

ART EXHIBIT DRAWS

Collection of Etchings and Other Works Worthy.

DISPLAY CLOSES MONDAY

Paintings of Millet, Corot, Meryon and Cameron on Exhibition at Museum—Varied Subjects of Interest to Public.

BY LILIAN TINGLE.

An exhibit of etchings, lithographs and woodcuts by Millet, Corot, Meryon and D. Y. Cameron is now shown at the Museum of Art. This exhibit is of interest not only to the collector, who takes keen pleasure in rare examples, and to the artist who has an appreciation of fine points of technique, but also to the average person who enjoys beauties of the line and tone and knows what he likes without being able to give critical reasons for his liking.

In this exhibit the average person may feel safe in praising anything he fancies, for all are works of acknowledged masters. Even the "dollar test," which some otherwise worthy people insist on applying to works of art, may be satisfactorily met in this exhibit, for the etchings of D. Y. Cameron, the only living artist here represented, are said to be increasing in value more rapidly than those of any other living etcher. The names of the other artists are guarantees of costliness.

Drawings and Paintings Famous.

Millet's etchings are not numerous, his drawings and paintings being the more famous. Some in this collection were purchased from his son and his widow, and most of them are classed as "very rare." A dry print, "The Goose Girl," illustrates the skill with which Millet could express moment and vitality with a marvelous economy of means.

The group includes a lithograph of the well-known "Sower" and an etching of the equally well-known "Gleaners." A study of a peasant woman and child, entitled "Too Hot," derives additional interest from the fact that it was Millet's own copy.

Meryon's studies of old Paris are interesting from a historical as well as from an artistic point of view, especially his "Pont au Change," "The Old Pump of Notre Dame," "The Morgue," "The Louvre" and "The Street of the Bad Boy."

Meryon was a sailor and a poet as well as an etcher, and some record of his wanderings may be seen in "New Caledonia" and "New Zealand," executed in his earlier drier manner.

Scottish Scenery Fascinating.

Cameron's work gives us fascinating glimpses of characteristic Scottish scenery by mountain, lake and sea coast, side by side with peaceful Dutch windmills and canals, views of London that somehow suggest Thackeray's London rather than today's "London of the Motor 'Bus," and of romantic Italian subjects and quiet cathedral interiors. The much reproduced "Veronica, a Maid of Italy," and "Old Age," a charming and undoubtedly Scottish old lady, are almost the only examples shown of Cameron's portrait work, and are enough to make one wish for more.

The exhibit remains open only until May 18.

TO SHANGHAI PARTY.

Republican Leaders Object to Election of Professed Party Convert.

PORTLAND, May 11.—The Republicans of Oregon are entitled to have a Republican committee from this state. C. W. Ackerson, who claims to be a Republican, is a candidate. He registered as a Progressive January 8, 1914. Then signed petition of H. W. Coe to be Progressive National committee. Then cancelled his registration as a Progressive and registered as a Republican and immediately filed his candidacy for membership on Republican National committee. Has been an intimate and convenient understudy of the Progressive National committee man and seems now to be in combination with him in an attempt to shanghai the Republican organization. His candidacy is being actively backed by parties hostile to the Republican party and having personal interests and private personal grudges to serve. His erratic and excitable temperament has frequently led him to flood the columns of the press with violent attacks upon the Republican party and vicious personal abuse of prominent Republicans and life-long residents of the state.

It is a grave abuse for parties who are not Republican to register as such. It is a grave abuse for outsiders to attempt the capture of a political party to gratify a personal grudge and to promote party discord. It is an abuse against which fair-minded men of all parties will rise in protest. We can never have a reunited party by pushing to the front political hotheads and men who are political reformers simply for the sake of office. Having been a Republican only 24 hours when he announced his candidacy for the highest honorary position in the gift of the party, is some indication of what Mr. Ackerson's motive was in registering as a Republican. As Hon. Ralph E. Williams is the only Republican who is a candidate for Republican National committee, we feel warranted in urging all loyal Republicans in the state to give him their earnest and enthusiastic support.

CREAMERIES ARE VISITED

Twenty Students on Inspection Trip in Auto Truck in City.

Twenty students of the Oregon Agricultural College, touring the Willamette Valley in an auto truck, were in Portland yesterday to inspect creameries and the milk division of the city health department. They were the guests of Dr. D. W. Mack and City Milk Chemist Callaway.

The party carries full camping equipment. Professor R. R. Graves, dairy inspector of the college, is in charge of the trip.

