TRAINMEN NOT INCLUDED IN STRIKE OF THE WESTERN LINES REGARDED AS IMPROBABLE.

After Conference G. L. Richardson Says Firemen and Engineers' Call Would Not Affect Others. Even if the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers should call a general strike on all of the 55 lines West of the Mississippi, which is regarded as improbable among railroad men at the present time, there is no indication that the two organizations of trainmen—the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railroad Conductors—will affiliate with them in the movement, according to the opinion expressed yesterday by G. L. Richardson, of the Brotherhood of Trainmen. Mr. Richardson returned yesterday from a convention of the brotherhoods of the firemen and the engineers, and the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, which was held in Spokane. Prior to this, the engineers' organizations had been in convention in Chicago until last week, and after the adjournment of the Chicago meeting, the impression got abroad that a general strike might be called by them.

"At the same time it was rumored that the two organizations of the trainmen might affiliate with the engineers in case such a strike were called," says Mr. Richardson. "From the results of the meeting in Spokane I can see no reason why at this time or at any time this year, the trainmen should affiliate with the engineers' organization to conduct such a movement. The attitude taken by the trainmen is that the position of the engineers is not of such character as to warrant consistently that the trainmen should affiliate with them in the event of a strike. The trainmen have carried no negotiations sufficiently far to call for such action."

ROSE PRIZES ARE OFFERED Four Special Awards to Be Made at Central Library Tomorrow.

Kleiser; Seven Joseph Hill, prize donated by Franklin T. Griffith; Seven Madam Melanie Souper, prize donated by C. C. Coit.

CAMERA MAN HAS PERILOUS ADVENTURE.

WITHIN A QUARTER OF AN INCH OF DEATH—WHEN LYMAN H. HOWE'S CAMERA MAN WAS CAUGHT IN THE GRAND CANYON OF ARIZONA.

Few men, even on the field of battle, perhaps, have experienced moments of greater danger than came to Lyman H. Howe's photographer recently while cinematographing the Grand Canyon of Arizona. It was his desire to photograph a scene from a position in midair, which, it is said, had never been attempted, that brought Howe's photographer within an inch of death. A quarter-inch rope was all that held the photographer suspended over a chasm one mile deep. The rope was caught in the pulley and was gradually "sawing" through. Provisionally the rope finally was unstung by the photographer, who revolved on its end. Then the guide by heroic efforts succeeded in pulling up the half-conscious camera man to terra firma. The camera man was rewarded for his perilous adventure by scenes of interest which are included in the production at Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival, which comes to the Heilig Theater for Rose Festival week, every day at 2 P. M. and 8:30 P. M., beginning this afternoon.

PLAY SAYS GOOD-BYE

"The Fighting Hope" Opens at Baker for Farewell Week.

CHOICE IS DRAMATIC ONE

Notable Blanche Bates' Success Under Belasco Gives Players Big Opportunity—Matinee Every Day Except Today.

"THE FIGHTING HOPE." A Play in Three Acts, by William J. Hurlbut, Presented at the Baker Theater.

Cast. Burton Temple, Edward C. Woodruff, Marshall Craven, Raymond Wells, Robert Granger, Walter B. Gilbert, Anna ... Alice Fleming, Mrs. Mason ... Grace Lord. BY LEONE CASS BAER. As the season's farewell offering Manager Bates chose "The Fighting Hope," and the opening performance yesterday proved the good understanding of Mr. Bates as to what the public wants. The play is of those sterling dramas of modern life which test to a fine degree the ability of the cast. It was one of the big successes of Blanche Bates under the tutelage of Belasco and the reproduction, ambitious as it is, calls into service the talents of the entire Baker theater. When the final curtain drops only pleasant memories remain. The play is brilliant and with a warm heart interest. The players won fitting recognition from appreciative opening audiences. It will please the Festival.

