MISS EDITH PRATER, niece of Mrs. Robert Lytle, entertained a number of her young friends last night at the Lytle residence at an informal dancing party. The rooms were decked attractively with a profusion of daffodils, ferns and wallflowers, making a handsome foil for the chic gowns of the pretty girls. About 45 belles and beaux made merry during the evening.

Mrs. R. E. Montgomery entertained yesterday with a pretty bridge tea at her attractive home on Portland Heights. About 55 guests enjoyed the afternoon and the added attraction was the musical programme given by Mrs. Joel F. Ettinger, vocal solos, and charming harp solos by Miss Carmel Sullivan. The notes were rendered artistically with yellow spring blossoms and feathery ferns. Card honors fell to Mrs. R. Tenner, Mrs. E. H. Beall, and Mrs. C. P. Cowen, of St. Paul.

Complimenting Mrs. Mortimer Fouchs and Miss Florence Bonnell, attractive visitors in Portland, Mrs. Theodore Nicolent entertained yesterday with a pretty bridge-tee. Four tables were arranged for the games, and card honors fell to Mrs. Nathan Wittenberg, Mrs. Fouchs, Miss Eleanor Menece and Miss Marie Haller. The honor guests were also present with special prizes. About 13 additional guests joined the party at tea time. Easter suggestions were used for favors, score cards and general decorative scheme, being developed in yellow and white.

Miss Helen Cowles entertained a number of young people in honor of her sister, Mrs. George W. Kellogg, of San Luis Obispo, Cal., on Monday evening at her residence in Rose City Park. A general decorative scheme of pink and white was carried out throughout the rooms and in the favors. Music and dancing were the diversions of the evening. Those present were: The Misses Georgia Irvine, Marie Irvine, Mabel Muffel, Genevieve Landeen, Hazel Bowman, Mabel Childress, Vera Chapin, Ethel Adams, Rachel Bryan and the guest of honor.

A surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hertz in honor of their 30th wedding anniversary Sunday. The home was decorated prettily and a collation was served. Several musical selections were rendered during the evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Hertz and family, Mr. and Mrs. Spellman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Foley and family, Mr. and Mrs. Abrams and family, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hertz and Frank P. Abrams.

Mrs. John G. Edwards presided at a charming luncheon yesterday in honor of Miss Margaret Malarkey, whose wedding will be a brilliant event of this Summer.

A dancing party will be given by the Sateclites, Eastern Star, tomorrow night, at the Masonic Temple. The patronesses will be Mrs. E. Young, Mrs. E. W. Ring, Mrs. J. W. Mills, Mrs. H. Morgan and Mrs. Roy Quackenbush.

Mrs. Peter Autzen and daughter, Alice, accompanied by Mrs. Markeder and daughter, Frieda, of Aberdeen, Wash., who for the past three months have been making their home through California, returned home Monday and Mrs. Snyder and daughter will return shortly.

An engagement of interest to many Portlanders was announced Saturday at the luncheon given by the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity at the University Club. The engagement was that of Miss Helen Corey Holbrook, daughter of Mrs. F. B. Holbrook, to Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, head of the psychology department of the University of Oregon. Miss Holbrook is a graduate of the University of Oregon and Dr. Conklin was graduated from Clark University. Both are popular young people and the wedding will be a brilliant event of the Winter.

Kurt Koehler, one of the popular young beaux of the smart set, who has been traveling in East Germany several weeks, returned to the city Friday.

At the Lincoln High School gymnasium, the February 15 class will give a dance for the June 14 class tomorrow from 2 to 5 o'clock. The affair will be most informal and refreshments will be served. The committee is Cameron Belland, Harriet Hutchins, John Bates, Misses Helen Jackson, Helen O'Neill and Ruth Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blyth will leave today for New York and have booked passage on the Mauretania, sailing April 7, for their home in England. They have been extensively feted during their visit in this city.

Lloyd Tegert was host to a party of Kappa Delta Iota fraternity brothers and their friends Saturday evening. The party motored out from Portland to Mr. Tegert's country place, on the Base Line road. The guests were Earl Heischmit, Edgar Garbade, Ralph Tourtellette, Leslie Ross, Chalmers Blair, Frank Normandin, Cliff Fields, Arthur Knoff, Herbert Cooke, Al Shawcross, Raymond Stubb, Margery Cass, Lloyd Tegert, Raymond Fox, Oscar Norin, Thomas Gorman, Frank Hunt, Biddle Combs, Norval Smith, The Misses Vesta Tegert and the Misses served refreshments and assisted in the entertainment of the guests.

High school students are eagerly anticipating the series of Three Dances to be given at Culliton Hall every Friday from 5 to 5:30. Refreshments will be served. The series will commence next Friday. Patronesses, Mrs. Coffey, Mrs. White and Mrs. Tucker; committee, Gertrude Towne, Eva Flood, Genevieve Coffey, Julia Platt, Cathlin Wolford, Harry Brubaker, Keith Higgins and Nellis Hamlin.

Mrs. James R. Elliott, of Westover Road, entertained about 40 matrons and maids yesterday afternoon at her home at an informal tea in honor of her sister, Mrs. William B. James, of Port Huron, Mich., who is passing a few weeks in Portland with her husband, Dr. James. Presiding in the dining-room were Mrs. Charles Warren and Mrs. Walter Holt.

