Guardsmen Learn How to Preserve Health-One Idaho Man May Be Fatally Injured - Reported Drowning Unfounded.

CAMP JACKSON, Gearhart, Or., July 15 - (Special.) - Just how to throw a battalion and the companies that compose it into batile was the subject of study and demonstration in the field instruction camp here today for infantry regiments.

try regiments.

The 2000 men of the Oregon and Idaho commands and the Twenty-first Regular Infantry put in the day experimenting with the intricacles of launching an attack. Every conceivable emergency that might arise in battle was applied to the exercises and each commander of a battalion and company was given an opportunity to handle the situation in his own way.

the right thing automatically at the right time, when a blunder might imperil the success of a whole battle or campaign. Military blunders in war time were presented as an invariable cause of defeat and as the most dreaded thing in war.

There was no roar of blank ammuni-tion as the several battles raged today. Signal flags alone indicated the vol-ume of fire one body of troops was delivering, in theory, against another.

Nor was one officer's wits matched against those of another. Such mistakes as were made became the subject of immediate discussion, with Army officers adjusting and regthe various forward move-

All tactics were in attacks today. The fine art of defense and of getting away when an enemy gets the upper hand will be practiced tomorrow.

Regulars Show Snap. Technical accuracy in company and battalion attacks was demonstrated by the Twenty-first Infantry during the afternoon.

The snap, precision and vigor of the American regular in action were shown in all their ejoquence as the battalions advanced from a deployment, at 800 yards, down to the bayonet charge. A clock works no more regularly than these bronzed infantrymen from Van-couver Barracks; a dynamo works no more vigorously, as they sweep into battle formation and advance to the at-while they are not expected to approximate the skill of these seasoned regulars in field operations, the National Guard regiments are proving their worth as an auxiliary force to the army for possible war service. A broad grasp of the military game is shown by the citizen-soldiers, and as explained by their army instructors, they need only the polishing, such as is being given now, to put them in an advanced state of readiness for war.

Camp Sanitation Learned.

TENDERS RECEIVED FOR GRADING

In the art of caring for themselves in camp, and particularly in sanitary matters, the guardsmen are proving them-selves fully capable. No cases of seri-ous illness have developed anywhere in camp, while in the Third Oregon Regiment not a man is on the sick re-

So far, sick call has been nothing more than a formality, which is held in decided contrast with National Guard camps of 10 years ago, when the vic-tims of improper care by themselves or of improperly cooked foods and poor sanitary arrangements were numerous. As sickness and disease have been more early today while returning in an auto-mobile from Seaside. The victim, Pri-vate William Johnson, aged 27, of Sand Point, Idaho, was not expected to live when removed to a hospital at Astoria. Johnson was leaning from the crowded automobile when struck by a passing machine, which had discharged a load of infantrymen at camp. Major J. B. Clayton, chief surgeon, found a fracture at the base of the skull.

Reported Drowning Unfounded. Report that a soldier had been drowned in the surf last night caused a check of the men in camp this morn-ing. After the fact developed that none was missing or unaccounted for, it was learned that civilians near the Gearhart Hotel had become alarmed unduly by a venturesome soldier who and had one out a considerable distance and had not been seen to return.

The Oregon Battery is preparing for target practice ou he beach north of camp Friday and Saturday. Both direct and indirect fire will be employed and the marksmanship of this organization thoroughly tested.

The Third Oregon Regiment passed in review before Colonel Martin and a group of Army officers late this after-

The regiment was in command of Lieutenant-Colonel May and made an imposing appearance with its perfect alignments and precise movements.

Along with dyspersia comes nervousness, sleeplessness and general ill health. Why? Because a disordered atomach does not permit the food to be assimilated and carried to the blood. On the other hand, the blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion. In turn, the nerves are not fed on good, red blood and we see those symptoms of nervous breakdown. It is not head work that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor thin blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip—bronchitis—consumption.
