are aware of is that Madame Campanini has given up a remarkable career to devote herself enirely to her husbands' welfare. Before her marriage she was Eva Tetrazzini. She is a sister of the famout Luisa Tetfazzini, one of the world's greatest dra-thatic sopranos, and she sang in many livre theaters. She is one of the few fative singers to make a success in her own country. Right in the prime of her career, she gave up her much-loved art, realizing that her husband would be a world-renowned conductor and needed her undivided attention. She attends all rehearsals and councils because the conductor and needed her undivided attention. she attenue all renears and coun-sels him and assists him wonderfully in his absorbing work. Madame Cam-panini is noted for her remarkable un-selfishness and her marvelous person-gity and charm.

Henri Scott, one of the well-known haritones of the Chicago Opera Combany, who will sing the role of Ramfis this afternoon in Aida, graciously consented to sing Thursday afternoon for the children of Ainsworth school. Many of the mothers gathere; at the school for this rare treat, which was arranged through Mrs. James E. Davidson, an old-time friend of Mr. Scott. Mrs. Warren E. A most delightful affair was the dance and supper given last night at the Waverly Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. George D. Schalk in honor of Mrs. John Albert Marshall, of Berkeley, Cal., who is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Christopher Brunn. The pretty Wallroom of the club was enhanced by Moral decorations, consisting of Spring flowering shrubs and fruit blossoms, and the mantel and fireplace in the drawing room drawing - room were artistically adorned with huge clusters of Japanese quince and cherry blossoms. About 50 guests enjoyed this elaborate affair.

Complimenting Mrs. John Albert Marshall, of Berkeley, Cal., Mrs. Chris-lopher D. Brunn presided at a charm-ing luncheon yesterday, followed by bridge, Covers were laid for 12 guests, Card honors fell to Mrs. George W. Lawrence, Mrs. William C. Bristol and Mrs. Frederick J. Ziegler.

Work on Mural Work on Mural Decoration The private reception given at the Art Museum vesterday was a brilliant affair, and was attended by an unusually large number of appreciative and enthusiastic spectators. Rarely ever in this city do men attend afternoon affairs, but they turned their backs on business yesterday for a couple of hours and feasted their artistic senses on the splendid display of paintings by ten of America's best-known artists.

Mrs. W. H. Marshall is in the city from her country home taking in the opera and visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred J. Zeigler, 343 Holladay avenue.

Milton H. Bancroft, one of the well-known American artists, is at work on mural decorations for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. A number of his easel paintings are shown in the collection secured by the appeal exhibition to open at the Art association of Portland for the special exhibition to open at the Art one of the most interesting and magnificant collections of paintings ever some and visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred J. HAD a letter from Hugh the other day," sighed the Frivolous Young "and he says if I don't come back, he'll go straight to the Devil, and he spelled it with a capital D, too. What would you do?"
"I'd tell him that though the going might be pleasant, the stay wouldn't be so delightful, for he'd probably have to remain a mighty long time," advised the Friend.

"But don't you think it horrid of him to put it that way?" sighed the Frivo-lous Young Thing. "I don't want to go home yet."

"Are you going to let him hold His Satanic Majesty over you as a club, whenever he doesn't want you to do anything?" asked the Friend. The Frivolous Young Thing opened wide her eyes. "But he wouldn't do that," she expostulated. "This is just because I am away and he wants me to come back."

"Yes, and when you are back and he doesn't want you to do something, he'll again haul forth his majesty with the cloven hoof and flourish him as a boon companion."

"Do you think so?" asked the Frive-lous Young Thing.

Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 26 teaching school in a country district. The boys here seem to think because I teach school that there is no use wasting any time on me. I am as friendly as I can be, so what can I do to eradicate that impression? There is one young man in particular that attracts me greatly. He goes with no one else that I know of. Please solvise me.
