VIENNA, June 28.—The assassin's ullet that ended the life of the Arch-uke Francis Ferdinand and his wife day solved a social problem that has given cause for real anxiety to royal octal leaders ever since it seemed robable that Francis Ferdinand one ay would rule over Austria-Hungary.

The Archduke's wife was the Counss Sophia Chotek before he married She was ineligible under the laws of succession to become the Empress, and imperial consent to the morganatic narriage was given only when the eir-apparent specifically foreswore all tesign to raise the Countess to the tank of Empress or to establish rights succession for any children who ould be born to them.

Francis Ferdinand was 50 years old. His full name was Francis Ferdinand Carl Ludwig Joseph Maria. His father, the Archduke Carl Ludwig, was a brother of the present Emperor, Francis Joseph. Until he was 28 he was not regarded as a probability for the only son of Francis Joseph, was then heir, when to the consternation of the dual empire and the surprise of the world the Crown Prince met a tragic death in what is known as the Meyerling tragedy, the result of an undountenanced love for a young Baroness. The mystery of the shooting at Meyerling Loge, in which both the Baroness and the Crown Prince were killed, never was cleared.

The Emperor's brother, Archduke Carl Ludwig, declined the succession, and Francis Ferdinand became heirapparent.

There was no question but the two were deeply in love, and have ever since continued so. Francis Joseph, however, was never pleased with his nephew's marriage. He gave his imperial consent en condition that the Archduke strictly observe the Hapsburg laws and never attempt to place his morganatic wife on the throne, or establish the right of succession for his children. Hungarian View-Point Different.

Hungarian View-Point Different.

The chief complication in the situation arose from the difference in the point of view of Austria and Hungary, In Austria the Hapeburg law, which was kept a deep secret, was supposed to give entire control of its own affairs to the Hapeburg family council. Hungary, however, regards a marriage as a marriage. The wife of the king is the queen, to Hungarians. Thus it appeared that the Princess of Hohenberg would have been a queen in Budapest and only a morganatic wife in Vienna.

It is said that after the attempt with the bomb near the girls' high school, the Duchess tried to dissuade the Archduke from venturing in the motor car again. To allay her fears M. Potlorek, governor of Bosnia, said:
