ALBANIA PICTURED AS LAND OF FEUDS

Fighter, Freebooter and Shepherd Is Held in Honor, Continues in Kingdom.

LONDON, April 14. — A startling picture of the newest and most unknown of European kingdoms, Albania, is drawn by a correspondent of the Times, who has just made a tour in the country. The Times remarks the dis-trict of Mat suggests the Khaibar rather than Europe, and Prince Wil-liam's trouble will probably begin when he tries to obtain local revenue as a substitute for the doles of interested newers.

These are some of the things that exist in the new kingdom:
In Central Albania, as among all Pathans, the land is so completely throttled by the blood feud that ordinary human intercourse is almost impossible. ossible.

The houses are great fortresses, the only windows of which are loopholes for Martinis. In these prisons families, sometimes of 100 people, lead self-centred lives.
There are no villages, only houses dotted at intervals of nearly a mile, high up round wide valleys. Every one has killed, and all have nemics who seek their blood Many men have not left their couses for years, and food has to be brought in to them by their friends. Others, again, have taken to flight after killing their enemy, and, unable to sleep in their homes or to till their fields, exist by brigandage.

Agriculture is Despised.

There is no dishonor whatever attached to brigandage, and to this day there continues in Albania that primitive society in which the life of the fighter, the freebooter and the sheperd is held in honor, while agriculture Is despised.
Sometimes a truce is granted and

For a stranger it is only possible to pass under the protection of the men of the district, who conduct him to "blood friends"; but if he meet the enemies of his friends he is himself counted as an enemy, and to kill him is to avenge an old murder.

On the other hand, the murderer of a stranger puts the latter's protectors under the unusual obligation of killing not one, but seven of the murderer's Albanians do not kill women and the blood feud passes them by.
