Cooperage Company Practically Decides to Build Plant.

ST. JOHNS, Or., June 22,-(Special.)-

ST. JOHNS, Or., June 22.—(Special.)—
It seems practically settled that the Western Cooperage Company will build its factory on its land near the dry dock. The Port of Portland has agreed to lease to the company what property it needs near the dry dock which will give the company access to the water-front. The company will be required to employ 200 men to start with.

Mayor Vincent and the Council have worked hard to procure the factory. Provisions have been made for the construction of a macadam road to the site from Willamette boulevard on an easy grade, which was the main requirement of the company to the erection of the factory. The roadway will cost $4000. The Port of Portland is expected to contribute $1500 toward the cost, and St. Johns will pay the balance. The St. Johns will pay the balance. The abutting property will not be assessed, according to the announcement of Mayor Vincent.
