

Society News

By Gertrude P. Corbett.

COMPLIMENTING Miss Mary Muir, a charming sub-debutante, her aunt, Mrs. Bert C. Ball, entertained a number of the younger belles and beaux at her home last night with a delightful informal dancing party. The rooms were attractive with a profusion of Scotch broom, narcissus and tulips, arranged artistically in baskets and tall standards. The young people played games, danced, and the evening had a thoroughly gay time. The guests were, in addition to the honor guest, the Misses Margaret Elliott, Nancy Hoyt, Martha Hoyt, Ethel Malm, Evelyn Magruder, Katherine Wheeler, Susan Cheney, Louise Linthicum, Helen Page, Amy Robinson, Dorothy Collins, Mary Morrison, Margaret Flais, Elizabeth Halley, Billie Muir, Richard Huxon, Page Shindler, Horace Stevens, Carter Macgregor, Alexander Linthicum, James Glanville, Donald Skene, Duncan Strong, William Mackenzie, Brazeal Emlinger, Hugh Martin, Frederick Jacobs, Frederick Whitehead, Robert Warren, Robert McNary and George Biles.

Miss Kathleen Sealy was hostess for a brilliant reception and dance last night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sealy, on Marshall street. The rooms were decorated artistically with a profusion of dogwood flowers and other spring flowers, with quantities of ferns and palms, creating a color scheme of green and white. The hostess was assisted in receiving her guests by her mother and about 15 of the younger set called. The affair was planned in honor of Miss Sealy's cousin, Lieutenant Neagle Sealy, and his friend, Reginald Sternthal, both of Pinar, New Zealand. Lieutenant Sealy has come here to make his home and Mr. Sternthal is on his way to London, making a tour of the Continent. He is on a year's leave of absence.

Dancing was the principal diversion of the evening, and an elaborate buffet supper was served. The table was adorned with a huge crystal bowl of narcissus and lilies of the valley and was presided over by Mrs. Harold A. Tuxner (Louise Williams), a recent bride, and Miss Jean Sharp. Assisting in the dining-room were Miss Maureen Campbell, a bride-elect, Miss Hazel Russell, Miss Gertrude Courtenay, Miss Marcia Parker and Miss Ruth Cushing. The hostess was most attractive in a gown of pastel green, with a delicate shadow lace bodice and deep girdle of cerise satin. A sweeping algerette adorned her coiffure and she also wore a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses.

Mrs. Sealy was charming in a smart gown of black satin, embellished with jet.

The second and last informal dance of the season of the Multnomah Club was held in the spacious drawing-room Thursday night, and more than 100 couples were on the floor. The regular dance committee, A. H. Allen, E. R. Morris, Harry Fischer and Rex L. Conant, assisted by William R. Smythe, George Anderson, William J. Lewis and Frank Meagher, had charge of the affair.

A charming and unique affair of Wednesday was the Japanese tea for which Mrs. Charles A. Steele was hostess at her attractive home in Laurelhurst. The rooms were decorated artistically with Japanese blossoms, lanterns and screens, creating a pleasing foil for the handsome gowns of the guests. Honors fell to Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Paris and Mrs. Rudy. The refreshments were served in true Japanese style, the guests being seated on mats. Oriental dainties, including rice cakes and tea, were served, and Miss Nina Bunkel, Miss Nina E. Runkel, Miss Grace Kern and Mrs. Charles A. Steele.

The Tango Tokio was danced at the conclusion of this pleasant affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wise have returned and will be at home to their friends from 2 to 5 P. M. on Sunday, May 3, at 701 Northrup street.

Mrs. Grace Swirsky, who has been passing the winter in Southern California, has returned home and is now domiciled at the Elton Court.

JUNCTION CITY, Or., April 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. Debra M. Bundy and E. W. Holmes were married at the home of the bride yesterday at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Bundy is a pioneer of this state, having crossed the plains when only a year old, and having resided in this and Benton County for the last 60 years. Mr. Holmes is a commercial traveler, formerly of California. Mrs. Anna M. Spence, of Seattle, was present at the wedding of her mother.

The dance given last night at the Irvington Club by the J. V. G. Club was one of the jolliest affairs of the week. The interior of the club, with its new paint, was enhanced further by floral decorations, and made a charming foil for the dainty frocks of the girls. The guests were received by the officers of the club, the Misses Helen Zimmerman, Tirzah McMillen and Esther Ruden.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Otterstedt upon the arrival of a boy at their home this week.

