Sister-in-Law, for Whose Love He Is Said to Have Killed, Is Chief Accuser.

WIFE'S LAST WORDS TOLD

"Dolly, I Am Dying, Andrew Has Poisoned Mc," Witness Swears Her Sister Said - Physicians Add Evidence at Hearing.

EUGENE, Or., April 3,-(Special.)-Largely upon the testimony of Dolly Levins, the sister-in-law, for whose love he is accused of slaying his wife, Andrew Bossen was bound over to the grand jury today, charged with murder.
The crowd which filled the courtroom during the preliminary hearing held its breath as the girl testified igainst the man.

Dolly, I am dying. Andrew has poisoned me. He gave me whisky, and it was so bitter—oh, so bitter! Take good care of little Stanley." These were the last words of the

These were the last words of the dying woman, the sister said. She had been awakened, she testified, early in the morning, and found Mrs. Bossen at the point of death.

The word, were corroborated by Marie Hendricks, a 14-year-old girl, who also was in the house at the time. Physicians testified that the woman was normal and healthy and that they believed she had died from the effects of a dose of poison. This was determined after the body had been disintered at the instigation of the District terred at the instigation of the District Attorney.
Questions asked witnesses indicate that Bossen's defense will be that his wife committed suicide. The incriminating evidence against him is that he had $5000 insurance transferred to his wife's name a few days before her death, and that, according to the District Attorney, he was infatuated with his sister-in-law.
