Incident at Champaign, Ill., Ominous of International Complications, Is Closed—Von Bernstorff Addresses Students.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 17.—(Special.)—The life of Count Johann von Bernstorff, Imperial Ambassador to the United States from Germany, was imperiled and international complications threatened today when a Champaign special policeman, said to have been drunk, fired a revolver at an automobile containing the diplomat and his party on route to the University of Illinois, where Count von Bernstorff delivered the commencement address at the University of Illinois.

Board Is Afraid, He Says.
"The state board dares not grant me a license for fear that the other members of the 'trust' will get their jobs."
"The very method in which the board is appointed shows how these board members attempt to control the dental business of the state. In the first place the Oregon State Dental Society submits to the Governor a list of eligible. He names members of the board from this list. If the present board should give me a license there would be half a dozen men after each vacant job on the board. They want to keep me out. But I am going to go to court and see that I get justice."
"So far as actual practice is concerned I don't want to practice. My time is too valuable. But I want to prove to the public that I possess the requisite to practice my profession in Oregon as I have licenses to practice in other states."

Dr. Parker in a graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College, where he received his diploma in 1912. He is licensed to practice in California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, New Brunswick, British Columbia and other states and provinces.
He has engaged Russell Sewell and John F. Logan to conduct his court proceedings against the state board and its individual members.

ST. JOHNS ACCEPTS FILMS

Motion Pictures Rejected in Portland Booked Elsewhere.
The widely-discussed motion picture play, "The House of Bondage," taken from the book of the same name, written by Reginald Wright Knott, which was to have been the attraction at the Hellig Theater, Eleventh and Morrison streets, all this week and was rejected by the local board of censors, will be presented at the skating rink at St. Johns for three days, beginning today, at 1 o'clock.
Dr. A. W. Vincent, Mayor of St. Johns, with members of the City Council, reviewed the pictures after they had been refused permission to be exhibited in this city and decided unanimously that they were all right for St. Johns. These films will be run continuously every day from 1 to 11 P. M.

Public Speaking Club Dines.
The Public Speaking Club of the Portland Young Men's Christian Association concluded a successful season with a dinner last night. There was a large attendance of members, each of whom gave a brief talk on some phase of public speaking. Professor W. G. Harrington, of Pacific University, who directed the course, was highly complimented by Educational Director French, who announced that a similar club would be formed next Fall. M. Moessohn presided as toastmaster.

DR. PARKER FIGHTS

Dental Board's Refusal of License Starts Suit.

DENTISTS CALLED TRUST

Demand to Be Made for Examination Papers and Production Before Court, Where Action Will Be Under Fire, He Declares.

Mandamus proceedings will be instituted at once by Dr. E. R. Parker, commonly known as "Painless Parker," to compel the State Board of Dental Examiners to produce for the inspection of the court the papers upon which he answered the questions at the dental examination in Salem two years ago. Dr. Parker proposes also to bring civil suits against the individual members of the State Board for their failure to grant him a license to practice dentistry in Oregon.
About nine weeks ago Dr. Parker established an office in the Merchants' Trust building at Sixth and Washington streets. He employs 12 licensed dentists. Almost nightly either he or one of his men have been giving lectures and free demonstration on the streets. Although, in order to continue his business, it is not necessary for Dr. Parker himself to have a license he is determined to get one merely to demonstrate that he is qualified to perform practical dental work. He has a string of offices in various parts of the country and devotes most of his personal attention to their supervision.

About two years ago, before deciding definitely to establish in Portland, Dr. Parker took the state dental examination. The board refused to grant a license. Six months later he again took the examination. It failed to grant him the license.
Order Is Countermanded.
"Previous to today's examination," said Dr. Parker last night, "I called on Dr. Eugene Cline, president of the State Board. He told me that I would not be required to take another examination in theory, but I should report at Salem for the examination in practice."
"Today, when I went to Salem, they told me that Dr. Cline was not authorized to speak for the entire board. They said I would have to take the entire examination—in both theory and practice—again."
"I promptly refused. I demanded to see the papers in my previous examinations. They refused to produce them."
"Now I have engaged counsel and will bring a mandamus suit and sue the members of the board."
"I say that the dental board is afraid to give me a license because I advertise my business and pay for the advertising. That's the only thing they have against me."
"The so-called ethical dentists of Oregon are operating under an agreement that comes so near being a trust as anything I know. They want

FARMER GAINS ATTENTION

Commercial Bodies to Work for Rural Advancement During Year.

Agricultural development will receive the principal attention in the activities of the State Bankers' Association, according to the resolutions adopted at the convention in Medford Monday and Tuesday, at which they reiterated their stand that the farmer is the man in the state who now needs most support from development organizations.
C. C. Chapman, who represented the Portland Commercial Club at the convention, returning with the Portland delegation yesterday, said that the association will probably work along the lines of agricultural development more extensively in the coming year than ever before. A. C. Shute, of Hillsboro, new president of the organization, belongs to a county especially noted for its agricultural resources and will appoint a strong working committee to carry the plans of the association forward.
"The cities and the industries in general are well advanced and developed in comparison to the farm," said Mr. Chapman. "The opinion of the bankers appears to be that the effort should be made to bring the development of the country districts and the farms up to a proper proportion with the city and industrial development."

to the Federation" and "The Greatest Service the General Federation Can Render the Young Women of America." Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, daughter of the President, was among those who made three-minute talks on the latter subject.

Margaret Wilson Draws Crowd.
The presence of Miss Margaret Wilson as a speaker drew a crowd that packed the huge auditorium where she spoke, filled the streets for blocks around the meeting place and remained surging about the buildings until she had concluded her address and left the building.

Never since the exciting scenes of the Republican convention in 1912 has so great a gathering formed here to see and hear a public speaker. The special police detail at the doors saw early that they would have no usual crowd to handle, and it was necessary to lock the doors for fear those on the outer edges of the crowd would force a rush of those standing nearer the doors and cause a panic.

Many of the delegates and some of the speakers were unable to gain admission until one by one the speakers were rescued from the throng by policemen and personally escorted in through a stage door.

Community Centers Advocated.
Miss Wilson advocated community centers. Public buildings, preferably schoolhouses to begin with, should be made public meeting places for the public discussion of public questions, she urged, much on the order of the old New England town meetings.

"At Washington, in the state capitals and in all cities the men elected to make laws must have meeting places to debate and make up their minds," she said. "The people who have no sources of information but the newspapers have no places where they can meet and learn and discuss the rights and wrongs of current issues."

WOMEN DISCUSS CREDIT

Portland Men's Association Violates Tradition.

Fair Sex, for First Time, Meet With Brothers as Guests at Business Meeting at Multnomah.

For the first time in its history the Portland Association of Credit Men, at its meeting in the blue room of the Multnomah Hotel last night, was addressed by women.
Miss Ann Eilers, manager of the Portland Remedial Loan Association, made her first public explanation of the system of credit adopted by that organization.
Miss Ann Eilers, cashier of the Eilers Music-House, in discussing credit in the music trade, traced the wonderful expansion of business undergone in that trade during recent years.
In discussing "Some Advantages and Disadvantages of Credit Giving in Department Stores," Mrs. A. C. Callan, manager of Olds, Wortman & King's millinery department, advocated shorter time credits and cash discount for cash payment. She predicted that credits in big stores soon will be reduced 50 per cent.
James J. Sayre acted as chairman of the meeting and introduced the speakers.
Walter Drake, newly elected president, presided at the business sessions, and named the 12 standing committees for the coming year. The association's glee club made its debut, and other musical numbers were featured. The question of inviting the National Association of Credit Men to hold their
