the reception and garden party given yesterday by Mrs. Gordon Voorhies, who formally presented to soclety her charming daughter, Miss Margaret Voorhies. The scene of the festivity was Ardgour, the MacMaster estate that has been leased by the Voorhies family for the Summer. Within the house, the rooms were adorned with choice cut flowers and palms. The man talked dully, with apparently no more than an impersonal interest in the things he was recounting. Then he passed on out of her life, but Marian thought of him often. He proved to be one of the forces which helped level her eye with greater fixedness upon the poverty which scars the faces of society. She shuddered at the thought of innumerable wives who must be losing faith in their husbands and leaving them, as a result of the blows of unemployment. She began to understand something of the filmsiness of her own cause for divorce, when viewed in the light of the utter and ghastly want into which an industrial depression plunged armies of struggling families.

"Well, have you had an interesting day?" asked Mrs. Kerr, keeper of the boardinghouse, as Marian passed her on the way up stairs to her room.

"Extremely," answered Marian seriously.

"That's good," gushed the landlady.

in Paris, and say, aren't the crowds simply marvelous?"

"No, they're terrible," said Marian, fleeling to her room.

As she stood before her mirror, making ready for dinner, Marian thought of the hunger that was abroad in New York at that hour, and longed for a place on the firing line of those who were struggling to improve conwho were struggling to improve con

EW YORK, June 27 .- (Special)-The love of women for a sunshade is varying. It is amazing how negligent we are of the first aid against the sun when in the open, Our journeying to the tropics and our acquisition of tropical lands has not taught us the necessity of the parasol if we would avoid the ill effect of sun on our heads.

But the advent of the new kind of parasol, which has a Japanese form covered with lovely laces and embroideries, has captivated the fancy, and again this accessory has become fashonable. But the styles of other days have given place to the more primitive fashloning adopted centuries ago by the Japanese and the Chinese.

A return to this shape has been hovering over us for a year or two, but the revival was definite last February during the session in Cairo and the Riviera, where one often sees the advance fashions for the Spring and sometimes for the Summer. This seaon it was so rainy and disagreeable along the Mediterranean coast that one saw the new things first in Paris in February, and much later in Cannet and Monte Carlo.

But one of the fashions advanced is one of woman's greatest charms and should not be lightly thrown away.

Don't forget to cleanse your face every night before seeking the arms of Morpheus. A clean skin is generally a pretty skin.

Don't make the mistake of walking was hanging down around her should be a little girl again and just see how it would seem."

But one of the fachions advanced there was the Japanese parasol. It was not in gayly colored paper, as it should have been, on seashore sands with mountains with it, but it was of embroidered Japanese creps. This was the next best thing in artistic merit, but it would serve as protection from a sun that was doing its best on a July day, but it is not really intended for PORTLAND, July 1 .- (Dear Miss Blake.)-I am very much in love with a young man, whom I met while visiting on a ranch. His father owns the ranch, but he is a cowboy and my par-ents object on that acount. They want me to marry a young lawyer, but I do not love him. Which one would you advise me to marry? Please answer this soon and oblige.

Don't be in a hurry to marry anyone and don't mary a man you do not love I feel that there is little advice I car offer you than that. You probably have your mind made up to marry the cow-boy. But don't be rash or hasty. If the cowboy loves you, and is the right sort of a young man, you and he will probably be able to convince your parents that you know what is best.

The cherry is one of the few fruits that are improved by cooking, and of all the desserts that can be made with them, none is more delicious than this pudding. If made with K C Baking Powder, the pastry will be light and porous especially if you have a slow oven at the start to give it time to rise. Try this recipe at once and you will want it again and again as long as the cherries last.

K C Cherry Pudding

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt, and work in the butter. Beat the eggs, add the milk, and stir into the dry ingredients. Butter an agate or china baking dish, half fill it with choice cherries, baking dish, half fill it with choice cherries, sprinkle with a little salt or add bits of butter, turn the soft dough over the cherries and bake about thirty minutes, or steam one hour. Turn from the dish to have the cherries uppermost. Serve with hard sauce or with a cup of stoned cherries, cooked tender in a cup each of sugar and water. This recipe is from "The Cook's Book." It contains 90 tested recipes by Mrs. Hill among which are Strawberry and Raspberry Short Cakes and other desserts that will help you to make the most of fresh fruits while they are in season. ## "BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER"

Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves. Thinness of the blood, or ansemia, is common in young folks as well as old. Especially is it the case with those who work in illy ventilated factories—or those who are shut up indoors in winter time with a coal stove burning up the oxygen or emitting carbonic (oxide) gas. This blood, or blood which lacks the red blood oxygencies, in ansemic people may have been caused by lack of good tresh air breaked into lunss, or by poor digestion or dyspessia. Sometimes people suffer intense pain over the heart which is not heart disease at all, but caused by indigestion. Whatever the cause, there's just one remedy that you can turn to—knowing that it has given satisfaction for over 40 years.
