BROADCLOTH WRAP IS STRIKING GARMENT

SOCIETY turned out on mass Monday evening to attend the opening performance of "The Firefly," availing themselves of the only diversion left on the social calendar this week. Several parties were given in the pit of the theater, and the boxes were filled with other members of the smart set. One of the boxes was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Downing and Mr. and Mrs. G. Frederick Sanborn. In another was the Schacht family, including Mrs. Emil Schacht, the Misses Schacht and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schacht. One of the stage boxes was occupied by Fritz Schacht and party.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bowers, his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wright, and sons occupied another of the boxes.

It was an unusually "dreary" audience, as first-night gatherings in Portland invariably are.

Complimenting Mrs. F. C. Cowles, of St. Paul, house guest of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Memore, of Irvington, Mrs. John Stewart, also of Irvington, was hostess for a charming bridge-tea yesterday afternoon. Guests were asked for four tables of the game, and a few called later for tea. The high scores at each table was presented with an attractive basket of Spring blossoms, the fortunate ones being Mrs. J. Tanner, Mrs. H. C. Curtis, Mrs. Harry Heidershott and Mrs. E. E. Cable. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. M. J. Geary and her sister, Mrs. Edna Kenyon, of Chicago, Mrs. W. H. Mann and Mrs. W. R. Scott were among the guests calling at tea time. The Stewart residence was a bower of daffodils and jonquills, the color scheme of yellow being developed throughout the house.

One of the prettiest parties of recent date was the given by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Creath Saturday evening at their home in Irvington. They entertained about 80 of their friends at dancing. The house was artistically adorned with a profusion of red tulips, carnations and Spring blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Myron Woodward and Dr. and Mrs. Sanford Waring assisted the hosts. A delicious collation was served, the prettily appointed table being presided over by Mrs. Percy Allen, Mrs. Woodward, Miss Dorothy Downard, Miss Geraldine Whittaker, Mrs. E. Z. Ferguson and Mrs. Ralph H. Mitchell.

The Irvington Club will give an informal card party this evening and in addition to the regular game of "500," all who desire may play auction bridge. Frank S. Fields is chairman of the evening. About 15 to 20 tables usually are occupied by members of the club.

Mrs. J. Joseph, of San Francisco, is the house guest of her cousin, Mrs. Harry Holzman, of 535 Marshall street.

The Wednesday evening soiree danced and Saturday afternoon the dancers at Hotel Benson will be discontinued until after the Lenten season. Society folk had planned several parties for this event, intending later to take their guests to the dance. The dances will be resumed again Easter week, both Wednesday evenings and Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Erskine Wood is among recent arrivals at Hotel del Coronado, Coronado Beach, Cal. With her, George Vath, of Portland, and their daughter, also arrived the latter part of the week at Coronado Beach, to enjoy the peak season.

Mrs. A. Hagner was card hostess Sunday evening at her cozy home in Piedmont. Five tables were arranged and card honors fell to Mrs. A. Pantz and F. Lind. Refreshments were served, after which Miss Hesse played a number of delightful selections on the piano.

Miss Malissa Lee was hostess Saturday afternoon at "500," complimenting Mrs. Clarence Prehn. Miss Erma Rice was highest bidder, while George Vath, of Portland, and their daughter, also arrived the latter part of the week at Coronado Beach, to enjoy the peak season.

The Scotch Thistle Social Club, under the auspices of Mrs. Maclean and Ladies' Auxiliary, will give a dance on Friday evening in Knights of Pythias hall, Tenth and Alder streets. An open invitation has been extended to all Scotch people and their friends.

The Ladies' Auxiliary Society of Anahay School will give a Purim ball on Monday evening at Christensen's Hall.

William O'Donnell, an official of the Central Door & Lumber Company, attempted to steal a march on his many Portland friends when he took a train for Pendleton last night, ostensibly on business. He just didn't wait for meeting his fiancée, Miss Claire Tardiff, the marriage to take place either at Pendleton or Portland some time today. Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell will take apartments at the Juliana.

