Minister Naon Still Hopes, and Bryan Adds, "When I Despair I Will Announce It."

Mr. Naon returned to the legation late in the afternoon, and it was announced that he would leave for Niagara Falls at 7 o'clock tonight. Soon afterward, however, Mr. Cabrera, vainly seeking to avoid being recognized, appeared at the legation and was closeted with the minister. In the meantime arrangements were made for Mr. Naon's call at the White House, After his talk with the minister, Secretary Bryan reiterated his belief that mediation was "progressing satisfactorily. When I despair of success I will announce it," he said.

One outstanding feature of the situation here today was the fact that notwithstanding forecasts of the failure of the mediation, not the slightest movement has been made by the military authorities indicative of a purpose to extend the activities of the Army or Navy in Mexice.

Military Initiative Not Intended.

Military Initiative Not Intended.

It was said on the highest authority that, regardless of the fact that the understanding between the United Stafes Government and General Huerta States Government and General Huerta was that military operations at Vera Cruz should be suspended only during the progress of the mediation, there is not the slightest intention on General Funston's part to take the initiative in any offensive operations in the immediate future.

any offensive operations in the immediate future.

Moreover, it is well understood at the War Department, though the sources of information are unofficial, that for his part General Huerta does not intend to order an attack on the American troops at Vera Cruz. Officials say that as he must realize the utter futility of any attempt to drive the American soldiers out of the port, and probably would much prefer to have the Americans in control of the only port through which he can count on making his escape from Moxico in case of need, than to have it fall into the possession of the constitutionalists under General Aguilar, who are now only a few miles north of Vera Cruz.

So, with both sides quite willing to refrain from a resumption of hostilities, it is believed to be probable that the only result in the event of collapse of the mediation negotiations at Niagara Falls would be a recurrence to the conditions that existed before mediation was initiated and the mediators assembled to the conditions of the c

Neither Mr. Naon nor any of those with whom he had conferred would say whether any new plan had been devised to break the seemingly final deadlock at Niagara Falls between the American and Mexican delegates.

Cabrera Denies Making Call.

Neither Secretary Bryan nor Mr.
Naon would admit there had been a consultation with a representative of the constitutionalists. When a representative of the Associated Press who had seen Mr. Cabrera enter the Argen-tine legation asked the latter about his visit Mr. Cabrera professed amaze-

"Certainly I deny it."

"But you were seen."

"But can I not still insist that I was not there?" Mr. Cabrera replied.

It was learned later that one of the objects of Mr. Naon's visit was to induce the constitutionalist leaders to waive temporarily their objection to the consideration of the internal affairs in Mexico by the mediation conthe consideration of the internal affairs in Mexico by the mediation conference. Bond and Stockholders Agree Tentatively on Refinancing.

NEW YORK. June 19.—Committees is presenting the collateral trust bonds of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company and the committees representing the stockholders of the Rock Island Company reached a tentative agreement today for the re-organization of the Rock Island system. The plan contemplates the elimination of both holding companies, a return to the old Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, and the creation of non-cumulative 7 per cent preferred stock of the railway company. This preferred stock is to be sold for cash with part of the existing common stock of the railway company. Both bondholders and stockholders and stockholders and under the plan, it is said,

Both bondholders and abdamousts are protected under the plan, it is said, and $30,000,000 new money will be obtained. The trust indenture securing the collateral bonds now in default is to be foreclosed and the pledged common stock of the railway company pur-chased, according to the contemplated have been based on the profound conviction that the adoption of that plan would not stop the progress of the victorious army, nor bring that speedy peace which the American Government so sincerely desires."

The plan referred to in the foregoing was that suggested by the mediators and approved by the Mexicans. As the American memorandum rejects that as well as the Mexican proposals and insists on its own, the hope for a common ground has almost entirely vanished.

Te mediators realize that should General Villa assume complete control and decide to become a party to the mediation, even sending the same delegates named by Carranza, admission could not be refused them if an armistice were declared. Sending the invitation to Carranza was merely a recognition by the mediators of "the first tice were declared. Sending the invita-tion to Carranua was merely a recog-nition by the mediators of "the first chief of the constitutionalist army," but the mediators would accept representa-tives from Villa as well if he agreed to their conditions.

Mr. Brandeis offered an amendment to the House bill incorporating these suggestions. He argued that as the bill stood railroads might issue all sorts of securities and the necessary approval of the Commission might be taker by the public as a Government stamp on the soundness of the securities. He thought the giving of such power should be deferred until the physical valuation of railroads has been completed.

Jacob Saxe, third officer of the Storstad, who was aiding in the navigation of that vessel just prior to the collision, gave similar testimony. He asserted that a moment before the crash, while the Storstad was under just enough headway to enable her navigators to keep her under the control of her rudder, he saw the green running light on the starboard side of the Empress traveling at a "fair rate of speed" across the bow of the collier.
