

NEW FINAL APPEAL PUT IN TRUST BILL

Senate Committee Amends Measure to Provide for Review of Edicts.

MONTHS' WORK FINISHED

Change Recommended Would Give Government or Corporation Right to Fight Orders of Interstate Commissions.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—After months of deliberation the Senate judiciary committee agreed tonight upon the final revision of the Clayton anti-trust bill to supplement the Sherman law which passed the House last Spring.

Most important of the amendments recommended by the committee is one to provide for a court review of orders issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission or the proposed Interstate Trade Commission against corporations found to have violated the trust statutes.

The amendment would provide that those corporations or individuals neglected or fail to obey orders of either commission, the commission, through its attorney or district attorney, may apply for enforcement of the order to the United States District Court, transmit the original record of the proceeding, including all testimony taken, and the ruling of the commission shall be taken as prima facie evidence.

Right of Appeal Included. Either party, however, would be permitted to produce additional material evidence.

Either party to any proceeding before the Commerce or Trade Commission, under the amendment, would have the right to appeal from any final order by either commission within 30 days by serving notice on the adverse party and filing it with the commission.

The final order of any District Court, the amendment would provide, might be reviewed by the Supreme Court upon appeal.

The sanction of the original bill relating to price discrimination is amended so that discriminations in price made in good faith to meet competition and not intended to create monopoly could not be penalized.

One Section Stricken.

The section of the House bill which would make it unlawful to refuse to sell products of mining, oil, gas, water or hydro-electric plants to bona fide applicants is stricken from the bill. The provision making it unlawful to lease or make contracts for sale of goods on condition that purchasers shall not use or deal in the products of a competitor is retained with an amendment providing that the section shall apply to all products whether patented or unpatented.

The exemption section, which in the House bill included fraternal, labor, consumers, and horticultural organizations instituted for mutual help and having no capital stock and not conducted for profit, is amended to eliminate fraternal and consumers' organizations from the list. The provision prohibiting holding companies is retained with slight amendments in phrasing.

The section of the House bill relating to interlocking directors has been almost entirely rewritten by the committee.

Violation of this provision, as it now stands, would be made punishable by fine not to exceed $25,000 and imprisonment not exceeding two years. The committee retains this section of the House bill providing that no person shall at the same time be a director in any two or more corporations, any one of which has capital and surplus and provided profits aggregating more than $1,000,000, if elimination of competition between such corporations by agreement would constitute a violation of the anti-trust laws.

The sections of the original bill pertaining to injunctions and punishment for contempt are left intact in principle, except that the clause which would have legalized picketing on the premises of individuals or corporations in case of strikes or lockouts is eliminated.

Pending completion of the trust programme, Republicans in the Senate conducted a filibuster on the river and harbor appropriation bill today.

this was one of the motives which prompted her to file suit for divorce two months ago. In this letter Dawson wrote:

"Do not forsake me now. When you are gone I have nothing left, not a friend. How would you like to go back East on a visit, if I could in any way raise the money? Then I would hobo it back."

Trouble over Ruth Dawson's 17-year-old daughter by a former marriage, is said to have been the chief cause of the differences between Mr. and Mrs. Dawson.

The inquest, which was scheduled for 1 o'clock yesterday, was postponed until the same hour today. Unless every possible clue is exhausted at that hour, it again will be postponed. The authorities stated:

Examination of the records in all drug stores in Portland and surrounding towns have been made by Deputy District Attorney Ryan, Deputy Coroner J. J. Dunning and Detective Swennes in an effort to find where the poison was purchased. Officers have been sent to Vancouver, Oregon City, Newberg and every other place where it could have been bought, but, so far, the search has been fruitless.

RIGLER FUNERAL HELD

SCHOOL FLAGS AT HALF MAST; CEREMONY IS SIMPLE.

Rev. Luther R. Dyott Pays Tribute to Late Educator, Saying He Will Be Appreciated More in Future.

Flags were at half mast on the schoolhouses yesterday and a summer school programme, scores of his friends and former colleagues in school work were present, however.

The Rev. Luther R. Dyott, pastor of the First Congregational Church, gave the funeral address. "His work will live beyond the present," said Dr. Dyott. "Twenty-five years hence he will be spoken of even more appreciatively than now, and he will be better understood. Big men do not live for their generation alone, but for the generation also that follows them."