Parent-Teacher Associations

MRS. F. S. MYERS will preside at the luncheon to be given at the Hazelwood tomorrow at 12:15 o'clock by the Portland Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Myers has taken up the anti-vice campaign, in which she is receiving the hearty co-operation of all the circles.

Tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. D. Gorar-

A Letter from a Artist.
THE odd familiar slant of a memory-involving handwriting peered at Marian the next morning when her mail was handed her by the maid. It was from Ann Stewart, a friend of hers, whom she had not seen for five years. They had been bogom companions at boarding school. Once letters had flown frequently between them; but of late their correspondence had languished.

"I've heard about your troubles," wrote Ann, "and am very sorry. Come and pay me a visit. My studio is a husbandless Arcady. The slings and arrows of domestic misfortune are foreign to its clime. Cheer up. We'll have a lot of fun. I know all about men. That's why I never married. I'll cheer you up with my merry views."

"You've never seen my new studio, and I'm dying to have you romp in on me. I can't offer you a palatial abode during your visit, but I have a bed awaiting you, and plenty of food in the larder. I've just laid in a barrel of apples, several cords of wood, and a bag of hickory nuts. You may watch me splash paint, and may go on tramps through the woods with me in search of subjects for my sketches. You may wear a pair of my snowshoes and a good, heavy sweater vest. Evenings we'll sit by a roaring fireplace and roast chestnuts, apples, and nuts."

"I think I wrote you that I had bought an old schoolhouse, built of logs, which I've turned into a beautiful nest of a studio. The villagers gaped and thought I was crazy. There are a few congenial souls among them, however, so that we need not be too lonesome on long winter evenings."

"Write me that you are coming, and when in my disappointment, I warn you that friendship will cause me merry years."

Marian's heart bounded as she finished the letter. A warm spark of friendship had glowed in her heart ever since her separation from Ann. She was a rollicking, mercurial creature, with a passion for landscape painting, in which, according to reports, she was achieving no little success. She had disappeared abruptly from school, to turn up later in the Latin Quarter of Paris, where she had laid a sound foundation for her artistic career.

She had always fascinated Marian with her wholesome, magnetic personality. The earnest character of her art, which had begun to flourish back in the days when Marian knew her, had served to lift her above the little jealousies which abound among the young women who are thrown closely together in their association anything but consistently amiable.

Marian was prompt to decide upon a visit to Ann; she foresaw that it would enable her to view her own affairs from a distance and provide her with perspective. Ann lived in a village some 70 miles distant. But how, she wondered of a sudden, was she to finance the journey? She would need a few dollars of pocket money. She was within a few dollars of rock bottom.

Then she thought of her diamond engagement ring. She had kept it on her finger, even though divorced, clinging to the belief that it would afford her some measure of dignity and protection in the world of affairs and its elbowing men. Aside from that, she had also grown fond of the handsome decoration, and had determined to retain possession of it until driven to part with it. Should she sell it? Or should she forego her visit with Ann?

Doris Blake's Advice

VERY good sisters and very good mothers often make very bad husbands out of the boys of the household. Extra specially good mothers are often so fussy over food and health that they succeed in coddling their sons into old maidish ways.

If you ever met a man who is nervous and silly about his health I will guarantee you will find on inquiry that there was once a woman in the background a mother who brought him up in the belief that he was much too good and gifted to be quite as strong as more ordinary mortals.

Quite a different way in which sisters do harm is by giving their brothers a low opinion of women in general. A boy who is constantly hearing his sisters speak against other girls, giving away their little fallings and poking fun at their dresses, will grow up with the notion that women are a mean, disloyal set, with a tremendous amount of jealousy and ill feeling going on about them.

If a boy of this sort, when grown up, marries a frank, loyal wife, it may be that her quietness and a great deal of trouble and distress before she can teach him to stop imputing low motives to her and credit her with the high ones of a good possession.

An even more frequent sin of sisters where brother is concerned is that of waiting on him hand and foot, giving him in every possible way the back of a spoon. Unless a boy is wonderfully sweet natured the result of this fussing and petting of mother and sister is his regarding it as a matter of course that the whole world should circle round him, while he takes his ease in the center.

There are any number of women who get for husbands men who have been half ruined by the foolish treatment of their mothers and sisters. A spoiled man is about as difficult to manage as anything you can imagine.

Kiss Properly Refused.
"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 19 and have been so with a young man of 21 for one year. One evening he asked me for a kiss, but as we are not engaged, I refused, and as he got very angry, I wish to know if I did right? Do you think 'Chester' is a pretty name?"
"A.G.N.E.R."

The young man has no right to ask you to allow him to kiss you if you were right in refusing such a request. Yes, Chester is a pretty name.

Man Wants Her to Marry.
"Dear Miss Blake: Have read your good, kind advice to others and thought maybe you could help me. I have a gentleman friend who I know thinks a great deal of me, for he has told me so very often. I also think a great deal of him. Lately he had to leave the city on business and will be gone two years. He wanted me to marry him and go with him, as he said he felt sure that if he left to him he would never

Actress Tells Secret

A Well-Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Home-Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home. In a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add one oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drugstore at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieve itching and scalp dandruff and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."—Adv.
