

SOUTH BIDS MORE

California Again in Market for Wheat.

HELPS NORTHERN PRICES

Supplies Remaining in Oregon and Washington Are in Strong Hands and Sales Are Only Made at Advances.

The California wheat market has taken a turn for the better, and with prices rising up there, the buyers are willing to bid more for supplies in the north. It was known that wheat would come to this zone earlier than expected.

It is practically certain that shipments to San Francisco and San Pedro will be as large this month as in February and the movement in April may be still larger.

With available stocks in the Northwest so small and California remaining in wheat holders naturally a bullish demand extreme prices. Quotations as given in the local market yesterday were unchanged at 90.91 cents for club, but it is known that dealers made sales at prices stronger elsewhere.

There has been practically no selling by farmers since they paid their taxes and there is not likely to be much for the next 30 days, where farmers are offering wheat.

It is with the added charges farmers' wheat is about eliminated now as a market factor, as the bulk of the supply left in second hands, which makes the market a local proposition.

In the south, there is not much chance of buyers meeting with concessions anywhere along the line.

The only demand at the moment is from the south. Millers are inactive as buyers and there is no export call. The California situation, however, is strong enough to keep the market in good shape.

Local receipts in cars, were reported by the Merchants Exchange as follows: Wheat, 17,000; barley, 16,000; motor spirit, 10,000; etc.

The new rate of duty on sugar, which went into effect on March 1, caused no changes in Pacific Coast markets, as the change was distributed by declines which took place some time ago.

The Eastern markets are also adjusted to the revised tariff, and further changes are not expected there, according to the following wire, received yesterday:

"Heavy withdrawals from bonded warehouses of raw sugar were made yesterday at New York, as the result of the 25 per cent cut in duties provided for in the tariff act of 1913, effective March 1.

There were shipping orders for eggs on the market yesterday, also actively buying for speculative accounts, presumed to be for storage purposes.

Only two loads of stock were received at the stock division and brought $2.16 and $2.17, which was quiet, with mainly with carried-over supplies.

Two loads of stock were offered in the sheep division and brought $2.16 and $2.17. The hog market was inactive.