Members of the School Board were present at the ceremonies, and in the afternoon they called a special session at which the following resolution was adopted regarding the death of their former co-worker.

"Whereas death has taken from us Frank Rigler, our respected colleague of many years, and a man whose striking ability has been recognized throughout the county; therefore, we, the Board of Directors of the School District No. 1, Multnomah County, Oregon, with a heavy heart and in the name of our city, and with most deeply regret the loss of an honored friend and esteemed co-worker.

"We gratefully acknowledge his sterling qualities of character, his untiring devotion to the service of the public, his genius for the organization and management of our city, and we most deeply regret the loss that his death means to us and to the community."

And, furthermore, we desire to extend to the members of his family our deepest sympathy in their bereavement.

And hereby direct that this resolution be spread upon the minutes and copies conveyed to the members of his family.

$40,000 Fire in Chenoweth Creek Valley Breaks Out Second Time.

THE DALLES, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—It is believed W. T. Evans lost his life in the forest fire which destroyed timber and buildings worth $40,000 in the Chenoweth Creek Valley yesterday. His home was destroyed.

Evans was last seen fighting the fire on his homestead yesterday morning. Searchers who looked all day for him gave up tonight for dead. It is thought he was hemmed in by the flames and perished.

Evans was a surveyor and, for many years, was a clerk in the United States Land Office here.

The fire, which was controlled last night, smoldered all day and broke out again this afternoon. Men were rushed from this city and their back-firing efforts, after two hours, subdued the flames.

Matilda, the 3-year-old daughter of Angus Grimm, proved to be a heroine yesterday, when the flames suddenly enveloped her father's barn. Although alone, she rushed into the burning building and led out a team of horses, which were tied inside.

FOUR FIRES NEAR EUGENE

Grass and Brush Blazes Under Control of Fighters.

EUGENE, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—Four minor fires burned about Eugene today, covering a large acreage.

On the McKenzie River, Government fire fighters today brought under control a blaze which has been burning in private timber a mile from the National Forest line since Saturday. The fire started on a south slope near Blue River and destroyed 25 acres of timber.

It is the first of any importance on the McKenzie in two years. Several grass and brush fires burned about Eugene tonight, mostly in woodcutters' slashings.

At Springfield, several hundred acres of grass and brush were burned. Each fire was extinguished. Several farm buildings were threatened. Nearly 150 men fought fire.

RESERVES LUCKY THIS YEAR

Oregon and Washington Rangers Have Had No Fires Thus Far.

So far this year the National forests in Oregon and Washington have been free from fires. A few small ones have been extinguished by rangers, but none as yet has got beyond control. C. F. Buck, chief clerk in the United States Forest Bureau, in Portland, said yesterday that the stiff northerly wind on Sunday especially was favorable to fires, but that yesterday's weather was more to the liking of the forest rangers, the wind having shifted to the west. He explained that winds from the north and east generally are hard destroyed yesterday, as also was a large barn, together with several homes. A peculiar phenomenon of the situation is the fact that a small house in the very center of the flames had remained untouched for the past 40 hours. The ground about the house has been protected by fresh spading for several yards on all sides of the building.

Mrs. M. Clarke, whose home Martin, Phillips and Rice are striving to protect, has been working diligently since the start of the fire Saturday afternoon in the Goodwin Shingle Works, which were entirely destroyed. Mrs. Clarke has supplied the workers with hot coffee and women with spring water, at intervals.

Idle Crowds Hinder. A crowd of men, women and boys visited the scene of the fires last night. Most of them remained at a safe distance to the rear of the flames and one part of men and women sang songs. None of these volunteered to assist in the battle against the flames.

Others hindered the fire fighters by asking foolish questions. The strip burned up to the present is about two miles long and about three-fourths of a mile wide. Efforts were being made to have the state militia called out, but the absence of that organization from the city prevented this being accomplished.

LA GRANDE, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—Though an excessively smoky condition of the atmosphere in Grande Ronde Valley during the past two days would indicate otherwise, careful investigations by fire wardens and lookouts have failed to locate any forest fire in the Blue Mountains, the forest supervisor at Walla Walla, with whom J. T. Williamson, local manager for the Mount Emily Timber Company, whose headquarters a fire was reported yesterday, was in communication today suggests that that smoke must be coming from fires in the Cascade Mountains.