Women's Clubs

By Edith Knight Holmes.

THE board of directors of the People's Institute met yesterday, the reports of Miss Valentine Pritchard and of the representatives of the South Portland and Albina centers as well as that of the free dispensary being most interesting. A committee was appointed to arrange for an exhibit at the Reed College conference, May 16 and 17. Mrs. James B. Kerr, Mrs. Lucius Allen Lewis and Mrs. Sherman Hall are members of this committee.

Yesterday afternoon Miss May Hallman, head worker of the South Portland center, conducted a party of the members of the Mothers' Club to the Parents' Education Bureau, where Mrs. W. W. Williams gave a lecture on "Social Development, Environment and Training."

A number of clubwomen are interested in a "May-day evening," which will be held in the main parlor of the Hotel Portland on May 1 at 8 o'clock. Miss Florence Crawford is chairman of the committee. A programme of songs, readings and a Maypole dance by several pretty little children will be featured.

Miss Kathleen Sealy
HOSTESS AT BRILLIANT RECEPTION LAST NIGHT.

day afternoon with Miss Graham, East Thirty-seventh and Harold streets. On Friday night the medal contest will be held at Berkeley hall.

On Tuesday night Dr. C. F. Hodge will give a lecture at the Woodstock Methodist Church.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Club of Oregon City was held Thursday afternoon. The club voted to send delegates to the Reed College conference May 15, 16 and 17. Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Canfield, Miss Bedwell, Mrs. Eby and Mrs. Schuchel were appointed. About 35 were present to celebrate the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Shakespeare's birth and enjoyed the following programme, given by the Shakespeare Club, led by Mrs. Randa. Responses to recitations: Synopsis of "Henry V." by Mrs. Jones; "The Hero King" by Mrs. Straight; "The French King" by Mrs. Anderson; "The Comic Figures of the Play" by Mrs. Bowland; "The Woman in the Play" by Miss Bedwell; vocal solo from "As You Like It" by Mrs. Olmstead.

Women voters and their friends are invited to a May-day luncheon which will be held next Friday at the Hotel Multnomah in the blue-room. The event is planned as a part of the National demonstration for suffrage that is being carried on in all the states of the Union. It is expected that Mrs. Emma Smith De Vor, of Tacoma, president of the National Council of Women Voters, will deliver an address. The arrangements are being made by the honorary National president, Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway, and by the vice-president, Mrs. Viola May Coe. Reservations may be made by telephoning Mrs. H. R. Reynolds, Tabor 1468, before April 28.

Mrs. Alice Weister, chairman of the woman's building committee, has issued the following notice: For Every Woman's Organization, all women interested in a woman's building for Portland are invited to come to the Central Library Thursday, April 30, at 2:30 o'clock, room A. It is hoped that no organization of women, no matter how small, will be without a representative at this meeting, which is held for the purpose of receiving ideas from all clubs and all women on the subject of a woman's building.

An appreciative audience was present Wednesday evening at the Neighborhood House, in South Portland, to listen to an interesting address on the subject of "Registering and Voting," delivered by Attorney Isaac Sweet and Miss Fannie Porter, principal of Failing School. Many pertinent questions were asked by the audience, which were answered promptly by the speakers.

Circle No. 7, of the Portland Psychology Club, will hold its final meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. Oliver W. Marshall, in Laurelhurst.

Copyright, The Adams Newspaper Service.

THE week of rehearsal was drawing to its close, and Marian was submitting to the grind with satisfaction. Already she had bought her make-up requirements and selected from her wardrobe the costume she expected to wear for the opening performance on the following Monday night. She was beginning to feel as though she had always belonged to the people of the stage.

"For several days she had seen practically nothing of Ratschenko, the manager. One day he bobbed up, toward the close of the rehearsal, shook hands cordially with her, and asked her to step into his office with him for a moment. With a feeling that he might be on the point of offering her a good contract, she followed him into the cozy office, located at the back of the boxoffice. It was a comfortable room, with its desk, chairs, sofa, softly carpeted floor, and its profusion of actors' and actresses' pictures, all autographed and inscribed to the manager, on the walls.

"Here's a picture of you," said the manager, as you're doing good work," began Ratschenko, when they were seated. "How do you like it, by this time?"

"I like it better every day," returned Marian, flushing with pride at the compliment.

"Glad to hear you say so. I haven't forgotten what I told you, little girl. I'm going to make an actress out of you. There's no limit to the extent you can go. It's all up to you."

