GLORIOUS sunshine, perfect Spring weather, and an artistic setting of fragrant white blossoms and greenery marked the wedding of Miss Frances Wilson and Gordon Forbes, which took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Wilson residence. The house is surrounded by lovely gardens, magnificent trees and shrubbery, and is an ideal place for a wedding. Charm and simplicity characterized the affair, and the bride, considered one of Portland's fairest daughters, was never fairer than in her bridal robes. Right Rev. Charles Scadding officiated, and Dr. George F. Wilson gave his daughter into the keeping of the bridegroom.

The bride was unusually pretty in a lovely, soft, shimmering ivory satin gown, trimmed with exquisite Bohemian lace, and gold and silver beads. Similar lace fastened into a fascinating little Dutch cap confined her veil, and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and roses. She of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Arthur Murray Sherwood, and Howell Forbes acted as his brother's best man.

Only the members of the Wilson family and a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony, and at 5 o'clock an additional number of close friends were bidden to the reception.

Receiving with the bridal party were the bride's aunts, Misses Clementine and Virginia Wilson, and her father, Dr. Wilson. The rooms were adorned prettily with a profusion of white iris, lily roses, snap dragons, clusters of lovely Mexican orange blossoms, and ferns developing the color scheme of white and green. A buffet supper was served, and the table was presided over by Mrs. Walter John Burns, Mrs. R. S. Greenleaf, Mrs. George Kirkham Smith and Mrs. Thomas Robertson.

The Wilson family, one of the oldest in Portland, Mrs. Forbes is tremendously popular in Portland society, and very interesting and lovable. She has traveled extensively both in the United States and abroad.

Mrs. Forbes was associated with Arthur Murray Sherwood now his brother-in-law, in a large ranch in Upper White Salmon, Wash., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Murray Forbes, of Princeton, N. J. He is a Princeton man and also popular in Portland society.

The engagement of Miss Wilson and Mrs. Forbes was made last Fall at an informal tea given by Mrs. George Kirkham Smith.

Mrs. J. W. Lattimer was hostess for a matinee party Wednesday afternoon at the Heilig Theater, followed by tea at the Hotel Portland. Mrs. Lattimer's guests were: Mrs. Benjamin Weaver, Mrs. Cora Puffer and Mrs. Edmund B. Gase.

Mrs. Henry Lead Corbett and Mrs. Elliott Ruggles Corbett have issued invitations for a large reception to be given on Thursday afternoon at their residences.

This evening the Bridge Club, which is composed of prominent members of the smart set, will meet at the home of Miss Clara Weidler for dinner, and later will attend the performance of "Within the Law" at the Heilig Theater. A supper at the home of Miss Claire Houghton will round out the evening's gaiety.

TAFETTA FROCK WITH DASHING BOWS AND RUFFLES IS NEW STREET COSTUME.

Street Dress of Chartreuse Taffeta.

Dame Fashion's latest edict comes in the form of a chic taffeta frock for street wear. The sash, draped low in front is tied in jaunty bustle effect at the back of the waist line. A ruffle borders the dashing jacket. Chartreuse tones are the coloring for this modish frock. The hat is of the same color with black velvet bow.

Main street. All members are requested to attend.

Brooklyn Women's Christian Temperance Union met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hogan, 494 East Twentieth street. A boys' silver medal contest will be given Sunday at 7 P. M. at the Calvary Baptist Church, East Eighth and Grant streets. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Coty, East Twentieth and Clinton streets, May 19, at which time final arrangements will be made for their open-air meeting June 2.

The biology department of the Portland Woman's Club will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Women of Woodcraft Hall. Dr. Harry Beale Torrey will give the last of his series of lectures. His subject will be "Death."

Mush Notes.
EGOTISTIC youths with flexible affections have from time immemorial made it their avocation to bombard young women of the stage with mush notes. Every actress gets them. Feminine charms seem to cast a spell across the footlights that plays curious havoc with many a masculine heart down in the audience.

"Latter, Miss Winthrop," said the stage-door keeper to Marian on the fourth day of the week's run of "The Climbers."

Marian opened the letter with surprise, after a futile effort to find anything familiar in the handwriting in which it was addressed. Surprise gave way to sheer amazement, as she let her eye run down the written page. Thus ran the letter:

"My dear Miss Winthrop; I've seen you in two performances this week and will be in the theater again on Thursday night. You've got me going forty different ways. I'm crazy about you. I can't sleep for thinking about you. All you've got to do is to say the word, and you can have anything I've got. I'm not one of the city's gilded millionaires, but what I've got is yours for the asking.

"I never had a girl affect me the way you do. It was love at first sight and I don't care who knows it. You're the girl I've dreamed about for years, although I never saw you until Monday night. Everything about you simply knocked me silly. Your voice, your eyes, your face—everything.

"I'll be at Thursday night's performance. I'll be in the second row. In the aisle seat on the right-hand side. You can't miss me. For good luck, I'll wear a red carnation. If you'll look at me and smile, I'll be the happiest man on earth. If you want me to meet you at the stage door after the show, look at me and smile, and I'll be there. Don't forget the arrangement. I'll be waiting.

"Yours to a cinder. Y. W. C. A. The nerve!" sniffed Marian, tearing up the letter. "What on earth do people take a woman for, anyway, just because she happens to be making her living on the stage, she mused, rebelliously inwardly against the liberty the writer of the letter had taken with her."

Mrs. Bert O. Carl.