Little Discussions OF Love and Marriage

By BARBARA BOYD.

"Do I get my own way?" the young married woman asked the pseudo-palmitist who was presiding at a charity bazaar.

The pretended palmitist gazed at the soft white hand.

"No," she said, "you don't."

"Well, I just do," assented the other decisively. "I just don't let up until John gives in to me." Then she strolled on to the next booth.

"She tells the truth there," said an acquaintance who had been listening. "She nags and nags, or else she cries, and finally in desperation, her husband gives in. And then she crowds about it." "If I had known that," said the pretended palmitist, "I certainly would have handed her one as to her future. And it wouldn't have been guess work either. You can count on what will happen to those two as you can add two and two to make four."

"You certainly can," said the acquaintance. "And it is a pity, too. Her husband is a nice fellow. But he will either become resigned and just stolidly endure the life she makes him, or some day he will kick over the traces, and there'll be either a divorce or an 'infirmary,' as the old darkey called an infirmary."

"But don't she see how selfish she is?" inquired the pseudo-palmitist indignantly. "Can't she see that she really doesn't love her husband when she never considers him at all, but just wants her own wishes gratified all the time? Now then, of course, her way might be the right way; or it might be all good and proper for her to do as she wishes. But simply ways to want her way, because it is hers, and to contemptibly use tears to get her way, for lots of soft-hearted men can't see a woman cry, and then to gloat over a triumph won in this fashion, is almost as small and mean as anything a wife can do."

"That's quite true," observed the acquaintance, cynically. "But that's the programme of many a wife. And that's the sort of outlook many a husband has. It is a case either of always giving in, or always quarreling. Some men are heroic enough to shoulder their burdens and make the best of them. But it is mighty hard on them."

"Especially," said the pseudo-palmitist, "when you think how happy they both might be, if she would be considerate, unselfish and loving. For though she may think it makes her happy to get her own way always, she is missing the highest and finest happiness. If she would give in, if she would consider him, if she would do the things to make him happy, she would know a joy of which she hasn't the faintest conception now. She would tingle in every nerve with the happiness of it. She'd just bubble over with gladness. She'd lose that petulant shrewish look from her face. She'd be a different woman. Just wait until I get another chance to tell her fortune. I'll fix her."

"Good luck to you," laughed the pseudo-palmitist. "I certainly wish something would wake her up."

Elliott read a report of the recent conservation congress; Mrs. J. C. Prichard gave stories of Old Oregon; Mrs. Morton Duty read an original poem. A contest was held in which the members tested their knowledge of birds by identifying several specimens. A social hour followed and the hostess entertained hospitably.

The '95 Mental Culture Club, of Roseburg, has been studying many interesting topics at its recent meetings. "The school as a Social Center," "Indian Legends" and "Modern Poets" are among the subjects of papers read before the club. Last night Professor Bovard, of the University Extension Department, gave an address to the Roseburg clubwomen, taking as his subject, "Birds of Oregon." Among the members who have contributed ably to the programme are Mrs. H. G. Wilson, Mrs. W. A. Smick and Miss Marie Martens.

The current events class and the political study department of the Salem Woman's Club heard a lecture yesterday on "Life in the Canal Zone," by Mrs. Carl Elliott, who recently returned from a trip to that section.

Dr. Clement B. Shaw will give a series of lectures on "The Psychology of the Wagnerian Operas" for the benefit of the clubhouse fund of the Portland Psychology Club. The first of the series will take place in the near future. Colored slides will illustrate the talk. Many of the pictures are copies of some of the great masterpieces, while others were posed especially for the lecture programme. The clubwomen are working earnestly for the founding of a permanent clubhouse which is being assisted by a number of gifted speakers and artists who will Christmas Savings Clubs such as we are conducting are very popular throughout the East.

In several cities 100 or more members of a congregation have joined and used their combined savings as a fund at Christmas towards paying the church debts. 100 accounts in class 5 would aggregate $4515.50, plus interest.

Societies, churches, Sunday schools, charity and other organizations have joined to save money for a specific purpose.