"I shall certainly do my very best."

"I'll see that the rough places are smoothed out for you. That's what I'm here for. He looked at her steadily, his eyes narrowed, and she felt that he was really looking at her.

"I have my press agent work up a good publicity campaign for you. Bring me some good pictures of yourself tomorrow. Don't forget." He turned to his desk, and picked out some typewritten sheets, handing them to Marian.

"Here's a picture of you in the publicity campaign. We'll flash this tomorrow morning. Then we'll swing in with some crackerjack follow-up stuff."

Marian's eye ran dazedly down the sheets.

CALENDAR FOR TODAY.

Society.

Tree Joll Club dance this evening at Irvington Club.

Musical recital by students of St. Mary's Academy this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the academy.

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority meeting and luncheon today at University Club.

Miss Rae Dollar will preside at tea this afternoon.

THE week of rehearsal was drawing to its close, and Marian was submitting to the grind with satisfaction.

Already she had bought her make-up requirements and selected from her wardrobe the costume she expected to wear for the opening performance on the following Monday night. She was beginning to feel as though she had always belonged to the people of the stage.

"For several days she had seen practically nothing of Ratschenko, the manager. One day he bobbed up, toward the close of the rehearsal, shook hands cordially with her, and asked her to step into his office with him for a moment. With a feeling that he might be on the point of offering her a good contract, she followed him into the cozy office, located at the back of the boxoffice. It was a comfortable room, with its desk, chairs, sofa, softly carpeted floor, and its profusion of actors' and actresses' pictures, all autographed and inscribed to the manager, on the walls.

"Here's a picture of you," said the manager, as you're doing good work," began Ratschenko, when they were seated. "How do you like it, by this time?"

"I like it better every day," returned Marian, flushing with pride at the compliment.

"Glad to hear you say so. I haven't forgotten what I told you, little girl. I'm going to make an actress out of you. There's no limit to the extent you can go. It's all up to you."

"I shall certainly do my very best."

"I'll see that the rough places are smoothed out for you. That's what I'm here for. He looked at her steadily, his eyes narrowed, and she felt that he was really looking at her.

"I have my press agent work up a good publicity campaign for you. Bring me some good pictures of yourself tomorrow. Don't forget." He turned to his desk, and picked out some typewritten sheets, handing them to Marian.

"Here's a picture of you in the publicity campaign. We'll flash this tomorrow morning. Then we'll swing in with some crackerjack follow-up stuff."

Marian's eye ran dazedly down the sheets.

CALENDAR FOR TODAY.

Society.

Tree Joll Club dance this evening at Irvington Club.

Musical recital by students of St. Mary's Academy this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the academy.

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority meeting and luncheon today at University Club.

Miss Rae Dollar will preside at tea this afternoon.

THE week of rehearsal was drawing to its close, and Marian was submitting to the grind with satisfaction.

Already she had bought her make-up requirements and selected from her wardrobe the costume she expected to wear for the opening performance on the following Monday night. She was beginning to feel as though she had always belonged to the people of the stage.

"For several days she had seen practically nothing of Ratschenko, the manager. One day he bobbed up, toward the close of the rehearsal, shook hands cordially with her, and asked her to step into his office with him for a moment. With a feeling that he might be on the point of offering her a good contract, she followed him into the cozy office, located at the back of the boxoffice. It was a comfortable room, with its desk, chairs, sofa, softly carpeted floor, and its profusion of actors' and actresses' pictures, all autographed and inscribed to the manager, on the walls.

"Here's a picture of you," said the manager, as you're doing good work," began Ratschenko, when they were seated. "How do you like it, by this time?"

"I like it better every day," returned Marian, flushing with pride at the compliment.

"Glad to hear you say so. I haven't forgotten what I told you, little girl. I'm going to make an actress out of you. There's no limit to the extent you can go. It's all up to you."

"I shall certainly do my very best."

"I'll see that the rough places are smoothed out for you. That's what I'm here for. He looked at her steadily, his eyes narrowed, and she felt that he was really looking at her.

sorts, have so little of the cake perfume, they are made of egg substitutes, wholly or in part.

An eggless cake requires an oven a trifle hotter than one with eggs, but, if treated to an irregular heat, it will behave just like other cake—break on top if the heat is increased when it is pretty nearly done, and the sides will not rise sufficiently if the oven is too hot at first.