The smoke extends eastward into Wallawa County. The lookout in the Blue Mountains, who yesterday reported the presence of smoke on Mount Emily, telephoned this afternoon that he had been unable to locate any fire, but that the odor and trend of smoke indicated that the fire probably was on the west side of the Blue Mountains, in the vicinity of Meacham. Superintendent Boltons, of the O-W-R. & N. Co., who investigated the origin of the smoke, and states that no fires are burning at any point near the railroad's property. Fire Warden Supervisor Lowell Williamson reports that no forest fires on the Looking Glass Creek, north of here, both of which are under control.

WASHINGTON FIRES ARE MANY Five Counties Fight Blazes and Dry Winds May Be Disastrous.

OLYMPIA, Wash., July 20.—(Special.)—Reports received by the State Fire Warden today showed brush and forest fires in five counties of Western Washington. None of these has done much damage, but the situation is such that the fire wardens fear disaster if dry weather and winds continue.

Two fires are reported in Thurston County, five in Chehalis County and others in Mason, Skagit and Whatcom. Citizens who are fighting a blaze near Rainier today called up the fire warden's office asking that an experienced man be sent to take charge. A blaze four miles south of Olympia menaced the Thurston County poor farm, but it is believed the buildings will escape, unless the wind veers suddenly. Many county wardens are staying continuously in the forests, organizing protection.

FIGHTERS SAVE GATE CITY Raging Forest Fire for Time Threatened Little Washington Town.

OLYMPIA, Wash., July 20.—A telephone message from Gate City, 23 miles south of Olympia, on the Northern Pacific, this afternoon, reported the little town in the path of a raging forest fire. Only the efforts of the entire male population, it was declared, could save the town from destruction.

The men of the town succeeded in stopping the advance of the fire by back-firing and, although several hundred acres of logged-off lands and green timber as yet has been touched and camp No. 1, of the Big Creek Timber Company, is the only one in danger.

The slashing fires are covering a large acreage, but there are no fires in other parts of the country. The report in circulation yesterday that the Coats-Fordney Camp, No. 1, was destroyed, was denied today.

FIRE IN SPRINGFIELD GRASS Flames Threaten City Hill Flag, but Old Glory Unscathed.

SPRINGFIELD, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—A grass fire, which swept over several hundred acres south of Springfield today, offered spectacular features, when just after noon the flames rushed up three sides of the promontory on which is located the big American flag. For 10 minutes the smoke rolled about the banner, but it was not touched by the flames.

The fire burned nearly a mile to the eastward before it was controlled. A second fire crept back around the hill to the point of origin and cleared the rest of the ground. The George Dorris farm was threatened, but grass and poison oak shrubs were all that were destroyed.

Knappa Fire Under Control. ASTORIA, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—Before the fire was gotten under control, which started Saturday in a logged-off tract belonging to the Big Creek Logging Company, back of Knappa, two donkey engines were destroyed.

The fire still is smoldering along the line of the green timber, at the edge of the Crown Pump & Paper Company's tract, but no further damage is anticipated, unless the wind should shift to the east.

Warden Reports Few Fires. SALES, Or., June 20.—(Special.)—State Forester Elmer Egan said that no serious forest fires had been reported to him this season. Numerous reports of small ones have been received, but they were quickly extinguished. The state forester attributes the success of the department this season to the efficiency of the wardens and the warnings which were given early to campers to extinguish campfires and not to throw lighted matches in the brush.

MILLERS HAVE RETIRED Anti-Trust Law Causes Washington Association to Stop Activities.

The Washington Millers' Association, which has been in existence for many years, has disbanded. This step was decided on at the recent meeting of the association at Tacoma, and the officers were given instructions to take the necessary steps to disincorporate.

The association had as members all the larger millers of Washington. Regular meetings were held at Seattle and Tacoma. With the enactment of the Sherman anti-trust law the activities of the association were curtailed, and more than a year past it has not been an effective force in the flour trade of the Northwest.

The small millers of Washington, it is believed, will regret the passing of the association, as one of its important duties was to furnish the millmen with semi-weekly reports as to the condition of the world's flour and wheat markets, ocean freight rates and other matters pertaining to the flour milling trade.
