SECTIONS OF HOTEL ORDINANCE VOIDED

Bonding Act as It Stands May Affect Every Home in Which Room Is Rented.

SIZE AS FACTOR REMOVED

Provisions That Council Could Revoke Permits at Will and Barring Minors Unless Vouched For Are Annulled.

Three sections of the hotel bonding ordinance, passed by the City Council, in October, 1912, following the report of the vice commission, were annulled by an order made in Judge Morrow's court yesterday, in the suit brought by Phillip Gevurtz and seven other hotel keepers to have the ordinance declared void. The demurrer to the complaint, filed by City Attorney Grant and Deputy Everson, was sustained, leaving the ordinance in full effect except for sections three, five and 13, which the court

Section three of the ordinance, which provided that it shall apply only to hotels and lodging-houses with 10 or more rooms was held void by the decision on the grounds that it is "an unreasonable restriction, not reasonably tending to accomplish the purpose of the ordinance" of the ordinance." Section five of the ordinance, which gave power to the Council to revoke at pleasure any permit to conduct a hotel or lodging-house which it may have granted is held void for the rea-son that it constitutes a "deprivation of property without due process of law and is an arbitrary denial of the equal protection of the laws."

Section 13, which prohibited the letting of a room at any hotel or lodging house with 10 or more rooms to per-sons of opposite sex, one of whom is s minor, unless the applicants have bona fide baggage or are vouched for as husband and wife by a reputable resident of Portland or a member of the police department, is held to be void because it is "an unreasonable restriction upon the conduct of a lawful business."

Bond Is Required.

The decision, as it stands, sustains section 17, which requires a $1000 bond of all lodging houses and hotels which come under the operation of the ordinance. In as much as the order annuls the section that provides that only lodging houses and hotels of 10 or more rooms are effected, it leaves the bond feature applicable to every house in the city in which a single room is rented, and brings, under the terms of the ordinance, all apartment houses in the city.

The suit was brought in December, 1912, by Attorney A. E. Clark on behalf of Phillip Gevurtz, of the Multhalf of Phillip Gevurtz, of the Multnomah, Mallory and Carlton hotels;
Thomas J. Hammer, of the Ockley Hotel; J. H. Deitz, J. W. Blaney and Edward W. Mueller, of the Rowland, Parsons and Minook hotels; J. W. Bushong, of the Netherland Hotel; Frank A.

and C. Venable, of the Venable Hotel.

MOSCOW, Idaho, March

cial.)—The resignation of Professor W. H. Olin, director of the agricultural extension service of the College of Ag-riculture of the University of Idaho, has just been received by Acting President Carlyle and has been accepted. Professor Olin has requested that his resignation take effect the last of this month, so that he may immediately take up his duties as agricultural commissioner for the Denver & Rio Grande and Western Pacific railways. His headquarters will be at Denver. Professor Olin has been connected with agricultural extension work of the university for three years and has built up one of the strongest extension services in the West. He came to Idaho from the Colorado Agricultural College, where he had been serving as vice-dean and professor of agronomy for a number of years. He has been recognized as one of the strongest men in the University of Idaho's employ and his loss wil be keenly felt.
