Jeweler Declares Gems Valued at $20,000 to $30,000 Have Disappeared and Co-operation of Employes Is Asserted,

A trail of organized theft leading into several of the largest retail estabinto several of the largest retail establishments of the city and involving both persons employed in them and people who worked with them on the outside was opened up by the investigations of Deputy District Attorney Robison yesterday, following the arrests of the preceding night of women alleged to have stolen goods from Lipman, Wolfe & Co's department store. All day women were brought into the District Attorney's office and in nearly every case they made lengthy answers when questioned by Mr. Robison, which brought to light more and more clearly the extensive scope of the operations of the thieves.

The goods which were recovered yesterday and were identified by represen terday and were identified by represen-tatives from different firms came from Lipman, Wolfe & Company, The Meler & Frank Company, Olds, Wortman & King, F. Friedlander's jeweiry store and Fleischner, Mayer & Co. It is thought that further evidence will show other stores to have been included in office were piled $1573 worth of goods from Lipman, Wolfe & Company's store, which had been taken from the apart-ments of one of the women arrested. The total amount of goods taken from the different stores cannot yet be esti-mated, as the investigations of the District Attorney's office are continu-ally unearthing clews to new "Tences" where the goods have been stored. Co-operation is indicated.

Statements made by some of the women brought in yesterday indicated co-operation between women in different stores in the exchange of goods and in the disposal of goods emusgled from the store by outside workers. Among the goods recovered was a quantity of hand-painted china from one store, which, it was said by one of the women examined, was exchanged at another store, through the connivance of employes, for laces and clothing.

The goods recovered from the lewelry store were for the most part solid silvarware, including spoons, knives and forks and other small articles. It is thought that a large amount of valuble stones were taken. Mr. Friedlander said to Mr. Robison yesterday that he has been obliged to charge off between $120,000 and $30,000 worth of diamonds and other gems that have disappeared from the store. The loss of the silver he regarded as a trifle compared to the gem thefts.