Latest Ripples IN The World of Fashion

THE outdoor girl is beginning to rummage about among her sporting togs in an effort to find something good for the coming season. The athletic girl's clothes this season savor strongly of the English influence. From the tips of the sturdy little walking boot to the crown of the soft felt hat, the clothes are English. A suit of ether cravenette, cheviot or tweed is desirable. The skirts are plain with added fullness to permit ease in walking. The coats are loose with the Norfolk effect. A waist of tub silk is worn with the suit which has a soft turn-over collar with a four-in-hand tie.

The flimsy lace underskirts are replaced by knickerbockers and bloomers. The satin and brocades are discarded for the most serviceable materials, and the whole general appearance gives one a vision of a fishing stream or the shady woods.

A smart suit for tennis is of a soft mixture of tweed with plenty of large pockets, a feature which appeals to every woman. The skirt and coat are both trimmed with large buttons to match the material.

An attractive hunting suit may be developed from green cravenette. A tan Angora hat is worn to match the waist and tie of tan wash silk.

The Russian sport coats are especially attractive. They are made of plaid cheviot with a wide belt just below the waist line. The coat is full and falls below the knees. Another model is one with the belt at the waist line with large buttons all the way down the front. The model is developed from plain material with velvet collar and cuffs of a different color.

How to Earn Money At Home

sollicits Subscriptions to MAGAZINES.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Feb. 27.—A novel way for a girl to make pin money, whether she lives in a city or country, is to take subscriptions for a popular woman's magazine. Several magazines have pin money clubs. Join one of them and you will receive "some lucky hints and other useful supplies." The club's treasure box is running over with bright, gold coin, waiting your demand; the only limit to the amount you draw is your own ambition.

By getting subscriptions you retain a certain amount for yourself, the rest sending to the club; besides you receive an additional salary according to the amount of work done, with dainty "encouragers" to show how very much they are interested in your success. Before calling on a prospective subscriber, saturate yourself thoroughly in the magazine's atmosphere, know all telling points, and you are bound to succeed. Of course one will oftentimes meet objections; a woman will say, "I can't afford it"; then suggest a six-months subscription. Another "last resort" method worth trying is to suggest two friends or neighbors taking a subscription together, each paying half price.

It does not take a whole lot of spare moments. Last Summer I earned about $225 in three months. Your salary depends upon the time you devote and the saying is:

"She can who thinks she can."

MISS C. G.

Presses Trousers of Father.

ASTORIA, Or., Feb. 26.—I am a 16-year-old girl, and I find that I can earn quite a little pin money at home by pressing trousers for my father and older brothers, for which they give me 25 cents a pair. Often they give me other little odd jobs, such as mending gloves, repairing hatbands, cleaning and pressing neckties, or laundering evening ties, and sometimes there is a whole lot of work to be done. I have repaired, or all of which, of course, they pay me according to the amount of work. Any young girl who is handy could do the same. I would like to see a young man take up the menfolk of the family they would be glad to pay for the convenience of having their work done quickly at home, and whenever they wanted it.

M. H.

Bakes Salt-Rising Bread.

SALEM, Or., Feb. 27.—One way I make money at home is by making salt-rising bread. So many people, who are very fond of it, do not make it. I can sell almost any amount of it at from 15 to 20 cents a loaf, according to size.

The morning before I want to bake I add two heaping tablespoonsful of cornmeal with hot milk, making a thin batter, then I add more cornmeal (not scalded) to make it thick, cover to keep the air out, and keep in a warm place until light; when light put in a cool place until next morning.

In the morning mix up a batter of salt milk and water and flour and a pinch of soda, a little thicker than

Doris Blake's Advice

Men Speak to Her.

