BY ROSCOE FAWCETT, Howard Ehmks, $10,000 schoolboy pitcher, won his seventh straight victory for Los Angeles yesterday in a hard-fought bout that taxed the resources of both combatants. Ehmke won, 6-5, because of a sensational ninth-inning rally by his pais, and, despite a home run by Doane in the seventh that scored Derrick ahead of seventh that scored Derrick ahead of him.

Ehmke won, it must be repeated, mainly because of the batwork of Harl Maggert and of Harry Meek, the latter a pinch hitter who carned his week's paycheck by starting the avalanche off Higginbotham in the ninth.

Ehmke won, although he allowed 11 hits, as against nine pummeled out onto the sprouting grass off Krause and Higginbotham.

having swayed through all the emoof scintiliating baseball, in which startling plays and shifts of men were displayed in profusion.

Harry Meek, pinch hitter extraordinary, really was to blame for the Beaver downfall after six wins in a row. Meek was trotted out to bat for Ehmke in the ninth inning with one out and the score 5-4 in Portland's favor. Meek singled to short, and, after two were out, Page followed swit with a shot to right field.

suit with a shot to right field.

Maggert took his turn at but and at first the Beavers had a notion to walk him, for he was smiting the ball with vigor yesterday. But Higginbotham said "no" and a moment later Maggert pitched for Sacramento and was never said "no" and a moment later Maggert in the said "no" and "no said "no" and a moment later Maggert smashed the leather to deep left field for two bases, scoring two runs and clinching the see-saw engagement.

Jack Ryan pitched the last inning for the Angels, but Walt McCredie's pinch hitting brigade couldn't touch him. And so it ended, 6-5, in the Angels' favor. And so it is that this remarkable Glendale high school kid. Six feet two or three inches of him, is today leading the Coast League pitchers with seven wins and no defeats.

Notes of the Game.

Ehmke pitches from the neighborhood of his ankles and has a most deceiving delivery. Without question the kid is going to be a hig leaguer some day, unless he develops a weakness of heart like that other Angel monolith, "Flame" Delin. He has plenty of speed, good control and fast breaking hocks, and throws sidearm and underhand with equal facility.

Bancroft negotiated mostler startling fielding stant in the initial inning, when he backed up third and caught Fisher's overthrow, thereby scutting off an Angel fally.

coverthrow, thereby scutting off an Angel Italiy.

Derrick joined the calcium club yesterday with a great one-hand vatch, retiring Wolter to the seventh.

Umptre Phyle can thank Ed Finney for extriousing him from a bad situation in the third. Beles dropped the ball tagging Derrick at home, but Phyle couldn't see it and called Derrick out. He had the entire Portland tham hanging on his seek in a moment, but, when he appealed to Finney, his partner set him right. It was Finney's turn to act the buffer then, for Abstelland and Maggert ill on him hard for doing him artine, and Maggert ill on him hard for doing him duty. Nobody could gather what their argument was about unless on a decision at third the inning hefore, when Lober stepped over the bag. Certainly Soles dropped the ball at the plate in pilin view of swarybody and it couldn't have been that the Angela were trabbling about that.

Travers was a trifle weak in his play against his American opponent. Topping's approaching was perfect and he led nearly all the way.

The winhaffie. when Ellis singled deep to Speas, Harl did not even draw a throw home, so as to help Bliss down to second. This was due partly to Maggert and mostly to his coacher, Harry Meek. But Ellis was not anchored long at first, for, when Moore drove a long sacrifice fly to Speas a-moment later, Blil pegged homeward when he hadn't one chance in 50 of heading off Harl. By so doing he permitted Ellis to reach second with the tying run.

Placed under a microscope, there isn't a great deal of distinction between the Coast and Northwest Leagues, but, you cannot make Portland fans believe it. They are quick to pick the flaws in the B league play, but prone to pass up the AA miscues.
