Plans for Future Boosting Interspersed With Levity at Salem Banquet.

"MARTIAL LAW" DECLARED

"Miss Cobbs, of Slopperfield," Is With Banner - "King" Bing" Rodgers Makes Short Address From Throne.

* SALEM, Or., Jan. 6 .- (Special.) -- Hail, Cherrians, Salem's great social booster organization! King Bings, Queen Annes, Duke of Lamberts, Maraschino and, in fact, all varieties were repreresented at a royal feast of Salem's representative business and professional men at the Marion Hotel tonight.

While levity, wit, music, cabaret girls imported from the Hotel Oregon, Portland, and many other stunts of like nature held sway, there were serious moments, when hard-headed business men told what had been ac complished by the organization and what was to be accomplished. And when it was all over-long after midnight-George F. Rodgers, ex-Mayor of the Capital City, road builder, booster of the city, county and state and King Bing of the organization, declared it was one of the greatest gath-

The Cherrians, all of them, 100 strong, resplendent in their natty white uniforms with red trimmings and clusters of the lugcious fruit from which they derive their name embroidered on their sleeves, almost filled the din-ing-room and candidates for admission to the organization and a few invited guests did the rest.

Progress Draws Notice. King Bing Rodgers declared that he had never known of a similar organiza-tion to accomplish as much as the tion to accomplish as much as the Cherrians in such a short time. Although organized less than a year ago they had on more than one occasion made their presence felt in Portland, and in Pendleton during the Round-Up were one of the great attractions.

"We cannot conceive how much good an organization like this can accomplish," said Thomas B. Kay, State Trassurer, who responded to the toast, "The Cherrians as Boosters."

"I remember when each community, each town, each city in the state was pulling against each other. But this is all over now and all are pulling for each other. Such organizations as this are responsible for the change. We visit other places, organizations representing them visit us, and the result is a better understanding. We find it is better for all to pull together.

"Not very long ago it would not have been impossible for Portland to have to got the State Capitol. Salem people were frightened. But it could not be done now. Portland does not want it. She would rather we would have it, and the change of sentiment is all due to a better understanding.

Jealousies Only Retard. ter acquainted with one another they realize the thing for them to do is help build up the state, and that jealousies will do more to retard it than anything tary to have general supervision of the else. The Commercial Clubs have their places and do a great deal of good, but I want to say that the Royal Rosarians, the Cherrians and similar social booster organizations are doing a work in Oregon which is going far toward making her one of the greatest states.

Hev. Marshall Speaks. Rev. H. E. Marshall, responding to the toast "The Cherrians at the Pan-ama-Pacific Exposition," declared that the Rosarians, the Cherrians and similar organizations should get together ilar organizations should get together and charter a steamer upon which to go to San Francisco during the exposition. He declared it would illustrate Portland's great advantages as a seaport far better than if they went by train. He also thought it would be much better to spend the nights on a steamer anchored in San Francisco Bay than in stuffy berths in railroad sheds. George H. Graves, who worked for George H. Graves, who worked for weeks to make the banquet a success, was presented a handsome pin by the organization during the dinner.
