To Those Who Are Not Already Saving Home Industry Labels:

Oregon is growing—it cannot help but grow. The thing to do is to make this growth as solid and rapid as possible. This depends upon the development of its industries and factories—HOME INDUSTRY. As these expand, the means of giving employment to hundreds becomes more definite and certain. The possibilities for manufacture in Oregon are unlimited. Articles are produced and manufactured here which are superior in many respects to those imported from other states. Know the products of your state. Try them! Buy them!

New Photo Plays Open

Peoples.
IMMENSE audiences at the Peoples Theater yesterday saw Laura Sawyer, supported by House Peters, in a splendid three-part production of "An Hour Before Dawn," supplemented and strengthened by a two-act curtain-raiser, "The Vendetta."
The plot is so well conceived that not one person in ten could hazard a guess which would successfully solve the mystery of the tale until the curtain drops upon the final scene. For pure dramatic effect, nothing in the Frohman series so far has equaled this, because of the skillful manner through which the imagination is fed and yet kept to a key of high excitement throughout 100 startling and yet legitimate scenes. The significance of the title is not even understood until the entire story is unfolded. The title is so named because one hour before dawn a noted scientist plans an experiment which has been the study of a lifetime. The experiment results in his death. Every police department has its mysteries and all detectives occasionally err. The police thought that Professor Wallace was the victim of a cold-blooded murder and accused the son of the dead man of having committed the crime. Kate Kirby (Laura Sawyer), after the heinous third degree had been tried on young Wallace, became convinced of the innocence of the youth and was not satisfied that the truth had been reached even when Wallace's sweetheart, a beautiful chorus girl, confessed to the murder. With a logic a woman is not supposed to possess, she starts on her own inquiry and in the end reaches the truth.

The curtain-raiser was changed from "A Race With Death" to "The Vendetta." The change was made because the former offering was not up to the standard established. "The Vendetta" proved to be a foreign hand-colored gem full of heart interest and splendidly enacted.
The double bill will be retained for the entire week.

Columbia.
HOW two men and a woman escape from a burning vessel at sea and are cast ashore on a desert island in mid-ocean, and how for five years they live in the primitive way and endure sufferings and privations is shown in the spectacular two-reel Kalem drama entitled "Perils of the Sea," which is the feature on the bill opening yesterday at the Columbia.

One of the men is a noble, broad-minded young fellow who has taken upon himself the blame for a theft of a younger brother, and who is forced to leave home because of the disgrace. In the fire he rescues the woman, who is young and beautiful. The other man is a sailor, and he makes violent love to the girl. She, however, loves her rescuer, but he makes no advances to her. The sailor, through his privation and his love for the girl, goes mad and leaps from a precipice just as a vessel is sighted, and which comes to the rescue of the young couple.
There are plenty of amusing situations in the clever Essanay comedy-drama entitled "Gid'ap, Napoleon." It presents an example of the great love of a young girl for a faithful horse.
Pathe's Weekly has its usually entertaining features. Roy O. Dietrich, baritone, is the special entertainer. The bill will run until Wednesday.

Arcade.
WONDERFUL films are putting the Arcade Theater in the front rank. Yesterday's programme was filled with films of the highest merit. "Fires of Fate" was the announced feature, but every number was clear and met with universal approval. "Fires of Fate" dealt with the owner of uncare-for tenement-houses whose daughter had a heart and sympathy for suffering humanity, a fire which endangered her life, brought her "close-fisted" father to his senses and made him henceforth more conscious of the responsibilities of riches.

"An Old-Fashioned Dad" was a pretty love romance, showing how a wily parent covertly led his proud son to marry the daughter of a lifelong friend.
"Where Hop Vine Twists" handled a clever story of the hopfields and contained one scene of thrilling novelty.
"An Elephant on His Hands" was what might be called a feature comedy. Eddie's uncle sends him an elephant left over from a bankrupt circus. The big beast will not leave Eddie and the result is a series of situations screamingly funny and witnessed amid continuous roars of laughter. The Arcade's three changes a week plan is meeting with popular approval. The programme changes again tomorrow.

Globe.
ALL headlines is the programme now on at the Globe Theater, Eleventh and Washington streets. Admirers of Mary Fuller will be delighted with the fifth story of the "Who Will Marry Mary?" series. Captain Brainerd almost gets her this time, but his is "A Proposal Deferred." He finds the mine he has been locating is the one Mary supposed was hers, consequently he changes his purpose of suing for possession and goes away, leaving her in undisturbed possession.

"The Bride of Battery B" called a cinelogue, is the photo-dramatic production of Gasaway's famous poem of the same name and is so well presented that it reaches your heartstrings.
"The International Cup" is one of those funny movie stories you have been reading in the Saturday Evening Post. It is the theme of the two-reel comedy, "A Good Sport." The Englishman for whom the movie company advertises is found in the person of Reginald Clifford Davenham, a remittance man, in need of funds. He turns out a good sport and his work makes this a funny picture. It is good, clean and clever comedy.
Miss Ludis' singing adds to the programme. The same bill will be repeated today and Tuesday.