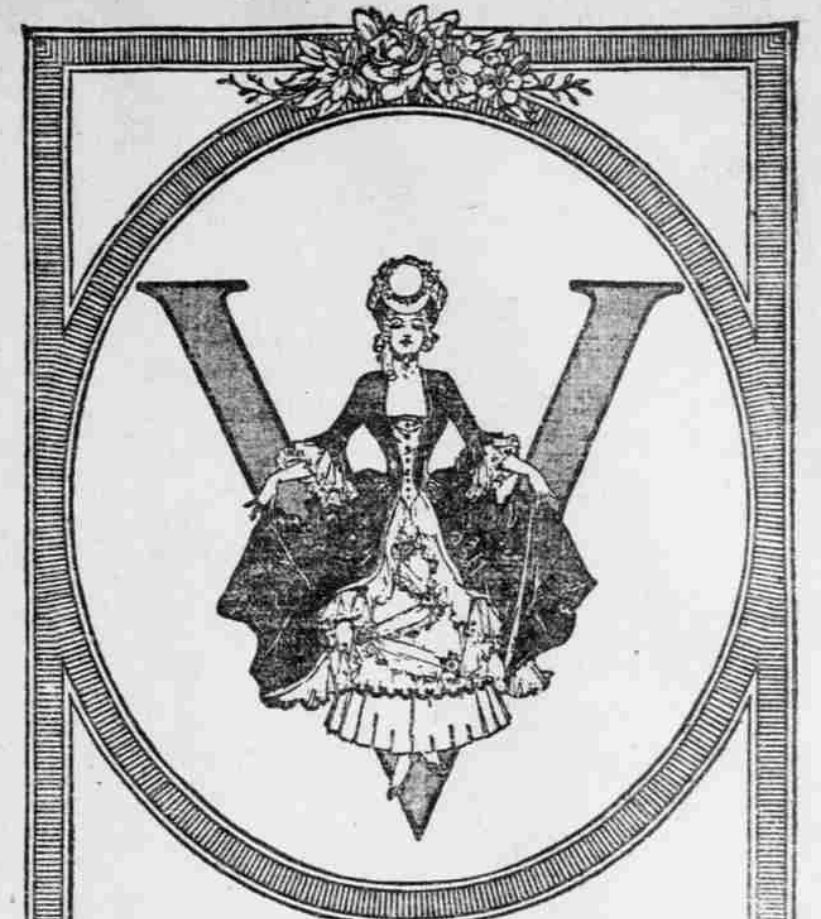

"DEAR MISS BLAKE: I am a girl of 18, rather tall and very pretty, with large, expressive brown eyes, a quantity of golden-red hair, and a good complexion. I have often been told I was good looking, but of course I myself never think about this. But lately whenever I get on the street I am bothered by the stares and comments of people, especially men. As I dress simply and quietly, do not paint or use much powder, and do not puff and fix my hair, I cannot see why this should happen. My friends think my manners very dignified. Do you think it could be, as some of my friends say, on account of my unusual beauty? And what can I do about it? I cannot wear a veil always. ANXIOUS."

You probably exaggerate the attention which you excite; if you walk along quietly you will not notice the stares and the comments of men. Unusual beauty does not excite comment. It may excite admiration, but never an unfavorable comment. Make up your mind that if you are quiet and reserved no one will pay any attention to you, that is, no one will embarrass you by comments.

She Has a Broken Heart.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am nearly 30 and very close to the age called spinsterhood. So you see if I am to marry it must be soon. I have had several offers of marriage, all from a worldly point of view desirable, but I love none of the men who made them. Long ago I had a very unfortunate love affair and ever since my life has seemed so dreary. Could you not suggest something that I could do to occupy my thoughts? My housekeeping is not extensive, as only my widowed mother is left me. I cannot read all the time, and when I sew I can still think and dream about my life. It is your interest of marriage of which I speak is still open to me. Should I accept it and so change my condition by giving myself new interests? Although I cannot bring this man love, I can be a faithful and devoted wife. Awaiting your help.

One of the greatest truths about love is that often the person whom we love ardently when we are young will appeal to us in no way when we are older. This is perhaps true in your case. If you would see the man who caused you unhappiness when you were young your entire self-made love would leave you. It is your interest in it that keeps it alive. In a case like yours, I should think that marriage would make you really happy. It would be fair, however, to marry without explaining to the man that

HOT TEA BREAKS
A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or, as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour it through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.
