The long suffering Angels fell all over the trajectories of Mr. Rieger in the tenth inning and Weiter's acratch single, and two-baggers by Maggert. Ellis and Brashear chased three runs over the plate.

Fans Leave Disappointed. Of course, that settled things, and nearly 6000 fans (Mr. Solid Citizen and his wife and child) pawed their way out of the exits, disappointed because the Beavers did not make it a clean sweep of the series. Luckily for our side, mathematicians are still able to figure out to four places, and we are glad to announce that the Beavers bade goodby to the home crowd last night still in the first hole. The margin over the Angels is only

,0001, but if the race were to end today that .0001 would look as big as a Rockefeller dividend. Jack Ryan was on the mound for the Angels, and while he twirled excellent ball until he gave way to pinch hitters in the ninth, the game should never have gone to extra innings. Hit-and-Run Not Working Failure to take advantage of the sacrifice game cost runs on two or three occasions, for the hit-and-run wasn't working, and Bill Rodgers tossed off one run, at least, by some gutta-percha thinking in the sixth

Portland had a chance to win in that game 11 to 5 and breaking even on the inning. The bags were full and only one out when Ryan drove a grounder to Abstein. Abstein threw low to Meek and Derrick scored. Rodgers essayed to follow in Frederick's footsteps, evidently figuring that the ball had gone on through to the grandstand.

Meek calmly tagged him dead and by the same fell swoop signed the Scores;

The score at the end of the sixth was 2-1 in the Angels' favor, but Rodgers atoned for his miscue by starting a rally in the eighth that netted two runs. The popular Walter Doane followed with the last of three hits and an error by Gedeon and Lober's sacrifice fly finished the fire-

W. W. McCredie, president of the Portland Coast club, returned from the Scattle session of Northwestern League

Seattle session of Northwestern League directors yesterday, and, while he was not in position to speak, by proxy he admitted that President Jones likely would tender his resignation.

"He is a mighty valuable man to the Northwestern League, but now that Portland is out, I suppose they will want a man from Seattle or some other league city to head the circuit," said Judge McCredie. Judge McCredie.

Sale Is Outright.

The Portland mogui shed considerable light on the sale of his Coits. He said the sale to Quinn Farr, Seattle timber broker, was outright. Quinn taking over the team lock, stock and barrel. No amount was given out.

We retain the privilege of grabbing whatever players we desire in the Fall as part of the purchase price, but this provision will be abrogated, I guess."
declared President McCredie. "I don't think we want any of the Colts for the 1915 Beaver corps."
Farr likely will keep Nick Williams as manager, for McCredie made that a part of the bargain. A new schedule has been drafted. The Colts ought to do better from now on, for they will be at home in five of the next six series.
