OPponents OF ISSUE IN HOOD RIVER COUNTY SATISFIED.

A. I. Mason Declares He Has Project In View Which Will Be of Prime Importance to District.

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 16.—(Special.)—Although the contest was hard fought, those who opposed the Columbia Highway bond issue today declared that they are ready to forget the fight and will work for the best results. Many of the men who voted against the issue declared today that they were glad the bonds carried.

opposing faction, said: "I am not a sorehead on account of the defeat of my side of the contest. I am ready to get in with the majority and work for the interests of Hood River County."

W. R. Winans, who has been circulating petitions to Congress to appropriate money to be used in making a road of the trail that passes through the Bull Run reserve, was opposed to the Columbia road, asserting that the county should not spend money in opening it, when, in his opinion, the Federal appropriation could be secured for the mountain road, said that he was going to continue his fight to obtain Federal aid.

A. I. Mason, one of the opponents to the Columbia Highway bond issue, was the only man interviewed yesterday not willing to accept the results of yesterday's election. Mr. Mason, who has advanced more road theories than any other man in Hood River County, was non-committal. "However," he said, "I have a plan, the terms of which I am not at present ready to make public, that will mean more to the Hood River Valley than anything ever advanced here."

"Fall In"—They Did

"Fall in" was the slogan for the Toronto convention of the advertising men. The Toronto newspaper publishers took it up and suggested to the merchants of the city that they "fall in" by making displays of Nationally advertised goods. They did and Toronto made a merchandise exhibition that opened the eyes of the country. It was a great object lesson in the interest dealers take in their home papers. Dealers look upon an advertisement of a National product in their newspaper as an invitation to "fall in." And they do. That is why newspaper advertising is so effective.
