This Is Santa's Last Saturday at Meier & Frank's And He Will Spend It at the Toy Fair in the Basement Annex

Late on Christmas Eve Santa Claus will disappear—away on his mysterious errands of joy. The reindeer are even now becoming impatient to be off; the big sleigh is ready, and one by one the gifts the boys and girls have asked for are being loaded into it in readiness for the journey on Christmas Eve. So make haste and get in your order with Santa if he has not already had it and tucked it away for future use. You will find him at the Toy Fair in the new Basement Annex.

And there, too, you'll find Robert Thornton, the jolly clown, and his companion "Romeo," the laughing and talking pony that all the girls and boys are so much in love with.

And what else will you see at the Toy Fair? Why, the greatest lot of Toys for boys and girls you have ever seen. Toys from everywhere—big Toys, little Toys, noisy Toys, pretty dolls, books, whistles, trains, engines, wagons—the cunningest "prairie schooners," like some of our great-grandmothers came across the plains in—and all sorts of unusual Toys. They're all here, with Santa in charge, at the Big Toy Fair, and the funny clown and the cute laughing and talking pony, who performs from 10 to 12 in the morning and 2 to 5 in the afternoon.
