

COUNCIL WILL HEAR ABOUT GRILL RAID

Mayor to Call Session to Consider Revoking Richards' License, Says Secretary.

EVIDENCE WILL BE GIVEN

Albee Intends to Protect Young Men and Women by Shutting Up All Places Violating Laws, Asserts W. H. Warren.

A special session of the City Council will be called to hear the evidence of the officers who raided Richards' Grill Saturday night, with the view of determining whether the grill's city liquor license shall be revoked, said W. H. Warren, secretary to Mayor Albee, yesterday.

"Mr. Richards possesses a liquor license, granted by the Council body, and he will be cited to appear and show cause why it should not be revoked," said Mr. Warren.

"While the charge against Steward Smith, of the grill, will have to be dismissed, because the ordinance under which he was sought to be prosecuted was found to have been repealed by the so-called model liquor license law, the raid Saturday has sufficed to create wide interest in what is alleged by several persons to be the worst vice in Portland.

Steward's Opinion Told.

"Steward Smith, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is the only man in the city who admits that Richards' Grill is conducted more strictly than other establishments in Portland. If he is correct there is a lot of work to do along clean-up lines. As a matter of fact, I have reports that the grill is a safe place, that Mr. Smith is mistaken. The City Council, which has exclusive jurisdiction over liquor licenses in Portland, will decide this fine point of law."

"One of the patrons of Richards', a male one, however, who met one of the women patrons on Washington street Saturday just before the raid, said that he thought he knew her, but later discovered he did not. The woman told Captain Inskip that her gentleman friend, upon accosting her on the street, asked her where they might obtain a little drink. She replied: 'Richards' is the only safe place I know of.' Both were caught in the police net."

"Safe Places" Must Go, Says Warren.

"Just what was meant by Richards' being a safe place I do not know, but I know one thing—if it meant that Richards' is a place where any kind of characters, no matter how lewd, may resort and have immunity from arrest and prosecution, the woman making the assertion was mistaken.

"It is difficult to 'get' places like Richards', for a complicated and clever system is maintained for the purpose of avoiding successful prosecution, but Mayor Albee intends to shut up all such establishments for the protection of young men and women. Neither Richards' nor any other place, little or big, is going to be a safe place' in the sense that that word is commonly understood in them. It is the Mayor's determination to see to it, however, that places running under the guise of eating establishments, as well as all others, shall be so conducted that no girls will be safe within them."

Steward May Not Be Held.

K. D. Smith, steward at the grill, it is said, probably will be discharged from Municipal Court when he appears for trial this morning.

City Attorney La Roche, after a conference yesterday with Deputies Eadler and Myers, announced that there was no specific charge on which to hold him.

WOMAN WINS SUIT AGAIN

Miss Rugenstein Gets $3821 Verdict for Injuries in Auto Accident.

On the second trial of her case Miss Albertine H. Rugenstein, a professional nurse, yesterday obtained a verdict for damages assessed at $3821 for being run down by an automobile on March 4, 1912. At the last trial Miss Rugenstein was awarded a verdict for $3590. This was February 11, 1913.

Henry J. Reihelmer, owner of the automobile, appealed the case and the Supreme Court reversed the ruling of the Circuit Court. Both trials were held before Judge McGuire.

Miss Rugenstein was crossing Washington street from Trinity place, when the auto, driven by Albert J. Maxon, struck her. Her spine was injured. She sued for $5000.

STETSON IS HURRIED AWAY

Flagship of Alaska Fleet in Port Only Three Days.

Lumber, lath, salmon cans and merchandise made up the cargo of the steamer J. B. Stetson, which got away last night for Alaskan ports. As some of her deck space was converted for the transportation of general freight, through being temporarily decked over, the vessel could have carried more stuff this voyage, but as she arrived Sunday morning every effort was made to get her away on time. Captain Herriman has made fast time with the Stetson, and, as she is flagship of the fleet, he is being depended on to keep the schedule.

The steamer Quinault left Ketchikan at midnight Monday and on her way here calls at Grays Harbor to load 150 tons of box shooks for Astoria and another lot of 150 tons that goes to Alaska canneries. The Thomas L. Wand was due at Ketchikan yesterday, bound north.

DR. T. L. PERKINS' HAT CAST IN RING

Multnomah Holdover Senator Seeks Presidency of Upper Branch.

TWO OTHERS ARE IN RACE

Struggle for Speakership Less Advanced, Though Ben Selling, Allen Eaton and Others Are Being Mentioned.

Though it will be nearly seven months before the next Legislature convenes, the date set by law being the second Monday in January, the presidency of the Senate and speakership of the House are already objects of considerable interest to legislators and prospective legislators.

