FOREIGN CROP KEY

Will Depend on Europe.

AMERICAN PROSPECTS GOOD

Vines in England and Germany Made Good Start but Insect Pests Threaten Damage - Small Carry-Over Surplus.

The position of the Oregon hop market in the coming season will depend almost entirely on crop developments in Europe. There is no great surplus of stocks this year and a shortage in the world's supply could easily occur if the crops in any of the great producing countries should come down light. Up to the present time everything favors a fairly large producing. fairly large production.

The 1918 teason started with a carryover of some 300,000 cwt, of hops of the 1912 crep. It was plain that this large quantity would sooner or later become a burdensome load on the market and such proved to be the case, for after the active buying season was over prices sagged until they touched the present low level.

The new season will start out with better promise, for against a 300,000 cwt, carryover last year the next market will open with a surplus of only about 80,000 cwt, a quantity that is not likely to have an adverse effect on the world's market.

Similar conditions prevail in the Conti-ental districts. Vermin are reported in rance, Helgium, Alsace, Hallertau, Sazz. France, Heigium, Alsace, Hallertau, Saaz, Auscha, Dauba and the several Austrian dis-tricts. Mail advices are not as favorable as they were earlier, as the growth has been checked by the unfavorable climatic

The markets in all quarters are inactive. The British Board of Agriculture reports as regards the berough market that during the past menth the demand for English hops has beeen rather more active, but prices paid to growers recently have not exceeded in to its los per cwt. There is, however, an absence of selling pressure on the market and several country holders, being aware of the serious reduction of available stocks, are declining bids. The Lendon trade in American hops is slow.

The beer business in Great Britain, as disclosed by the annual brewing return, retalls, $2.25 per dozen; half-pound faits, $2.45; Alaska pink. $1.40; to i6 los per cut. There is, however, and several country holders, being aware of the serious reduction of available stocks, are deciling bids. The London trade in American hops is slow.

The beer business in Great Britain, as disclosed by the annual brewing return, recently published, shows production for the year ended September 30, 1913, of $7.078.760 barrels, an increase of $70.833 over the output of the preceding year. The quantity of hops consumed during the last year was against $49.507 cwts. or 1.696 pounds per barrel, as against $49.507 cwts. 1.705 pounds per barrel, during the preceding year.

MARKET FOR NEW WHEAT IS WEAK

Prices Are Depressed by Declines in East and in Europe.

The undertone of the wheat market continues weak and the frequent declines in the East and abroad add to the softness here. No effort is being made to transact business in new wheat in the country, Some of the dealers have put out prices, but growers are not disposed to sell. Spot grain is quiet.

The first car of Mississippi tomatoes will arrive today and will sell at $1.50 a crate.
A car of new potatoes and a car of white onlone arrived yesterday.

Side of Stock Market

Poultry Difficult to Move. Demand in the poultry market seems to have ceased. The street was well stocked and prices were, therefore, weak. Buyers were disposed to offer only 12 cents for hens, but 13 cents was obtained in a limited way. Brollers were quoted at 18 cents. Dressed veal was firm and good stock was scarce. The egg market was firm with sales at 21% and 22 cents case count. Candled eggs sold at 24 cents on the street. Butter and cheese market conditions were unchanged.

verse effect on the world's market.

It is too early to estimate the coming world's crop, but if the yields come down as now appears probable, the supply will just about balance the world's requirements and that will mean a steady market at about the current rates. Should the crops in any of the important growing sections be deficient, it will open the way for a considerable advance in prices.

Crop conditions in Oregon up to this time have favored an outturn about equal to last year's and the same applies to Washington conditions. The California grop will be smaller, owing to the poor state of many Sonoma yards. New York may have something over its average yield. The total American production will be about the same as in 1913.

In the English yards the hops started out well, but encountered an early attack of fly and lice and for two weeks the English growers have been spraying their vines. The latest cables describe the visitation as continuous.

Similar conditions prevail in the Conti-

United Kingdom—The weather is very cool. Wheat is earing and the outlook favorable. Spring crops are in need of rain. France—The crop permises rather below medium and offers are light. Russia—The crop outlook is generally favorable, but scattered complaints continue to come to hand. In the Northwest the Spring crops show a partial bare average. Arrivals from the South are decreasing and North increasing.

Dried Fruits Are Scarce and Higher—Rise in Sugar Expected.

Bean prices of all kinds are strong, particularly large white and Limas, which are steadily advancing. Stocks are well cleans up and crop prospects are not of the best. Dried fruits are also in small supply and very firm. The scarcity of apples is becoming acute and spot stocks of prunes are almost exhausted.

As for the future prune market, it is still sumswhat uncertain. It is, if anything, sumswhat uncertain. It is, if anything, suffice scales than a week ago. Crop prospects are a little better and advices from Europe are for a better crop in the "Turklish" section than was expected. However, there is not much pressure to sell in California, and the total world's supply is not at all excessive. Europe, however, is not buying at the moment with any activity, as the crops are fairly good and prices here are little better and advices from the figh. There is also uncertainty over shipping routes. The result is that the price on future prunes is coming down somewhat from the high values ruling a short time back, and while some growers are holding for better values others are letting to at easier prices.

The sugar market was firm yesterday with prospects of another advance in the near future. New York $1.55,000.000 and $1.500.000 and

Systematic Saving

Is the only kind that pays. Spasmodic thrift gets nowhere. The wisest plan is to open a Savings Account and make it a matter of duty to deposit regularly just as you meet your other obligations.
