the south spit Saturday morning while attempting to cross over the Gray's Harbor bar.

The captain of the steamer was called on, with equipment ready, refused to give any information about the survey. Lloyd's surveyor, from Seattle, made an examination of the steamer, but refused to give out any information as to the condition of the hull and the damage done.

The British ship Yeoman left up at 8 A. M. yesterday to load lumber at Prescott.

The steamer Breakwater arrived at 12 P. M. yesterday from Coos Bay with 10 passengers and a full cargo. Captain MacGinn joined the ship at Coos Bay after an illness of two months. Captain Nelson will return to San Francisco.

The coast steamers Wellesley and Rochelle sailed at 7 A. M. yesterday.

The steamer Yucatan from San Diego and the steamer Willamette arrived in port last night.

The steamer Alliance will leave Marlin's dock tonight for Coos Bay.

It is probable that the Santa Fe freight and passenger office will occupy the room at 122 Third street now occupied by the city ticket office of the Great Northern. The latter office will move into rooms now being fitted up in the new Morgan building on Washington street, which marks the beginning of the movement of railroad offices away from the old "Railroad Row" on Third street.

Several other roads have been eager to lease the Great Northern's old quarters, but it is understood that the Santa Fe has first call on it.

(All positions reported at 8 P. M., October 26, unless otherwise indicated.)