If at first you do not succeed with an eggless cake, try, try again! The cake made by the first recipe below must not be cut until it is a day old. It is rather too moist to be of the most wholesome sort, but may have an excellent flavor, which nearly makes up for the egg from the taste standpoint, but not from the nutritional. The cake made by the second recipe violates a time-honored proportion for a reason. Ordinarily one-half as much soda as cream of tartar is used in it, while an equal amount is used in this. It does not taste in the cake as it would in biscuit, but gives that shade which might lead one to suppose that it was an egg cake with spices. With half the quantity the cake would be white.

Eggless or Old-Fashioned Poverty Cake—One cup of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, a teaspoon of mixed ground spices with some nutmeg and the larger proportion cinnamon, a pinch of salt, one-half a teaspoon of soda dissolved in one cup of sour milk from one and a half to two cups of flour (the old recipes never gave the exact measurement of flour). Cream butter and sugar together; add spices and stir in and the soda and milk when they foam; then sift in flour and beat well. Bake in a greased tin with paper, pour in batter and bake from 45 to 60 minutes. If well beaten this will rise as high as any egg cake.

Eggless Cake—Divide a cup and a half of flour into two parts. Mix with one part two tablespoons of melted butter, a level teaspoon of cream of tartar and one-half of about three quarters of a cup of milk. Mix with the other half a level teaspoon of soda and the rest of the milk, but the two butters together with a cup of sugar and beat until very smooth. Flavor with vanilla and bake in a paper-lined tin. In the old recipe the cake was made. "The milk for cake should always be divided, and the soda dissolved in one portion and the cream of tartar in another." This is a somewhat ridiculous because the direction given is "some milk."

Cakes like this latter, whether white (with half a teaspoon of soda) or yellow, can be made a little more attractive when cut by sprinkling each slice with powdered sugar. The so-called snow cakes used to be served this way often, and some sorts of cakes in other countries than ours are always so sprinkled with sugar, just as we sprinkle stuffed dates, etc.

A recent request for a substitute for eggs turned a cook to produce a similar event are likely to do almost daily. The makers of egg substitutes are not philanthropists. They put a product on the market that is dear in price considering its food value.

There are delicate eggs, and there are frozen yolks and frozen whites, which bear about the same relation to real and good eggs as does dried fruit to fresh fruit, and they may be used for the same reason—when the fresh eggs are not to be had.

However, eggs are not put into cakes merely because they make them delicate and delicious. They often more than double the cost of a cake, and cakes are not the most expensive. Those of almonds and a little egg cost the most, more, perhaps, than they are worth. The nourishment of a cake, but this is not the fact with our true egg cakes.

The family that is trying to get on without eggs is more likely to have to pay doctor's bills. Let the members turn philosophers and reckon how many eggs may be purchased with the cost of the cake. The expense is never in money alone, but in the unreckonable terms of lost energy, lost opportunity, lost health and happiness for not only the sick one, but for all concerned.

Little Discussions OF Love and Marriage BY BARBARA BOYD.

The Heavy Fetters of Love.

THE Mannishly-dressed Woman notably laid down her book. "I certainly agree with what that writer says," she announced emphatically.

"What does he say?" mildly inquired Grandmother.

"He is discussing marriage," explained the Mannishly-dressed Woman, "and in the course of his remarks, he speaks of the 'heavy fetters of love.' I think that is a very apt description of love and marriage as it is today."

Grandmother laughed. "Seems to me that is exactly what I should say. It isn't. Or if you really insist upon the term 'fetters,' I should say they seem to be very light fetters and very easily broken."

"Not with people who take love seriously, and they are still the majority among us," said the Mannishly-dressed Woman. "I lightly still feel the binding and limiting, and grow restive under it."

"What would you, then?" mildly inquired Grandmother.

"Why can't people enjoy each other's society and companionship without demanding so much from each other?" asked the Mannishly-dressed Woman. "In the old days, a woman's life, for instance, or a woman into a man's, and they discover they are very congenial, that they enjoy each other's society, that they have common interests in common and like to do certain things together. Now, why can't they go on enjoying the things together, and not demand so much from each other?"