The following programme has been arranged for the entertainment and musical to be given tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the main parlor of the Hotel Portland:

Arrival of May Queen "Laura" and Misses May Queen, Frederick Eggert; Helen Dietrich, piano solo, "Lullaby" (by Brahms), Francis E. McMillan; dance, "Spring Fairy"; Helen Dietrich, piano solo, "Waltz"; "A flat" (by Chopin), Miss Jessie L. Lewis; reading from "Fields of A-bloom," original verse, Florence Crawford; group of five songs, words by Florence Crawford, music by Edith Haines Kuester; "The Lilacs," Sweet, Miss Edith Haines Kuester; "Gay Daffodil," "The Buttercup," Mrs. B. O. Carl; "The Violet," Joseph H. Berry; "The Crocus," "The Queen Anne's Lace," Mrs. Fred Olson; ballet by De Libea, Miss Edythe McMillan; address, "Treating the Prisoner as an Individual," George A. Thacher, Accompanist, Miss Jessie L. Lewis, Mrs. John P. Yarrum, Miss Eda Trotter.

and dressed and made up for the night's performance. It was Thursday. The smitten man would be in the audience, in the second row. Already she could feel his gaze boring her through. She felt weak, sick, devoid of all interest in her share of the impending performance.

"What's the matter, Winthrop?" demanded the ingenue, who had dashed into the room and begun to fix into her make-up. "Bad news?" "I saw your eyes glued to a letter back in the hall." "Bad news, yes," answered Marian. "Honest? I'm awfully sorry," was the sympathetic response.

"News from some fresh man that he wanted me to smile at him over the footlights tonight," pursued Marian with a sneer.

"Fahaw, is that all?" laughed the other. "That's easy. Chuck your eyes in his direction, and if he looks at you, slip him a smile. Otherwise, the frozen glare for his. But it's generally the old fogies who write mush notes. The live ones are up and coming. They manage to find a way to take you out to supper without writing any fool letters. They're too wise to put anything on paper."

Hints on Health

By Dr. Frederick M. Rossiter.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Rossiter will not make diagnoses of individual diseases, as such service cannot be rendered.

Puffiness Under Eyelids.
MRS. H. W. F. writes: "Have been reading your Hints on Health in The Oregonian with much interest. I am troubled with puffiness under the eyes and the skin is discolored. Health is generally good, except for an occasional bilious headache. Have no kidney trouble. Am 40 years old and weigh 125."

Reply.
Puffiness under the eyes and dark rings under the eyes are conditions due to weariness, fatigue and poor circulation. By poor circulation I do not mean that there is necessarily any heart trouble, but that the blood is sluggish in its movement in the vital organs. There is a tendency for too much blood to collect in the large veins as in the portal system.

The best remedy for this condition is the outdoor life. Walking, working in the garden—something that will keep you clear of doors several hours a day. Drink two to three quarts of water daily. If you exercise freely the water drinking will be easy.

Paralysis, Water Drinking.
An Oregonian writes: "Having read your article on Food Values in The Oregonian yesterday, would like to know if you would write a series of articles on the combining of the vital organs. There is a tendency for too much blood to collect in the large veins as in the portal system. Overwork may be a cause. Overexertion is more likely to precipitate a crisis.

Reply.
1. The series is on now. Others are writing menus.
2. Cerebral hemorrhage not due to accident is usually due to increased blood-pressure with a degenerative condition of the small blood vessels in the brain. Paralysis follows a hemorrhage in the brain, or it may be due to pressure on the brain or spinal cord, or it may be due to growths in the brain and to diseases changes in the brain tissue or the same in the spinal cord. Paralysis due to cerebral hemorrhage is not common under 40. It is more common under 50. Overwork may be a cause. Overexertion is more likely to precipitate a crisis.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

INTERESTING notes gleaned from the reports of the travelers' aid department of the Young Women's Christian Association, presented at the regular meeting this week, tell of splendid work done by that branch of the organization during the past month 1683 persons were given assistance. Young and old, men, women and children, the lonely, the crippled, the feeble-minded, the straying girl and the lost children, drunken men and women, all came under the care and guidance of the matrons at the different depots.

An unusual number of sick persons were helped and sent to the hospitals. One of the matrons remarked that it must have been invalids' month.

Women taken suddenly ill, women seeking advice on every imaginable subject, girls with every sign indicating that they were inclined to be wayward, girls with the appearance of having run away from home, received the advice and gentle, but firm, directing of the women who devote their time to the travelers' aid work. Women who have been deserted by their husbands have been cared for until relatives and friends could be located.

When Selecting a home for the Summer months, the most important points to be considered are comfort of accommodations, environment surrounding these accommodations, and rates that appeal from an economical standpoint. This hostelry meets all these requirements.

into believing that because a baking powder foamed up over the top of a glass when water was added, that it was a good, pure and strong baking powder?

It foams because it contains ALBUMEN (sometimes called the white of egg.)

ALBUMEN in baking powder is no help in the baking.

It does not make a stronger or better baking powder.

It deceives the consumer when she sees it foam in the glass.

State after state has ruled that baking powder mixed with ALBUMEN is illegal and has stopped the sale of the stuff.

United States Government authorities have declared that the water glass test is a fraud, and that albumen does not help the baking.

Food commissioners North, South, East and West have denounced the albumen fraud.

DO NOT LET FAKIRS FOOL YOU.

The manufacturers of K C BAKING Powder have never found it necessary to resort to such fraudulent methods.

K C BAKING POWDER Contains No Albumen

It is a pure food baking powder, sold at an honest price and no better can be bought at any price.
