In his report Commissioner Daly says in part:
In view of this recent decision I recommend that the city's contention for a reduction in car fares be submitted to the State Utilities Commission and that a capable appraiser be employed by the dity to assist the City Atterney in a survey and appraisement of the properties of the railway company within the city. There is no doubt that such a man can secure information and prepare argument that will be of material assistance to the State Utilities Commission in passing on this contention.

"Stripping" Is Intention.

"Stripping" Is Intention. "Stripping" Is Intention.

There is much property included in the appraisement list prepared by the railway company, which it contends is a legitimate investment and charge against the city railway systems. The city is deeply interested in stripping this appraisement of a great deal of this fliegitimate charge, as the apraisement of the railway company's property, when adopted by the State Utilities Commission, will form a basis for fixing rates, not only of car fares, but for other services which this company renders the public. he public.

It is true that the State Utilities Commission is now reviewing the appraisement sheets of the Portland Rallway, Light & Power Company, prepared by the appraiser of said company. We can hardly overestimate the value of the services of an expert appraiser, acting in behalf of the city, to contend for the elimination of all inflation in values and resist and to demur to including all investments that are not legitimately a charge against the street railway and its operation.

COPPERFIELD ACT Being Played for Sucker by District Attorney of Baker"

MISS HOBBS' WORK LAUDED

Angers Governor.

Any Political Significance Denied and Reason Assigned Is That "Bunch of Cutthroats There Were Wrecking Homes."

Governor West answered affirmatively for himself the question "Did I do rightly in declaring martial law in Copperfield?" in an address before the Portland Ad Club yesterday, at the Portland Hotel.

"Every official in Baker County bears."

Portland Hotel.

"Every official in Baker County knew that the law was being violated and that Copperfield and Baker and other cities in the county were being run wide open," he said. "If anything makes me sick it is a official who says that he doesn't know the law is being violated. They knew that it was being violated and they had no desire to act in behalf of decency and law and order.

act in behalf of decency and law and order.

"What made me sore, especially, was being played for a sucker by the District Attorney of Baker.

"I wrote him a letter previous to finding him out, in which I commended him for his activity in behalf of law and order. I am surprised that he hasn't published it. He has overlooked a bet.

"The Sheriff of Baker is a personal friend of mine and my only fight with him has been as an official. He's one of the best fellows on earth, but he belongs to the old order of things and can't get into his head this new demand that is going over the country for common decency.

Presentionary Measure Taken

Precautionary Measure Taken.

"I didn't go to Copperfield to suspend the laws, but because I found that the laws were being suspended by a bunch of cutthroats. I sent the young lady because when she goes to perform a mission she always performs it. Her work is a good lesson to the fellow who comes back with an excuse, instead of doing what he is sent to do. I think capital punishment should be reserved alone for the man who brings back an excuse. Precautionary Measure Taken. back an excuse.

"I sent two good husky fellows to Copperfield ahead of her and they were there when she arrived. But they there when she arrived. But they were not the militia. They were there with my instructions that the first man who opened his head to say anything insulting to Hobbs—they should knock his block off.

"I didn't decide to send the milita until I read in the paper that they were getting gay up there and decorating their bars with ribbons and flowers. Then I decided we might just as well use the flowers at the Say as You Think, Speaker's Creed.

"Why didn't I go at it through the courts? Because the constitution gives me ample power to go about it in the way I did use, and I am a great fellow for short cuts. I believe if you think 'Damn it' you should say 'Damn it.'

"I didn't do this because of politics, for I am not running for anything, I am running away from this job as soon as I can. I did it because a bunch of cutthroats up there—with the local officials looking on and never moving a finger—were wrecking homes in Copperfield, sending 15-year-old boys home to their mothers stinking drunk and in general behaving without a single atom of respect for decency and order." Sam Alkin, of Copperfield, who was present at the luncheon, arose after the Governor finished his talk and delared: "Every word he said is true." M. N. Dana was chairman of the day.

May Irwin, Who Found Niche on Stage Through Church Choir, Brings "Widow by Proxy" for Four Days, With Matinee.

T is, perhaps, truer of the people of the stage than of those any other profession, that the beginning has no relation to the end. A career is an evolution, but the stages of progress bear baffling relations to each other. May Irwin's career as a public en-tertainer has four almost unrelated aspects. When she was eight years old she sang soprano in a church choir—that was in Whitby, Ontario, where she was born. In those days there was no "polite vaudeville"—this form of entertainment was given in what were known as "Variety Houses" and were not regarded sympathetically by the church, yet May Irwin's first step from the church choir was on to the stage of Daniel Shelby's Adelphi Theater in Buffalo, where she and her sister sang

The Irwin sisters sang in the variety theaters of the Middle West until Tony Pastor saw them in Detroit and brought them to his theater on Broadway the year before he moved up to his new theater on Fourteenth Street. There she remained seven years, singing in the olio and playing all kinds of parts. By another of those unrelated frans-itions May Irwin in 1882 passed from singing in the smoky unconventionality of Tony Pastor's to acting in Augustin Daly's exclusively patrician theater on Broadway, where she was a valued actress in comedy parts. She was especially funny in "A Night Off" as Susan and as Lucy in "The Recruiting Officer." She accompanied the Augustin Daly Company on both trips abroad and played during these transitions. "When I took charge we rented an old house in South Portland, then in about a year moved into another house on Hawthorne avenue, near Twenty-eighth street. The work has now increased to such a volume that our average number on hand for last year was 72 children each day. Mrs. Rachel Hawthorne donated land on which the receiving home now stands, while the Ladd estate donated nine lots between the home and Thirty-second street, imhe home and Thirty-second street, in the nome and Thirty-second street, im-mediately abutting the home property, and the society bought nine lots front-ing on Thirty-second street, thus mak-ing a fine garden and recreation ground for the children. The play sheds for boys and girls erected through the efforts of William F. Woodward we find excellent for the children in the Win-ter months."

The society has received into its care during the past year 521 children, dis-posed of 445, leaving on hand December 31, 1913, 76. Out of this number 167 31, 1913, 76. Out of this number 167

CHARITIES BOARD NAMED

REMEDIAL LOAN ASSOCIATION DUE TO OPEN ABOUT FEBRUARY 1.

Achievements of Year Reported as Including Legal, Fresh Air and Employment Departments.

Seven directors for the Asosciated Charities were nominated at the annual meeting at the Central Library yesterday to succeed the seven whose terms have expired. The nominees are W. L. Brewster, Mrs. A. F. Biles, C. Henri Labbe, W. P. Jones, Mrs. Harry Corbett, W. B. Mackay and J. F. Daly. Principal among the new features included in the work of the Associated Charities in the past year, according to the report made by Secretary Manning, is the establishment of the Portland Remedial Loan Association. Letters were sent out yesterday for the first assessment on stock in the association and it will open for business about February 1. Charities were nominated at the an-ciation and it will open for business about February 1.

"This work alone will prove to be worth all that the community has interested in the Associated Charities in the past," was the opinion expressed by Mr. Manning.

Other achievements of the year were the establishment of a board of 15 directors instead of seven, the opening of the legal aid department, with C. D. Mahaffle in charge, the fresh air move-