"But, no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge? But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

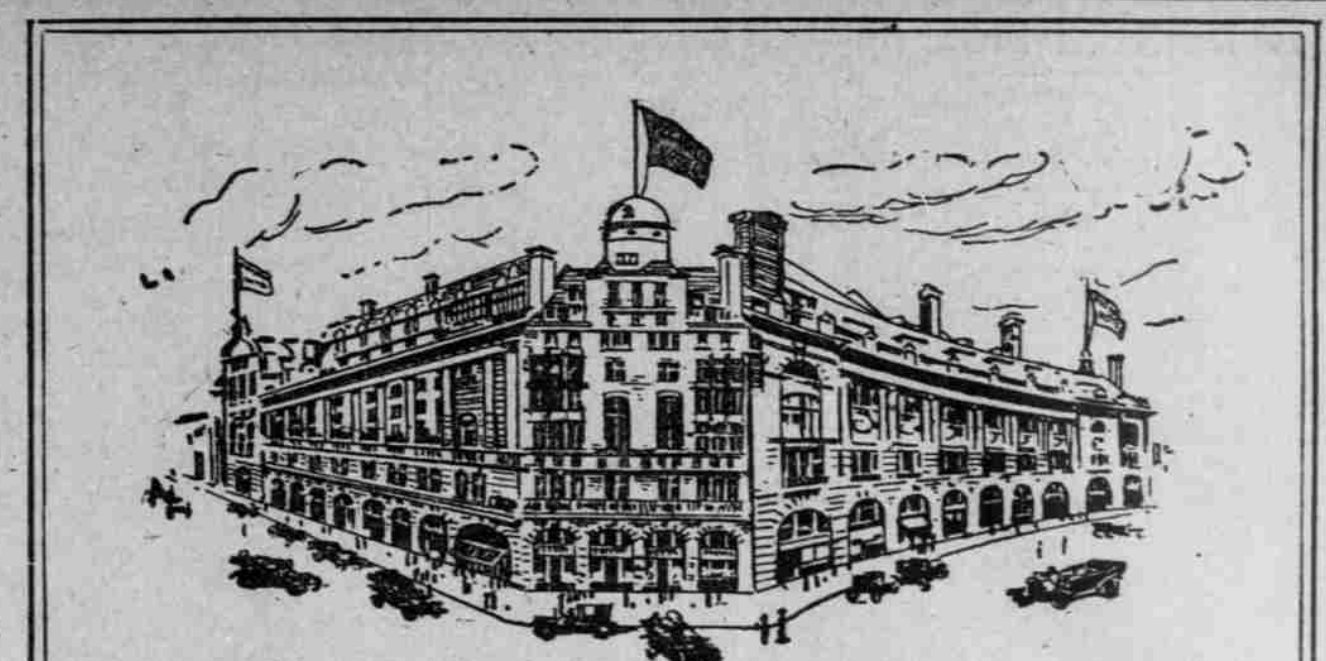

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

"But no, they immediately clamp upon the term 'fetters,' and insist upon taking separately the pleasures and interests in which their tastes diverge?"

EQUIPPED with every modern improvement, the Piccadilly Hotel—situated right in the centre of the West End of London—is the most convenient for all Social Functions, for Shopping and the Theatre. Hot water radiators throughout the building. Hot and cold water and telephone in every room. There are no less than 150 bathrooms. The magnificent Louis XIV. Restaurant is undoubtedly the most beautiful in the metropolis.

PICCADILLY HOTEL

PICCADILLY and REGENT STREET LONDON

F. V. HEIM Managing Director.

Illustrated Brochure and Tariff will be mailed free to prospective visitors on receipt of visiting card on application to International Sleeping Car Co. Dorland Travel Service, 281 Fifth Avenue, New York.

BLUE SKY FIGHT OPENS

State Officials Served With Summons in Test Case.

SALEM, Or., April 24.—(Special.)—Governor West, Corporation Commissioner Watson and Attorney-General Crawford were served with summons and in a suit last night filed against them in the Federal Court in Portland by the National Mercantile Company, of Vancouver, B. C., attacking the constitutionality of the Portland city ordinance.

The following officers were elected: Elders, J. E. Wheeler, D. W. Briggs, Dr. A. S. Nichols; trustees, W. W. Cotton, Frank Robertson, H. C. Campbell, E. J. Fuller, W. R. Mackenzie, D. A. Pattullo, Dr. S. A. Brown; deacons, T. L. Thomas, A. C. Rae, R. S. McKibben, M. Estes Smith, R. C. Finch and T. C. McIntyre; Sunday school superintendent, J. E. Fung.

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

Reports stated progress in all departments. The enrollment of the

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.

The city will deposit $2500 with the Circuit Court and Mrs. Holland will be given an opportunity to prove that the ground is worth more than that amount. In the meantime the street will be established.