& Power Company to operate cars over the city's bridges at a rate of 2 cents a car, the company yesterday made an application for the franchise under new conditions.

The old franchise, which had gone nearly to the point of final adoption, was killed because some typographical errors were found. It was up to the company to make new applications or let the proposition drop and operate cars under the contract system. The company's new application for a franchise indicates a desire to drop the contract plan.

MARKET IS OPEN TODAY

Farmers Who Sold From Wagons Saturday Expected Again at Albina.

The local public market on Knott street in Albina will be opened today from 8 to 11 A. M. T. J. Murphy, president of the Albina Business Men's Club, said yesterday that the market will be continued. The women's department of the market, which proved a success last Saturday, will be open today. There were seven women on the street Saturday and they sold out home-cooked food quickly. Farmers who were present Saturday promised to come again.

The Albina district has received a big benefit from the market, according to the reports of business men. Mr. Murphy says it has increased local sales in other lines of business.

The Business Men's Club has worked under difficulty for the reason it has not had funds to provide tables along the street. The farmers have been selling from wagons.

PROMINENT MEN HELP TO SEAL BALLOT BOX, WHICH WILL NOT BE OPENED UNTIL FESTIVAL QUEEN CONTEST CLOSSES.

At 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, in the office of Superintendent of Amusements George L. Baker, at Rose Festival headquarters, the huge ballot box in which the secret ballots for the candidates in the Festival's Queen election contest will be deposited during the final week of the contest, was officially sealed. George W. Armstrong, of Wells, Fargo & Co., superintended the affixing of the seals over the two big padlocks, and Judge W. N. Gatens and S. C. Pier, of the Marshall-Wells Company, acting as official judges, tied the red and white ribbons, official Festival colors, which encircled the box, and which also were sealed with wax.

A semi-final tally covering all the votes previously cast was completed yesterday afternoon. No more votes will be counted nor tallies made until after the close of the contest, at 11 o'clock next Saturday night. Official count will be made next Monday morning, in the presence of representatives of all the candidates, after Judge Gatens breaks the seals and unlocks the padlocks.

The interest in the campaign is extremely keen, and an exciting finish, in which whirlwind campaigns and big blocks of special coupons will figure, is predicted.

INDIAN BEAUTY HERE

Amelia Thomas, a Lapwai, Center Federal Court Crowd.

HER INFANT TIED TO BOARD

Dozens of Tribesmen From Many Reservations Are in Attendance on United States Grand Jury Probe of Liquor Cases.

Dozens of Indians, representing many tribes and coming from as far north as Idaho and as far south as California, have been in attendance as witnesses the past few days before the United States grand jury, sitting in the Federal building.

There are several young women among them, two of whom are Pitt River Indians, from Modoc County, California, who, spending the Winter on the Klamath reservation, are required to tell what they know of liquor-selling cases. Others came from the Siletz reservation, the Umatilla reservation, and one, Mrs. Amelia Johns Thomas, from the Lapwai reservation.

Of all the copper-muzzed belles that have waited in the corridors on the third floor of the Federal building for their appearance, Amelia has been voted the prettiest by everyone who has seen her. The attaches of the Federal court, who have seen the Indians come and go before grand jury sessions for years, declare that she is the most beautiful Indian girl who has ever been seen there.

Amelia, who is 18, is a member of the Nes Perce tribe. As the result of a visit to some friends on the Umatilla reservation last Winter she was subpoenaed as a witness in a case wherein someone has sold firewater to the wards of the Government.

Amelia has a baby, 3 months old, a wee, wriggling boy—although he can't wriggle much, strapped as he is to a board which serves as a cradle in the arms of the mother. His eyes are like black shoe buttons, and his principal interest in life is to get his dinner, and to get it often.

Sitting demurely, with downcast eyes and trundling her baby to keep him quiet, Amelia was the center of attraction in the Federal building corridor yesterday. Not that the baby, whose name is Sam, has been heard to cry. Amelia just trundles him lovingly in order to have something to do, with so many strange and curious eyes upon her through the long hours that case waits for her turn. But Sam makes the most amazing faces at his admirers, and opens his little brown mouth in the widest yawns, possibly to show how bored he is with so much attention. At night his mother takes him from the board, which is to start him "straight" in life. When he is about a year old he will be released, he is together, and allowed to learn to walk.

With Amelia is her friend—"cousin," they will tell you, if you ask them—Stella, from the Umatilla reservation.
