When a man knocks the ball over the fence with two men on, he is entitled to mention in the first paragraph. Outfielder Ellis, of Los Angeles, committed that overt act yesterday, but, unfortunately for the Dillonites, Ellis' homer made no difference in the outcome.

Portland signalized its return home by defeating Los Angeles 5-3 and chalking up its sixth straight victory before 2000 welcoming fans.

The Angel downfall was due to Musser's wildness in the third inning. The ex-Washingtonian walked three and allowed three hits in the third inning, and he couldn't buck that combination of threes and expect to come out whole.

West and Bancroft Walk.

West opened with a walk, Bancroft followed suit and Derrick filled the bases with a hit to centerfield. Maggert might have gobbled in this fly, but he thought fills could reach it and did not move from his tracks.

West scored on Doane's out, Page making a great play, and then Kores walked, again filling the bases. Buddy Ryan thereupon drove the ball against the right field fence, scoring Bancroft and Derrick. Kores scored on Rodgers' out and Ryan on Lober's single to out and Ryan on Lober's single to