"The Fighting Hope" was written by William J. Hurlbut and attuned to the modern stage by Belasco. It deals with the over-interesting problem of Wall street and its high finance, an intense mother love and domestic fidelity and the follies and foibles of men of a modern, well understood society. The play opens with the wife of an ex-cashier of a big trust company trying to save her husband, whom she believes innocent. She believes the president of the bank guilty of the crime for which he is being convicted and sentenced. In her fight to clear his name and protect their children she gets employment as a stenographer in the office of the bank president, for the one purpose of securing evidence upon which to convict him and free her husband. The public when given the Hawaiian Troubadour and Montana Bill, the cowboy singer, McElroy and his band were heard in two complete concerts. The whole bill was well rounded out by the matinee and night performances.

With indifferent weather conditions the change of programme at the Oaks Amusement Park began yesterday under adverse circumstances. Despite the showers two medium-sized crowds gathered in the open-air amphitheater for the matinee and night performances.

The Rich Musical Comedy Company presented an entirely new bill, "The Rounders," especially appropriate to Rose Festival week. Capital new songs were those given by the Hawaiian Troubadour and Montana Bill, the cowboy singer. McElroy and his band were heard in two complete concerts. The whole bill was well rounded out by the matinee and night performances. RETURN OF LOOT AWAITED Detectives Expect Seattle Sheriff to Send Jewelry Dug Up.

Detective Captain Baty yesterday received no further word from Sheriff Cuddehe in Seattle as to the disposition of the jewelry found in a Seattle back yard, the loot of the home of Mrs. Bertha Loewenberg, of 742 Hoyt street. Captain Baty said he intended to wait a few days to give the Seattle Sheriff time to decide whether or not he would give up the jewelry after formal demand is made on him.

The loot, said to be worth nearly $800, includes rings, brooches and bracelets. Arthur James Waters, a boy thief, who was arrested in San Jose, Cal., confessed to Detectives Pat McCleary and Swensen concerning the robbery and told them the loot was buried in Seattle. Sheriff Cuddehe, of Seattle, was asked to dig it up and return it.

sitting on air, plays while the instrument turns over and over. Mary Gray, the variety girl with a winning personality gets unlimited applause, and deservedly. She sings "He's a Devil, in His Own Home Town" with a delightful winsomeness that is irresistible. Her clever taking of a man's part in putting her arms about herself brought an uproar of laughter and applause. The Rathskeller trio, melody monarchs, do singing and playing that is worth while. Their rendition of "The Spaniard Who Blighted My Life" is a scream. This tuneful trio received several hearty encores yesterday as a testimonial of their work. The "Two Georges," called "scandalous" on the programme, do some hair-raising tumbling acts. Ed George, acting in a slightly intoxicated condition, meets a lively bell-boy who "gets him going." This act, like the rest of the bill, has a lot of fun. Movies and music complete the entertainment.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY CREATES MANY FUNNY SITUATIONS. "Facing the Music, or the Morning After" Greeted by Applause—Actors Posing in Clever Festival-Week Offering.

There's a laugh for every minute in which the curtain is up at the Lyric this week. The Newman-Foltz Company is presenting "Facing the Music, or the Morning After." There is a mix-up in which Rev. John Smith and his wife and the other Mr. John Smith and his wife, one Sergeant Duffel, a real Vine-street station detective; a servant, an actress and a guest in the house figure. Mistaken identity creating a hundred funny situations are the key note to the delightful and interesting little play that is the merry-maker for the festival week.

Walter Newman, the "other Mr. Smith," is clever in his delineation of the husband who comes home "the morning after." Storms of applause greet him. Deserving special mention is Edesse Fowler, who is Mrs. Ponting, housekeeper to the Smiths. She is the English serving woman.

Frank Kelly is the reverend, and his wife, one Sergeant Duffel, a real Vine-street station detective; a servant, an actress and a guest in the house figure. Mistaken identity creating a hundred funny situations are the key note to the delightful and interesting little play that is the merry-maker for the festival week.

"Facing the Music" will run all week, with a new act every day except Sunday. Tonight amateurs will make additional entertainment. Prizes will be awarded for the best three acts.
