crop will be almost a total failure, orchards, however, and these comrise a high percentage of the total acrege, look fairly well. In some instances full crop is expected in these orchards, ut in some of the others not over half a rop. No accurate estimate or even intelligent guess can be made at this time of the probable output of prunes in Oregon and Washington.

The present unsatisfactory condition is iue to the prevalence of excessive cold rains, which have prevented pollenization in some instances and have also prevented the sap from flowing as it should to sup-

Very little, if any, business has been fone yet by packers. Growers, realizing this, of course, are not inclined to open negotiations for the sale of their fruit. California went to a high figure. The market, however, is now about half ent lower than the highest point that was reached for the new crop. In view of the uncertainty of the situation, Euroean and Fastern buyers are making no equiries. Europe, in fact, is not inclined The attitude of buyers in Europe and the East in respect to prunes is about the same as regards other commodities. When the market gets above the normal stage they prefer to wait and buy the article as it is needed instead of speculating in

About Borrowing Money

Very few people will lend you money because you ask for it, or simply because you need it.

You must show that you are worthy of credit before you can expect it. The disposition to pay back what you borrow is not enough. You must show your ability to do it.

Plan to put yourself in a position to be well rated and build up a balance in the bank. Then when you need accommodation it is yours for the asking.