The next Legislature is certain to be overwhelmingly Republican. Both the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House will be members of that party. In fact, the personality of the candidates and the geography of the situation will create a much larger figure in the race than party lines, for Republicans will so dominate the Legislative Assembly that no member of a minority party would have a chance.

Perkins First to Announce.

The first legislator formally to shy his hat into the ring as a candidate for either place is Dr. T. L. Perkins, of Portland, one of the holdover Senators from Multnomah County. Dr. Perkins announced yesterday that he will run for president of the Senate and declared that he already has many pledges of support. Dr. Perkins, also of Multnomah County, was president of the 1913 Senate, but Mr. Malarky's term as Senator expires this year and he is not a candidate for re-election.

Dr. Perkins was chairman of the Senate ways and means committee at the last session. He is at present working in connection with a much larger figure, also of Multnomah County, was president of the 1913 Senate, but Mr. Malarky's term as Senator expires this year and he is not a candidate for re-election.

Open Contest Announced.

"I am entering the race at this time," said Dr. Perkins yesterday, "because I wish the contest to be an open one, and feel that there is nothing to be gained by withholding my announcement to the last moment. Being a holdover Senator and not having to run for reelection this year, I also feel that I can definitely announcing my aspiration for the Presidency of the Senate now, I will be able to devote more of my time to working for the success of the winning Republican ticket, from United States Senator and Governor down the list, in the coming campaign. I am going to work a lot harder for that than for my own candidacy."

There are at least two other prospective candidates for president of the Senate. One is W. Lark Thompson, of Lakeview, holdover Senator from Crook, Klamath and Lake counties. Senator Thompson is serving his second term in the Senate, and prior to being elected Senator he was in the lower house. He was a member of the important committee on irrigation. However, the name of Ben Selling, of Portland, is prominently mentioned. Mr. Selling was president of the Senate several years ago.

Allen Eaton, of Eugene, now a candidate for his fifth successive term in the lower house from Lane County, expects to run for speaker. Others mentioned include Wesley O. Smith, of Klamath Falls, and Vernon A. Forbes, of Bend, both candidates for re-election from the district composed of Crook, Klamath, Grant and Lane counties.

C. N. McArthur, speaker of the 1913 House, is now a candidate for Congress from the Third district, comprising Multnomah County.

EEL OIL MANUFACTURED

CHICKEN FOOD, TOO, PRODUCT OF ONLY PROCESS OF KIND.

New Plant at Oregon City Turns Out 15 Gallons of Oil and 240 Pounds of Dried Meat Each Day.

OREGON CITY, Or., June 23.—(Special.)—The only plant for the manufacture of eel oil and dried eel meat is now running at full capacity here and consuming about half a ton of eels a day. The average daily product of the plant is 15 gallons of oil, used in the manufacture of leather goods, and 240 pounds of dried eel meat, used as chicken feed.

The process has been worked out by Edward Reimers and James P. Kelly, and the plant is operated under their direction. Fishermen gather the eels from the pools in the rocks around the falls with dip-nets.

The eels are taken to the plant on the banks of the river and placed in a vat and cooked. After the eels have been cooked for a short time the oil rises to the surface and is drained off into a barrel. The solid matter is pressed and then ground, more oil being derived. From the grinders the eels, now almost powdered, are placed in the driers. The solid matter is put in sacks and finds a ready market with farmers and poultrymen.

Mr. Kelly has secured the co-operation of the Government and has sent his products to Federal chemists for analysis.

The work this year is largely an experiment. At first the two men confined their efforts to work on a small scale in Portland and passed the greater part of three years in an effort to find a commercial use for eels and eel waste. Early this year the work reached such a point that to test out the processes devised it was necessary to find a place where the number of eels was unlimited and the work could be done on a larger scale.

PAVING WILL PROCEED

ENGINEER DATER COMPLETES REPORT ON CLASSIFICATION.

Proposed Changes Provide for System Under Which Type of Surface Depends on Traffic.

Following completion yesterday by City Engineer Dater of a report and recommendation for a new classification of paving in Portland, the way was opened for early inauguration of proceedings for paving projects in various parts of the city, a large number of which have been held up for several months pending the completion of this report.

Engineer Dater referred his report to City Commissioner Dieck. If he approves the recommendation, they can be put into use within a short time. In hope of being able to rush through the paving projects which have been held up, Engineer Dater has sent men over the various streets to be improved to require the installation of all retaining walls, drain pipe connection and other improvements so that there will be no paving delays.

Under the new classification of pavements there is no great difference from the previous classification. One change is the placing of asphaltic concrete pavement in competition with bituminous and standard asphalt on all proposed improvements. Under the old plan asphaltic concrete was allowed
