The visit of the women of the Civic lub of McMinnville to Portland today rill be an event of note. At the lunch the Y. W. C. A., who is in the city in connection with her official duties, gave a talk to the girls of Reed College on Monday and spoke to the board of directors of the Portland association at the close of their regular meeting on Tuesday. At the latter place she said she was not going to talk statistics to a Y. W. C. A. board, but she was going to talk "girls," and she at once began to talk in a most interesting manner along this line, dwelling especially on the needs of the girl in the "teen" age and of the plans which had been formulated at the last National board meeting to meet their needs. She spoke also in connection with this thought of what is known may furnish material for a remantic

The classes in cooking are doing ex-cellent work and the millinery classes have shown marked ability. The re-cent exhibition of "Spring bonnets" called forth much favorable comment.

"Good Heavens," she groaned, "can't Dandelion Wine No. 2—Pour 1 gallon vorce, divorce, divorce! Everyone's having his say! Well, let's see what's the latest," she mused beginning to scan the article.

the divorce movement attains to its modern proportions, we believe that personal, family and social life is threatened and debased beyond palliation. A gusty and passionate courtship may furnish material for a romantic novel, but it is a poor foundation for the happy and abiding union of two lives. A surrender to mere physical attraction, fine clothes, and delightful conversation is not the stuff of which conjugal love is made."

Marian's gaze wandered down the column, where a sub-head, "The Remedy," attracted her attention. Casually she glanced through the following remedial propositions: "Pledge to wait for a year after engagement before marriage in order that both parties can get an emotional and mental breath—(two-thirds elimination of the cases from the divorce courts is predicted it this plan is followed out); put the idle rich to service or brand them as moral idiots; elimination of hasty, indiscreet or clandestine marriages; single stagdard of sex morality; a certificate from rd of sex morality; a certificate fr
