Peoples. "THE Battle of Waterloo" is beyond question the biggest and most pretentious war picture ever produced.

Two great stars of the motion picture world adorn the programme of the Arcade Theater, and it is rather difficult to determine which is the better artist.

King Baggott, of the Imp, or J. Warren Kerrigan, of the Victor Company. Both are strong and attractive personalities.

Mr. Kerrigan enacts the role of a man who is cursed with the dreadful inheritance of tuberculosis.

Jobs for Women Sought. Miss Pritchard, superintendent of the People's Institute, is seeking someone

Miss Josephine Bards, with her harp, entertains with several selections. Same bill until Wednesday.

There's a wealth of attractions at the Majestic with Gene Gautier in "The Mystery of the Three Faces"; Anna Held in bewitching poses and lovely gowns; an instructive and interesting reel "Ice Harvesting" of 250 pounds avoirdupois, to please his sweetheart, attempts to reduce his weight.

There is a clever Western drama on the bill with a decided heart appeal, entitled "Big Bob Waits," a Vitaphone production. It is the story of how a big-hearted Sheriff withholds the hands of the law out of sympathy for his feeble father and mother. The play is well staged and the photography is excellent.

THE New Star Theater management was more than pleased yesterday with the attendance which followed the second day.

The programme was continued until the Wednesday change with the exception of "The Little Hero." For that number was substituted a biograph, "The Elemental World," the film having been booked ahead.

The biograph, however, was a most acceptable addition to the entertainment, as it was strong and comforting to the New Star's high standard.

Thousands who have already visited the New Star have spoken in loud praise, not only of the beauty and comfort of the theater, but of its splendid opening programme.

"Standardize" Your Office By Using

Standard Made Office and Business Furniture

WE are exclusive agents, Standard Furniture Co.'s Desks, Marble-Shattuck Chairs, Stow-Davis Tables and Yawman & Erbe Mfg. Co.'s Filing Cabinets—all the highest examples in their respective lines and uniform in construction, finish and trim—Quarterned Oak and Mahogany.

YOUR customers and business friends call on you at your office. Their impression of your prosperity and up-to-date-ness is largely formed by what they see there.

Is it a place where no two desks are alike in style, finish or material—where the chairs look as if they had been gathered together from several second-hand stores—where everything is "topsy-turvy" and the letter-filing cabinets look as if they belonged in the basement? Or do they see ONE good desk for the "boss" and a lot of cheap "pick-ups" for the rest in the office—no two alike in color or anything else?
